NEW YEAR MARKED BY MANY SOCIAL AFFAIRS

Dinners and Dances Attended by Exclusive Set When 1911 Is Welcomed by Gay Throngs

(By MARGARET WATTS DePEYSTER.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The opening week of the new year in the world of society in New York was marked by the number of dances and dinners among the "400." While some of the dances were given in honor of debutantes others were given in the interest of charity institutions and were all attended by the exclusive society folks who gave their aid as well as their means to make the event a success Among those who lent their aid to these dances were such leaders as Mrs Sloan, Mrs George Gould, Mrs Drexel and Mrs Vanderbilt. They began with the return of those who spent the holidays out of the city Quite a list of dances are included in the social calendar for the month of January

The marriage of a number of young couples will also add luster to the social events of the month, as will a number of receptions yet to be given in honor of debutantes But as the debutante enjoyed the seat of honor in the opening of the social season she has been forced to give way for the older set who will reign during the closing part of the year The end of the first week in January, however, was marked by the exodus of a number of New York's society folks who will spend the latter part of the winter and the spring in travel abroad On Saturday quite a company, including Miss Agnes Edgar one of the leading debutantes of the season left for Southern Europe Already invitations are out and plans being made for a gay season at Cairo and Algieries Others will soon join in the gayeties in Southern Italy But the season will not close in New York for several weeks yet and the calendar for the month of February contains announcements that will keep society moving between the resorts and the city mansion where functions are being given

TO AID CHILDREN

Friends of Countess Lazlo Szechenyi, formerly Miss Gladys Vanderbilt have heard with much interest from Budapest that the multi millionaire lady princess has accepted the office of vice president of the National Children's Aid Society Since accepting the office the countess has given out an interview in which she tells of her aim in life "Believe me" she said in answer to a question from a newspaper writer who had been received for the purpose of granting an interview and who had asked whether she intended to enter into active duties of the society, "It is not an empty phrase if I say that I would like to lighten the burden of all the afflicted and suffering This is hardly possible except through the channels of philanthropic societies I shall dedicate my time and part of the material resources at my command readily to help others In Hungary especially in Budapest and in certain other parts of the country, as I am aware there is plenty of misery According to my idea we must first help the destitute and suffering children who must be brought up sound in body and mind and therefore I gladly accepted the vice presidency of the National Children's Aid Society Through it I may accomplish some good

LIKES OERMEZOE

When I first came to Hungary I was accompanied by my mother and my younger brother with whom I live on very good terms Lately I took a fancy to Oermezoe Castle my baby was born there too I feel very much at home in it, and we entertain numerous hunting parties there In Budapest on the other hand I still feel a guest living as we do in a hotel until our own place is ready.

"Then of course you are going to entertain on a large scale"

"At all events we shall take a position in Budapest society fit to advance with our rank and fortune As far as I am concerned I am not too fond of appearing in public but to a certain extent I shall willingly do what is expected of me"

Speaking about the new palace the Countess said

"All the work and all fittings will be, of course, as far as possible, the products of Hungarian craftsmen and artists I have a very high opinion of Hungarian art No, we shall not bring over here any pictures from the gallery at Oermezoe Castle. We shall try to get a new collection gradually On the other hand, certain fixtures and conveniences which are best made in America or cannot be had here, we have ordered from the other side of the Atlantic

WEDDING QUIET.

Because of the recent death of the bride's father, the late Commander Frederick A Abercrombie Miller, the wedding of Miss Edith Abercrombie Miller to Walter R Tuckerman of Washington D C at Morristown, N J, was a quiet affair attended by members of the immediate families only

The ceremony was in the Madison Grace Church the officiating clergyman being the Rev Joseph N Blanchard, rector assisted by the Rev Roland Cotton Smith rector of St John's Church, Washington Following the wedding a breakfast was served at Loadtaka Farms the home of Mrs de Peyster, Mr and Mrs Tuckerman will reside in Washington

Charles A Snyder and bride, formerly Miss Jean Louise Massey of Long Branch N J, have gone to the home of Mr Snyder in San Francisco where they will make their residence The marriage was one of the social events of the holiday season in Long Branch although the couple crossed the river and were married at the Church of the Incarnation Madison avenue and Thirty-fifth street and following the ceremony a dinner was served at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel

WEAR POLO CAPS

Mrs Perry Belmont and other women in society have taken to polo caps for morning wear The caps take the place of the turban Matched fur sets with the polo caps are the latest fad from Paris and such followers of the fashion to the minute as Miss Katherine Elkins and her cousin Miss Katherine Davis Brown have adopted them Miss Elkins and her cousin have been on shopping tours about the city and they wear long shaggy coats of Siberian fox with a fur tippet, and muff of soft yellow mink

Frederick Townsend Martin has arranged a series of dinner parties for Sundays in January On the first Mr Martin will entertain for Mrs Vanderbilt

Melville Sternberg and bride formerly Miss Lillian Fisher have gone to the home of Mr Sternberg in Ohio where they will reside They were married at the home of the bride's parents Mr and Mrs George Fisher on St Nicholas avenue Following the ceremony the couple was tendered a dinner at Hotel Astor

Birds Followers of Isaac Walton

I was going to say that was a jolly article in Sunday's New York Sun about the bird [illegible] fishing [illegible] outdoor [illegible] expressive adjective [illegible] to have been worked to death [illegible] my appreciation [illegible] displayed a most [illegible] knowledge of the habits of certain kinds of birds that have come under [illegible] I was particularly interested in the description of how the fish hawks and the various members of the crane family do their fishing

"As I have spent nearly all my winters in Florida [illegible] last ten years I have had ample time to study the habits of the birds that feed on salt water fish The bridge at Port Orange which is just a mile in extent where it spans the Halifax river separated from the ocean only by a strip of sand scarcely a quarter of a mile in width affords a fine point of observation for any one who is interested in the habits of the aquatic birds

Schools of porpoises are constantly passing with the tide through the draw for the inlet at Mosquito lighthouse is only five or six miles away It is not an uncommon thing to see a hungry osprey pounce upon a huge porpoise reminding one of a toy spaniel attacking a St Bernard Naturally the effort is futile but [illegible] I was amazed to see one of these feathered gluttons land upon the back of a porpoise and put up a good fight For a moment the water was lashed to foam and then the great fish disappeared beneath the surface of the water carrying his captor with him The bridge tender had also witnessed the occurrence

"Did you see that" I gasped

"It often happens" he said The eagle buries his talons in the back of the porpoise and can't get them out again Generally when a fish hawk or an eagle hits a porpoise the talons glide off because the hide of a fish is so tough but occasionally you see one get trapped just as that fellow was

"What will happen" I asked

"The chances are the porpoise will drown" said the bridge tender "He'll stay under water till he drowns the eagle but he won't be able to get rid of the carcass I don't know why but dead porpoises are found with birds' claws stuck in their backs

I have no personal knowledge of that fact I only have the bridge tender's word for it but I know him to be a truthful man But I can vouch for a curious thing I saw with my own eyes on the bridge at Port Orange This was no less than the drowning of a crane by an oyster The Halifax at that point is filled with oyster beds and this particular crane being in his chronic state of hunger was standing on one of them waiting for a stray mullet to come along Before the obliging mullet put in an appearance the tide had risen to a point nearly to the patient crane's body and the oysters felt pretty frisky One of them opened his shell and grabbed the crane by the toe That was a novel experience for the crane and he naturally kicked but the more he kicked the harder the oyster held fast In fact the bivalve held so fast that the tide came in and completely covered the bird drowning it in plain sight of a score of persons who saw the tragedy from the bridge

This happened about 9 o'clock in the morning Late in the afternoon when the tide had receded the bridge tender waded out to the oyster bar and found the bird dead The oyster still had hold of the unfortunate crane's foot and wouldn't let go till it had been torn from its own bed Thus both perished in the submarine tragedy

STUDENTS SPANK HIGH SCHOOL HEAD

Disaster Follows Attempt to Make Boy Turn Informer.

ST JOHN, Kan Jan 7—[illegible] all [illegible] what generally happens when a band of husky [illegible] tries to [illegible] violence upon an undersized and quiet school teacher [illegible] The undersized person turns out to have been the star quarterback and lightweight boxer back at college and the things he does to the mutinous members of the class are a shame to tell about Licking half a dozen of them with lightning blows is no trick at all

But things often happen differently in Kansas and that may help to explain why Principal Crocker of the St John high school failed to shed any student blood when six members of his high school went after him with their fists a week ago When they finished the professor was gagged and bound and he was perfectly willing to admit that he had no claims upon the lightweight championship in college or anywhere else

The trouble began when somebody put ammonia into the school water cooler Nelson Rawdon a student in the high school was called to the principal's office after school and asked to turn state's evidence He refused to do so insisting that he knew nothing about it Crocker then prepared not to "spoil the child" but before the professorial rod could get into action Nelson whistled to five comrades outside who rushed in and overpowered the principle

All of the students concerned in the affair were suspended next day and a student mutiny followed

London American Colony Await King's First Levee

(By LADY MARY MANWARING)

LONDON Jan 7 The American colony especially that portion of it which has not been presented at Court is on the edge for the first levee of King George which probably will be held early in February shortly after the assembling of the new parliament There was a report that no levee would be held until the period of mourning for King Edward had expired which would be May 7 This would have been so near the date of coronation that had it not been true it is doubtful if there would have been an opportunity to be presented until pretty nearly midsummer

The announcement therefore, which is semi-official that a levee will be held in February is most welcome Already the maneuvering for a place on Ambassador Reid's list for presentation has begun

The King and Queen will hold a diplomatic and official court at Buckingham palace towards the end of February or early in March It is probable that the recently introduced regulations for the ordinary court will be considerably altered as they have not worked well during the last few years On the other hand the new rules for the levees have proved most successful

PRESERVES LETTERS

Queen Alexandra has carefully preserved all the letters of condolence her Majesty received on the death of the King and these are now numbered among her most treasured possessions The letters have been divided into categories those from royalties and intimate friends, and those from thousands of the late King's subjects not only in this country but in all parts of the Empire many of them being quite poor people and from little children

The letters have been carefully bound in plain dark red calf with a small crown on the cover Queen Alexandra specially prized those letters of sympathy which came from poor people and though it was obviously impossible for her Majesty to reply to them all during the first few months she wrote to several of these correspondents thanking them for their kind sympathy

It is persistently rumored that the engagement of Prince Arthur of Connaught who has lately been paying a round of country house visits will shortly be announced Despite various inspired denials which have been circulated privately it is believed that he will take the daughter of an English duchess for his bride

UNBIDDEN GUESTS

Prominent London hostesses who intend waging war on the unbidden guest during the coming season are said to be determined that no one unless he or she can produce a card of invitation will be allowed to cross the threshhold of any house where a dance or entertainment is in progress To make sure that this rule will be carried out professional check takers are to be employed

I hear that Miss Stella Campbell daughter of Mrs Patrick Campbell is engaged and that her marriage will take place at the end of the present season The happy young man has a sister on the stage He fell in love with Miss Campbell at first sight and though his sister made her acquaintance Very soon afterwards the engagement was concluded Miss Campbell intends to retire from the stage on her marriage

KITCHENER LIKED

The appointment of Field Marshal Lord Kitchener as Lord High Constable of England for the approaching coronation gives very general satisfaction It will give England's greatest soldier a place second only to that of the Earl Marshal who is the Duke of Norfolk the premier Duke of Great Britain In the days when this office was hereditary it was the greatest in the kingdom under the King himself And while the Lord High Constable is now only appointed for special occasions it is an office of much dignity and honor

The career of Lord Mount Stephen who recently entertained the King and Queen has been one of the great romances of our time He began life as a herd boy in Scotland, then was a draper's apprentice and worked afterwards as an assistant in a St Paul's churchyard establishment

Then he decided to try his luck in Canada and found there in the shape of the Canadian Pacific Railway the means of acquiring his colossal wealth Also he obtained as the reward for his labors in this connection a peerage being the first man in the colonies to attain this distinction The list of his benefactions is said to be endless

Lady Mount Stephen is one of the oldest friends of the Queen As Miss Gian Tufnell daughter of the late Captain R C Tufnell, R. N., she was before her marriage in 1897 lady-in-waiting to Princess Mary Duchess of Teck and that most popular of royal ladies and her daughter took a deep interest in her wedding

Lady Mount Stephen plays comparatively little part in social life in town, preferring Brocket to her fine residence in Carlton House Terrace and she is very popular in the Hatfield neighborhood A visit by the King and Queen in December has been a regular institution at Brocket for years past

"GEORGE DREADNOUGHT"

A popular cleric has said that His Majesty will go down to history as George the Dreadnought The new king's own expressed desire is however to follow his father's example as a peacemaker and it is significant therefore that the first international role which King George has been called on to fill is that of arbitrator in a dispute between two foreign nations

King Edward was to have adjudicated in the celebrated Alsop claim contention between the United States and Chili and King George has undertaken to accept the responsibility on behalf of the government of those countries

The trouble began thirty years ago and concerns a mining concession in Bolivia

Both parties will present a long note to King George in which they will set forth their respective claims in detail

It is a ticklish position for His Majesty who cannot pretend to be an expert in mining claims He will therefore of course seek competent advice probably by appointing a commission of two or three experts headed by some eminent lawyer The commission's report will be submitted to the King, who will accept or reject as his common sense decides

Curiously enough a similar arbitration task fell to the lot of King Edward on the death of Queen Victoria This was the boundary dispute between Chili and Argentina who were quarreling about which of them owned certain parts of Patagonia

Queen Victoria was to have given judgment but the Queen died and King Edward took up the task Just as the two countries were on the point of war his late Majesty gave his decision which satisfied both Thus King Edward began his reign as he ended it—as the peacemaker The coincidence augurs well for the future of King George V

Where Women RUN STREET CARS

They have women conductors on the electric cars of Santiago the capital of Chile This was made necessary by the late war and imposed upon women the work usually done by men The custom has been kept up the women have proved equally as efficient as the men had been

One of the most peculiar customs seen here is the evening promenade in the plaza or park, which is attended by young ladies and young men and quite small boys and girls They do not mix but keep separate paths

Yet even the little girls at 7 or 8 years are finished coquettes says the Logical Point Their eyes languidly observe every man and boy in the plaza and they take care that each shall receive a due share of their smiles

Another curious custom which prevails in Santiago, and which is joined by those fortunate enough to have fine horses and carriages is the promenade at the Parque Causino a beautiful park near the center of the city

A company of mounted police stand in single file in the center of the drive and the carriages with uniformed coachmen and footmen and beautifully gowned women and fashionably dressed men occupying the carriages ride around and around these mounted police

Some times there are two or as many as six rows of carriages some going in the opposite direction and alternating the ladies smiling and the gentlemen dipping their hats in a polite manner This promenading lasts from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 8 o'clock in the evening

NEW YORK PASTOR HOLDS OUT HAND TO LABORERS

Machinist-Minister Stelzle Has Remarkable Record in Pulpit.

(By D V FRANCIS)

NEW YORK Jan 7—One of the most interesting of the active church workers in New York is Rev Charles Stelzle superintendent of the Department of Church and Labor of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions Stelzle was a machinist before he entered the ministry In fact he is a machinist yet as he holds a working card in the machinists union

When he first entered the ministry he took up as his life work the establishing of closer relations between the church and the workingman whom he knew from experience was drifting away from the church and becoming more and more dominated by irreligious or at least anti church influences Some years ago he with Rev Dr John B Devins who had been a newspaper reporter and a good one were appointed by the Presbytery of New York delegates to the Central Labor Federation They were the first clergymen to sit in a labor organization as representing a church body Largely through Mr Stelzle's efforts the Department of Church and Labor was formed by the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions and it has done a big work

Some six or eight months ago the board secured the use of an abandoned Presbyterian church on Fourteenth street and Second avenue and the Labor Temple was established Here is a church influence [illegible] in which laboring men are vitally interested lectures are given and religious exercises are held The church and organized labor are being brought into touch

BISHOPS IN REUNION

Think of a family reunion including two bishops one doctor of divinity one other clergyman and a divinity student That's a record hard to beat It happened at Washington on Christmas day

Among those present at the dinner were Bishop George H Kinsolving of Texas Bishop L L Kinsolving of Brazil Rev Dr Arthur B Kinsolving pastor of St Paul's Episcopal church of Baltimore Rev W L Kinsolving of Perryman Md and Charles J Kinsolving candidate for orders at the New York seminary

In recent weeks the question of unsuitability of the present fashion in huge hats to church wear has cropped up in various quarters and the monstrous millinery of the moment has been denounced from the pulpits of a cathedral and conventicle alike as abstracting to the preacher and [illegible] to the congregation The bishop of Salford England in his message to the Catholic federation has taken up the subject with vigor and says "The extravagant hat of the present day is both unbecoming and inconvenient in church Why not the mantilla? Surely nothing can be more suitable nor becoming to a woman in church than the real black veil worn in Spain and Italy Every woman who has an audience of the Holy Father has to wear it Ladies think nothing of going in the streets or to trams to entertainments in evening dress with a slight shawl or veil, and nobody remarks it.'

WASHINGTON'S SOCIETY RESUMES ITS ACTIVITY

Many Changes to Be Noted in Official Set After July 4th; Mrs. Cromwell "Lady Bouutiful"

(By CONSTANCE CARRUTHERS)

WASHINGTON Jan 7—Society in the national capital has resumed its gayety since the return of those who spent the holidays away from the city and the past week has been one of the most brilliant of the season Washington noted as it is for its charming hostesses easily takes rank among the first cities of the country as a social center Not only are these society matrons to be found among the official household and permanent residences of Washington but among the foreign diplomatic circles as well One of the most charming and successful hostesses in the capital is Madame Jeserand wife of the French Ambassador M Jeserand Madame Jeserand is one of the most accomplished leaders of the diplomatic set Before her marriage she was Elsie Richards daughter of a Boston banker She believes she [illegible] in wearing harmonies rather than contrasts and her toilet made in hue from the tip of her toque to the toe of her boots Sometimes she is seen in a walking dress of velvet of dark color trimmed with a lighter shade of silk embroidery, her hat of the same material as the gown with a bird of paradise on the right side Her furs of sable are the identical shade as the velvet and her boots of suede have velvet uppers

Among other winter amusements which are fairly under way is a big skating club of which Baroness Elizabeth Rosen daughter of the Russian Ambassador and Senor Don Algara of the Mexican embassy are the prime movers The morning is dedicated to these affairs in which the younger set finds much amusement The members meet at the Arcade the giant pleasure place of Washington

IS LADY BOUNTIFUL

Mrs Oliver Cromwell a widow who is prominent in Washington society for her many entertainments is very fond of young folks and says social life in America has become colorless and monotonous because young persons do not have the prominence they should She points to the South in the ante bellum days which she asserts constituted the most famous social era which the western hemisphere has known Everything in those days centered about the belles and the older folks were content to sit back and let the youngsters run things Now the elders claim tribute, and the dinners and dances have only a sprinkling of the young Even debutante functions are planned to please the parents of the guests as well as the 'buds' Mrs Cromwell's house has been filled since Thanksgiving day with young persons, sometimes twenty at a time Miss Louise Cromwell's coming out was deferred from last winter because of her father's illness and death

Kissing and Its Unique History

Kissing after all is a matter of taste of disposition of circumstances and environment and is not reserved for the young and attractive alone Every one knows how Margaret of Scotland kissed the ugly sleeping Chartier and how she justified her taste by declaring—"A mouth from which such a profusion of wit had proceeded needed no other grace to make it beautiful

Voltaire too had the honor of being kissed publicly in a stage box by the young and lovely Duchess de Villars but in his case the lady gave the salute not of her own free will but in obedience to the commands of the pit mad with enthusiasm for the poet's Merope

The effect of a kiss on the hero of a German novel was—Sophia returned my kiss and the earth went from under my feet my soul was no longer in my body I touched the stars I knew the happiness of the Seraphim Poor fellow! He must have been the terra firma of matrimony!

How pretty does Shakespeare's Helena beg a kiss of her uncourtly churlish husband

I am not worthy of the wealth I own
Nor dare I say 'tis mine and yet it is
But like a timorous thief most fain would steal
What law does vouch mine own
What would you have?
'Something and scarce so much—nothing indeed—
I would not tell you what I would my lord—faith yes—
Strangers and foes do sunder and not kiss

In Edward IV's reign a guest was expected on his arrival and also on his departure to salute not only his hostess but all the ladies of the family So widely spread was the osculatory reputation of Englishmen that when Wolsey's biographer visited a French nobleman at his chateau the mistress of the mansion entering the room with her train of attendant ladies thus accosted her husband's guest For as much as ye be an Englishman whose custom it is in your country to kiss all ladies and gentlewomen without offense and although it be not so here in this realm yet will I be so bold as to kiss you and so shall my maidens A promise no sooner made than performed to the inexpressible satisfaction of Cavendish

Washington Delighted that Sharp-tongued Baroness is Leaving

BARONESS DES PLANCHES

MISS MABEL T. BOARDMAN.

MRS. W. H. TAFT

BARONESS HENGELMULLER

MRS JOHN B HENDERSON JR.

Wife of Austrian Ambassador called the society of nation's capital "Provincial and Dull," it is alleged—Constant thorn in the side of the elect of the city. Leaders protest against the indictment. How Washington differs from other capitals.

WASHINGTON — the most provincial capital of the world!

That is the accusation which Baroness Hengelmuller, the wife of the ambassador from Austria, has hurled at the nation's law center.

"Provincial and dull," is alleged to have been the exact wording of the indictment, which the high-spirited countess is said to have brought against us.

Her extremely undiplomatic utterance is regarded in Washington as positive proof that she expects to leave town and that this is her last dig at the society which she found so distasteful. Previous impeachments are regarded as accountable for the rumored departure.

Needless to say, Washington is breathing great sighs of relief at the news, for the wife of the Austrian ambassador has long been a thorn in the flesh of the society of the nation's capital. She has been the one woman who has dared to defy the Taft social regime.

RECOGNIZED LEADER.

A recognized leader in society at the capital, the Baroness has created more than one sensation by her utter disregard of Washington customs and conventions. She favored the European Sunday and has not hesitated to give affairs on the Sabbath in the face of the disapproval of the wife of the President.

She has gone even further in defying the Taft social rule by pointing to the fact that William Howard Taft has been ostracised by the Vanderbilts, the Sloans and other members of New York society since his assumption of office. Only one other member of the noblesse stationed in Washington has had the temerity in recent years to make such an arraignment of this country's capital as has Baroness Hengelmuller. The other woman was Baroness Des Planches, wife of the Italian ambassador, who held the post at Washington until six months ago. The Baroness Des Planches was so indiscreet as to make a remark at a public function that she did not care for Washington society. The remark is held largely responsible for her husband's transfer. In both instances social dictators were quick to answer the charges.

MOST DELIGHTFUL.

"Washington society is most delightful," declared Mrs. John W. Foster, wife of the former Secretary of State and minister to China. "In no other capital is intelligence and character more appreciated."

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, personal friend of both Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen Taft, said:

"The fact that Washington is not as large as New York, London, Paris and Vienna, gives the inhabitants of this city many advantages that dwellers in those cities are apt to overlook. The absence of opera and other diversions here has a good effect, for it makes society dependent more on the personality of its members.

Mrs. John B. Henderson, wife of the former senator from Missouri, asserts that the future of the city as a great social center is assured.

TRUTH ABOUT SOCIETY.

The truth about Washington society is that it is a bundle of contrasts and contradictions. It has no foundation in tradition. It is both cosmopolitan and provincial. It is cosmopolitan in that it is the seat of a great government. It is provincial in that it is nothing else. It is a society of contrasts, but no one can deny that its intelligence, culture and refinement are not only as great, but greater, perhaps, than those of any other community in this country or abroad.

What makes Washington provincial in comparison with foreign capitals is the absence of great political houses, such as for generations have existed in London, in which government leaders meet and members of the opposition gather for the exchange of political views or for consultation over the public measures. There are no political salons, such as were so potent in the annals of France in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, and which still exist in Paris.

Washington probably appears "provincial" also to visiting peeresses, for the reason that the White House exerts less influence upon the social life of the capital than do the executive mansions of other capitals.

QUESTIONS OF RANK.

Questions of rank and precedence come under the jurisdiction of the White House, and to this extent the structure and its occupants do influence the doings of Washington society.

To be truthful, it must be said that there is no really great society in Washington, such as there is in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, for instance. Washington in reality may be fairly described as a salaried man's paradise. Here are found the country's best and most talented, but by no means its wealthiest. These employes of the government do much to raise the general level of intelligence, culture and refinement which distinguishes Washington from other cities of the country, but they do not make toward its social prominence, as that term is generally interpreted today.

There is no "Four Hundred" in Washington. There is no "Bohemia." There are no ancestral trees. There is, however, an aristocracy of brain and brawn, which does things.

The atmosphere of Washington is primarily political. The commercial instinct has no place there. As a result, on subjects of general interest the run of men are generally better informed than they appear to be in other cities of the country. This is due, no doubt, to the greater leisure they enjoy, the peace and repose that come to them when the day's work is done, the absence of the storm and stress which accompany the business man's active career in these days.

Washington men are men of the world. The average woman in Washington society knows little and cares less about politics than she might about the quadrature of a circle. She is in this respect quite unlike the English woman of society, who as a political factor is almost the equal of her husband; whose views on public questions are listened to with respect, and whose influence is frequently felt in the settlement of public affairs.

WOMEN CHARMING.

The women of Washington, however, are among the most charming and delightful of the country and the world. They are, for the most part, democratic and unpretentious. The simplicity of the earlier days when Washington was a purely southern city, still leaves its influence. Many of the old costumes survive—hence the provincialism. Families still sit on the front steps when the weather permits; carriages are still drawn up in front of the markets on certain days of the week; young girls still sanction the parade through the streets in the evenings to the theaters without head covering, the social leaders still believe in the primitive character and potency of the picnic and other bucolic diversions, and families still dine in the middle of the day on Sunday.

Washington's only really serious offense of ruralism, however, is one which it shares with sister cities throughout the country—the homage which it accords any foreigner of rank. No capital in the world makes so much of diplomats as does our own. Neither in London, nor in Paris, nor in Vienna, does the fact that one is a diplomat open the doors of a single private house to him.

Yet in Washington there are many houses which fairly yawn to admit within their walls any foreigner, providing he is a diplomat. It is one of the worst evidences of Washington society's provincialism.

Society closes its eye to many things in the family life of diplomats which it would not tolerate for a single moment in the family life of Americans. Skeletons may be rattled as often and as loudly as the owner pleases, and yet it does not seem to impair his standing.

On the other hand, it must be said that all newcomers are made welcome in the capital providing they have something in them to make the welcome worth while, and in that does the city show its easy-going liberality and its cosmopolitanism.

Massachusetts Girl Who Married a King

The recent deposition of King Manuel of Portugal and the events in the young king's life that led up to it will no doubt bring back to the minds of some of the older residents of the city the story of Elise Hensler, the Springfield girl who married a king and became the Countess Edla.

The king she married was Don Ferdinand II. of Portugal, a great grandfather of King Manuel. Elise Hensler lived in this city about sixty years ago, probably for about four years. Her father, Conrad Hensler, was a humble tailor, and according to the directories of Springfield in 1848 and 1852, first conducted a small shop on Stockbridge street and later was employed as a tailor with E. M. Law, who conducted a tailoring establishment on Market street.

The Henslers were humble people and lived simply. The daughters, Elise and Louise were well received here and were given a good musical education, especially Elise, who had quite a remarkable voice. Signor Guidi, an Italian, at the time a well known teacher of the voice, took an interest in Elise and it was when Signor Guidi went to Boston that the Henslers went there, largely through his influence. He believed that Elise had a future as a singer and wished her to be where he could continue teaching

Elise Hensler after her removal with her family to Boston continued her studies. She was persevering in her work and progressed so well that she not only appeared in concerts in the large cities of this country, but also in Europe, where she sang before royalty. It was while singing in Lisbon several years after the death of Queen Maria that King Ferdinand heard her voice and felt the attraction that led him to marry her.

Ferdinand was the titular King of Portugal, having been the second husband of Queen Maria II. of Portugal. Ferdinand married Maria in 1836, when he was 20. The queen died in 1853, and he was regent during the minority of his son, Pedro V., who was the father of the assassinated King Carlos, the grandfather of the deposed King Manuel. The regency ended in 1855, and on June 10, 1869, he married Miss Hensler.

When the European powers decided the time had come to restore Spain to a monarchy, following the overthrow of the short republic, which existed from 1873 to 1875, considerable pressure was brought to bear upon Ferdinand to induce him to accept the vacant throne. But his wife could never be Queen of Spain, and it is possible that this fact alone induced him to refuse.

This absolute refusal on his part to accept the throne of Spain, with all the pomp and splendor of royalty in exchange for the romantic life that he was living with his morganatic wife, had far reaching consequences. The complications and jealousies resultant on the attempt to find a king acceptable to all the powers helped to bring on the Franco-Prussian war, and Alsace and Lorraine went back to Germany, whence they had been wrested by Napoleon Bonaparte.

In consequence of these peculiar historical facts, which geographically practically changed all western Europe, Elise Hensler, Countess Edla, became famous throughout the world as "the woman who changed the map of Europe." During the life of the king they lived in the beautiful castle of Cintra. It is certain that their life was above reproach. In 1885 the king died, and after that the countess lived in retirement in a cottage near the castle.

Some of her Springfield schoolmates are still living, for she was one of the early pupils of Ariel Parrish in the High School, which stood on the site of the present police building on Court street. The name appears in a catalogue of the alumni issued in 1857, properly spelled Elise, though she was known to her schoolmates as Eliza. If she is still living she is about 74 years old.—Springfield Republican.

Sir H. Beerbohm Tree on the British Theater

Discussing British drama and the popular taste, Sir H. Beerbohm Tree, the celebrated actor, declared: "Personally, I believe in the public. I have never had failures I could not understand. Plays fail because of their shortcomings, never because of their virtues. I am told by less intelligent critics that my theater is crowded because of the pageants. That is absurd.

"If the public wants pageant only, it can get it done splendidly in the musical comedy theaters, in pantomimes and in the music halls. My friends come to His Majesty's theater primarily for the drama and the acting. But I admit that they like to see their drama in a beautiful and appropriate setting. And, pray, why not?"

"Moreover," observed a famous novelist who had been listening, "if it is merely beautiful spectacle that is required, the cinematograph theater can beat any playhouse. What stage can compare, for example, with the exact photographic reproduction of the waves breaking on the shore?"

"Do you agree with Laurence Irving," asked the interviewer, "that the cinemas are serious competitors of the theaters?"

"No. I think they may be affecting the business of the music halls, but all these places of entertainment encourage the habit of seeing things. It is becoming, almost universally, part of the day's work to spend some hours in entertainment, and the people who go to the cinemas tonight may come, for a change, to His Majesty's tomorrow. Moreover, the wordless dramas pictured on the cinema screens may stimulate curiosity to see the real drama and thus the cinematograph may become an actual feeder of the playhouses."

"But if the public cares for the play, how do you account on the one hand for the difficulty of making a touring company a success, and, on the other hand, for the non-continuance of such enterprises as the Vedrenne-Barker management and Mr. Frohman's repertory theater?

"As regards provincial tours, doubtless in face of the heavy competition of the music halls and cinemas, expenses must be kept down, and I am inclined to agree with Mr. Irving that the salaries of actors have grown out of all proportion to the possibility of managerial profit. I also agree with Mr. Irving that the hope for the theater in the provinces is in such valuable experiments as Miss Horniman's repertory company at the Gaiety theater in Glasgow—both splendid moves.

"A theater that houses an entirely different company every week is just a lodging house. It has none of the elements of a home. It is a building without personality and without soul. The playhouse that really interests live men and women in London or Manchester or wherever you will, always has individuality.

"As for the failure of the various London houses for the production of artistic drama—if they were failures—I think perhaps the range of repertory has been too narrow. The productions have been too much in one key, and under any circumstances nothing can really be deduced from Mr. Frohman's experiment. It did not last long enough to carry any moral.

"Generally let me say this. I find foreign critics kind in their appreciation of English acting. I find our young players interested enough in their work to spend their leisure rehearsing and acting in the interests of productions of the Stage Society and kindred associations. I find that [illegible] successes are scored with such beautiful dramas as Maeterlinck's 'Blue Bird.'

"Personally, I am no pessimist. Perhaps the conditions of the theater may be [illegible] but I find progress in all the [illegible] of dramatic art. Above all I am hopeful of the future of the theater."

WONDERFUL MACHINE

That wonderful machine into which pigs walked at one end and from which sausages were produced at the other has almost become a reality. An Austrian army captain named Von Henrique has invented a machine which can turn out 150,000 ball cartridges in ten hours by what is described as an absurdly simple process.

Powder cases and bullets are dropped into receptacles and in a very short time reappear as cartridges ready for use. The machine distinguishes between good and bad material, all defective material being discarded.

Supremacy in Rubber Planting

Chiapas, the most southwesterly state of Mexico on the Pacific coast, now holds the supremacy in rubber planting, having a larger acreage under cultivation than all the other rubber districts in Mexico, says Albert W. Brickwood Jr., United States consul at Tapachula, in a recent report.

Mexico, he says, is among the pioneers in rubber culture, as there exist today plantations more than a quarter of century old. For many years Mexico has been one of the largest producers of rubber, and its exports have reached enormous figures.

The most important planting districts in Chiapas are Soconusco and Palenque. In the Soconusco department is located the plantation of La Zacualpa, which controls seven other companies, the whole forming the largest rubber plantation in the world. The holdings consist of more than twenty-nine square miles. The planted area on the united plantations is 9500 acres.

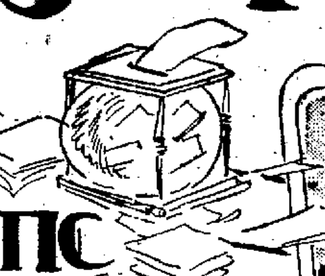
There are several thousand twenty-year-old trees planted by the original owner, which now form a forest with an absolutely clean "floor" containing numberless seedlings. The average yield of these trees is one pound at a tapping, but some have yielded as high as two pounds eleven ounces of dry rubber per tree, which is considered an excellent showing. Record plantings have been made at La Zacualpa as many as 3600 acres having been cleared and planted in one season; counting 300 trees to the acre this gives a total of 1,080,000 trees in a season.

There are always many thousands ready to be tapped the year round, except a few weeks in the dry season, when the latex or sap does not run freely. While at present the practice is to tap three times annually a test is to be made soon to tap four times a year.

La Zacualpa has a modern plant for handling the output. The sap or latex is brought in from the fields in specially constructed zinc cans, strained through a sieve made for the purpose, of double and different sized mesh, to separate it from foreign and mechanical matter mixed with clean water in the proportion of one to three, and allowed to stand for four hours, when the water containing the liquor from the sap is run into a tank for future treatment in the centrifugal machine, and fresh water is let in. The following day the sap or latex is washed again, then mixed with the juice from the amole plant (soap root), undergoing a final washing, when it is coagulated, rinsed in pure water, and sent to the drying room. The rubber is prepared in crepe or sheet form, then pressed into 100-pound blocks for shipment, the packing cases being made on the place of native lumber.

It will no doubt appear curious that the rubber collected from the waste or wash water by the centrifugal machine has proved to be one of the best quality, a recent shipment to England having sold for $2.30 gold per pound, believed to be the best price ever obtained for castilloa rubber. It is claimed that this product of rubber, which was formerly wasted, closely resembles fine Para rubber.

DEMOCRACY BEGINS its FIGHT for LIFE in ARISTOCRATIC ENGLAND



ADDRESSING A SOCIALIST MEETING IN LONDON. SOCIALISTS WERE MOST ACTIVE IN THE RECENT ELECTION

MR. OBRIEN ADDRESSING AN OPEN AIR MEETING

AN ENGLISH VOTER CASTING HIS VOTE.

WM. REDMOND SPEAKING. NOTE THE STARS AND STRIPES TO LEFT OF SPEAKER

JOHN BURNS, THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND

The political situation in the Mother Country is one of extreme gravity—Power of the House of Lords seriously menaced. The people demand that the Peers and the King shall obey them. Multiplicity of issues complicate situation.

GREAT BRITAIN is in the throes of a revolution. It is true that this revolution is being waged at the polls rather than upon the battlefield, but at its termination its bearing upon the English constitution will be none the less marked.

It is still to early to obtain the proper perspective upon the results of the election just passed, but one conclusion may be stated with justification. England is bound toward radical constitutional changes. Whether they will occur as a result of the last election or whether subsequent elections will be required are of transit interest. The historical interest is that the change is imminent.

When George V dissolved Parliament on Nevember 27 England's political die was cast for all time and the social revolution was on. The battle between the House of Lords and the Liberals started with the issuance of the writs for a new parliament to meet on January 81 of this year.

MARKS WARFARE.

The action marked a warfare, the central issue of which was the destruction of the last vestige of power of the hereditary House of Lords, or the adding upon England of the old regime.

The Liberals demanded the abolition of the Lords, except as a purely consultive body. Allied with them are the Laborites, even more advanced in their doctrines, and the Irish, or Nationalists.

These three bodies making up what is known as the government Coalition, have marked the peerage as their prey, and they will not rest until they leave the field victorious or hopelessly vanquished.

Tht Unionists, or Conservatists, want the lords to continue in power, but advocate certain reforms from within the body.

FIGHT BITTER ONE.

The fight has been a bitter one and will continue to grow in bitterness until a decision is reached. Some of the radicals even go so far as to predict the dethronement of King George should he bestow his influence to the Unionists. There is no denying the fact that the people demand that their ruler obey them, and help abolish the power of parliament's upper chamber.

The reduction of the power of the lords was but one of the issues in the last campaign. There were other issues, however, which combined toward making the balloting an event in the life of the world.

The agitation over free trade on the one hand and protective tariff on the other, the ever-present suffrage demand, the Irish home rule insistence, the Socialistic ferment, all were contributing issues which made the campaign of interest from the Himalayas to the western slopes of the Pacific, from the area of the Polar star to the zone of the Southern cross, from the land of the Golden Fleece to that of the Midnight Sun.

STORM SWEEPS.

About the lords, however the severest storm swept and continues for that matter to sweep. Until now this ancient body has enjoyed much the same prerogatives as the United States Senate, and has served in the same fashion as a restraint upon hasty and sometimes reckless legislation on the part of the lower chamber.

It differs from the United States Senate, in that its membership is appointive and hereditary instead of elective. The lords, however, are willing to abandon their hereditary privileges, but do not want to be shorn of their constitutional power of defeating and virtually vetoing legislation enacted by the Commons.

This compromise does not meet with the approval of Mr. Asquith's party. It is determined to deprive the lords of all further power of vetoing measures enacted by the Commons and of reducing it to the role of a body whose only privilege is to register without demur the edicts of the lower house.

LIBERALS PLEDGED.

Once this is done, the Liberals are pledged to accord home rule to Ireland and to accord hearings to the Socialistic doctrines of the Laborites. Just how the Suffragettes will fare cannot be foretold.

It looks as though King George would have no alternative should the Liberals remain in power, but to grant their demands, notwithstanding that by so doing the throne will lose its chief bulwark and defense against the ever-rising tide of democracy.

There is little doubt that the Liberals with their Labor and Irish allies, will manage to control the situation. The Unionists still hope, on the other hand that they will be powerful enough to induce the King not to accede to the demands of the opposition.

The Unionist cry that should the King accede to the demands of the Liberals the cabinet will become a despotic authority, which will dictate the entire policy of the country without fear of opposition. The lords, they assert will become mere wax works.

CRY OF DICTATOR.

The Unionists have effectively raised the cry of Irish dictatorship by means of American dollars. This is due to the fear that the Irish will wield the balance of power in the government coalition and to the fact that the Irish Nationalists have been aided greatly in their struggle for home rule by the contribution of American sympathizers.

There can be no doubt, however, that the feeling of the nation is sympathetic toward a greater democracy. Sweeping reform may be expected. For the first time since the days of George III the constitution comes directly into the fray. Every agency within it—king, House of Lords and House of Commons, and the adjustment of the respective rights of all these authorities—is involved.

The king is required to make a decision fully as grave as that of William IV when he gave the Earl Grey permission to flood the House of Lords with new peerages.

PICTURESQUE CHARACTERS.

The campaign has been given additional interest by the numerous picturesque characters which have been in the forefront. William O'Brien and John Burns have done much to enliven the struggle.

O'Brien won out in Cork over William Redmond, the strongest candidate of the Liberals. Mr. O'Brien is the head of the "All for Ireland League," and his election serves greatly to complicate the situation.

John Burns had as his principal opponents the women of society, who were active in campaigning for their chosen candidates. The fair sex more than once provoked Burns to discourteous outbreaks.

To his constituents on election day he sent this word:

"Don't be taken in by the blandishments of fine ladies, who visit the mean streets only when they want something."

Waldorf Astor, the son of William Waldorf Astor, who renounced his allegiance to the United States to become a British subject, was another conspicuous figure in the campaign. He was elected on the Unionist ticket for one of the two seats of Plymouth. It is said that after his victory Mr. Astor's wife repeatedly kissed him and kissed also the chairman of the Conservative Association.

DESPISED DOLLARS.

Astor owes his return to the lavish use of the despised American dollars and the indefatigable work of his fascinating wife.

How these various factions will fuse when Parliament convenes the latter part of this month, remains a mystery. It is possible that they will not fuse and that election will follow election until the situation will become one of extreme gravity.

Feeding This Nation

In 1899 the American hen laid eggs in sufficient numbers during the calendar year to amount to seventeen dozen for each inhabitant of the United States. Omitting all thought of adding a single egg to the individual share of eggs, but merely to maintain the 1900 proportion of eggs to population, the hens of the United States in 1910 must be laying annually 221,000,000 dozen more eggs than they laid in 1899.

The per capita product of milk in the year 1899 was 95.6 gallons per annum. To maintain this per capita for the benefit of our increment of population, says the Atlantic, the milk supply in the year 1910 must exceed that of 1899 by 1,142,800,000 gallons.

To maintain butter, of which the per capita amount produced in 1899 was fourteen pounds, at the same per capita in 1910 the aggregate production must exceed the former figure by 182,000,000 pounds.

Of potatoes, that other staple of human consumption, the per capita product at the last census was about four bushels; hence in 1910 to maintain the potato supply for our newcomers but not to increase it for the rest of the community to the extent of even one potato each (one potato apiece means approximately 150,000 bushels) there must be raised 52,000,000 bushels more of this homely but useful vegetable than were reported in 1899.

What this product means is best noted by observing that to supply it would consume the entire potato crop as reported at the last census of the States of California, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Maine, Maryland and North Carolina.

Senator Elihu Root's $24,000 a Year Harlem Flat

NEW YORK.—Senator Elihu Root, who, it was recently announced, has sold his old home and leased a flat, is not going to be cramped in his new quarters.

Of course, it's not quite like the average Harlem flat. It's a little larger—it has twenty-two rooms—and it's a bit more expensive, for he's going to pay $24,000 a year for it. But that's only $2,000 a month, $500 a week, $71 a day, $3 an hour and five cents a second. Suppose you had to hold out your hand and drop a nickel every second?

Senator Root's flat is not ready yet. It's being built. But there are a half dozen other flats just about like it in town. So let us have a look into one of them and see what you get when you decide to pay $2000 a month for yours.

"BUTTONS" MUST BE PAID.

To begin, you have to pay part of your $24,000 a year for "Buttons" in the lobby. In Senator Root's flat there will be a good many Buttons—two to open the door when he sends away the motor at the curbstone, one to escort him to the elevator and a few very fancy Buttons to take him up the door of his flat. Buttons is English and has peachblow cheeks and a soft, childlike voice. His ornamentation is magnificent, gold braid epaulets, creased trousers and shoes with nickel buckles. Just what proportion of the $24,000 a year goes to pay for his services it is dificult to estimate on short notice.

The hall of the flat is also worthy of notice. Along its mosaic floor are set at intervals tall brass standards with Tiffany glass globes at the top. The standards are covered with red velvet, in inches on the wall stand bronzes costing $300 to $500 each.

The ceiling of the hall is covered with real gold leaf, and the walls are of Caen stone from France.

MUST HAVE A MIRROR GALLERY.

Let's peep into the downstairs part of the flat. This little hall behind the iron and gilt door of the flat is called the mirror gallery. No $24,000 flat is complete without it. Now in the reception room. All carved Italian Renaissance parquet floors, plush walls in red, bronze candelabra. Very comfy.

Well, if that isn't a secret door. Opens right into the plush wall, and is not visible from the outside at all. Just touch the spring under the electric light button and it slides open without a sound. And the electric light pops up inside automatically. It's a coat closet, of course.

Here's the dining room. Right through that mirrored door. All done in French oak, paneled and an open fireplace. Not the kind we have in a Harlem flat, but a real one that burns logs. "This," says the superintendent, "is the billiard room. Done in Louis XIV style, all white and carved. Very attractive for people of taste.

THEN THE LIVING ROOM.

"And beyond the billiard room is the living room. That's what the architects call it now—it used to be the drawing room," explains the superintendent. And the living room is Louis XIV, too, and so is the music room, behind those silent mirrored folding doors over there.

But, look. Right there in the center of all, with all the other gorgeous rooms opening on it, is the conservatory. Caen stone again, with aquaria on the floors, and mirrors on the walls, and misty glass chandeliers falling like cloudy waterfalls at each end. With the mirrored doors all open there is 5000 square feet of floor space for entertaining.

And here are the bedrooms. This first is the "master's" room, called so because the master of the house sleeps in it, or is supposed to. It is all white like the rest, and there is the big dressing room, and the marble bath opening off. And this next is another bedroom, the same as the first, but not so large. And the big bath, too. And at the far end is another big room.

ANOTHER SECRET PANEL.

See the Tiffany glass globes on the bronze chandeliers. And there in the wall is a huge panel that opens, though one would never know it if the superintendent had not pushed the spring. And all the way to the ceiling are dust proof glass compartments for the mistress' clothes. Over there is the shoe closet, room for a hundred pairs and more. And next behind that solid white panel is the closet for princess gowns. Twelve feet high it is at least, so that the gowns with the long trains hang from the silver plated bar at the top without touching the floor.

And here is the dressing room and another marble bath. But what is that little funny room and the tiny bath next it? The superintendent says it's Fido's room, or Yonne's, or whatever mistress happens to call her pet spaniel or Pomeranian.

And now we are out in the mahogany finished butler's pantry, and beyond it is the kitchen, all in marble and tile from ceiling to floor. Much like an operating room in a hospital it looks. Beyond it is the chef's room, also in mahogany finish. And at the back is the servants' entrance, and the private staircase for the maids and men, and the servants' elevator. Stairs lead to the other servants' room, all large. And every one is done in mahogany. Each is fitted with its private bath. There is a bath for every bedroom in the place.

Progress of Indians

The Indians on the Sisseton reservation in the northwestern portion of South Dakota are making rapid progress in civilization. This is borne out by the statements of Major S. A. Allen, the reservation agent, who says that while fully 75 per cent of the reservation Indians are full blood, 65 per cent of them have become agriculturists and have proved themselves thrifty and fairly successful as farmers.

There are about 2000 redskins on the reservation, which is eighty miles long and forty miles wide. Of this amount of land the Indians have been allotted about 400,000 acres, while the remainder is now in the hands of the whites.

From this land the Indians this year raised approximately 100,000 bushels of wheat, 78,000 bushels of oats, 10,000 bushels of corn and 4000 bushels of flax. Their fair, held during three days of October, will compare favorably with any white man's county fair in South Dakota. Included in the exhibits were ninety exhibits of small grain, forty of corn and a large number of vegetables. In addition fine showings were made of cattle, horses, hogs, sheep, chickens and other products of the farm.

There are thirteen churches on the reservation, the Episcopal, Presbyterian and Catholic denominations predominating. During the last two years 125 good farmhouses have been built. The Indians are in the main virtuous, self-respecting and show a remarkable affinity for civilization, the only drawback to their advancement, according to Major Allen, being their fondness for liquor, which is sometimes supplied them by bootleggers despite the most strenuous efforts of the government to keep the liquor dispensers out of reach of the Indians.—Omaha Bee.

Ben Franklin Residence

PHILADELPHIA.—Among the many historic structures in Philadelphia there is perhaps not one which holds more interest for those bent on historic research than the property known as the Franklin residence, located in an out-of-the-way cul de sac formed by Spring street west of Front. Because of its odd location, the house, which seems without question to have once been the residence of Benjamin Franklin, is rarely visited by sightseers, and few know of its existence. Years ago houses began to spring up around the now historic building until today it stands surrounded on every side by tenements and dwellings.

There is only one way to reach the door of this old structure, and unless one is given explicit directions great difficulty would be experienced in the search. Spring street, a small thoroughfare north of Race street, runs about two hundred feet north of Front street, and then is blocked off from Second street by a property. At the extreme end of Spring street there is a small alley running about fifty feet north called Augusta Place, and it is on the west side of Augusta Place that the Franklin residence is located.

SOLD AT SHERIFF'S SALE.

The property is now owned by the widow of Philip Griffith, who bought it in 1868 from John Roberts and John Shipley, who had purchased it at a sheriff's sale about eight years previously. Though the historical societies have records to show that it was once occupied by tthe great Franklin, the property is one of the few scheduled in the list of historic structures concerning which there is little written history, but it is supposed to have been occupied by the famous philosopher about 1790.

The property has been changed but little during the past seventy-five years, and stands the same as when it was occupied by the great Franklin years ago.

SURROUNDED BY CIVILIZATION

The interior is identically the same as it was at that time, the wood work never having been changed and in no way has the property been modernized.

Dwellings have sprung up all around the old house, and as the years passed have sunk into decay, but not so with the Franklin house. Built substantially, it has defied the ravages of time, and today it stands one of the most substantial residences in the neighborhood.

THE HOUSE.

The bricks have worn away to some extent, but the plaster between them still holds firm and gives promise of lasting many years. There are five rooms in the house—two each on the first and second floors and one large room on the third floor. The shutters on the first floor windows have been changed recently, but on the second story the old shutters remain and they are the only part of the house which show any amount of decay. Unlike the other houses in the vicinity, the window panes are small, for, although the glass has been changed many times, the sashes are the same that were used at the time that Franklin made his home there.

When the house was first built it was several feet above the street level and was approached by a series of several mable steps. Years ago the street was raised, and at present the house stands almost flush with the street. The north side of the property is devoid of windows, for when it was first built it was one of a row, of which the other houses having long since been torn down.

MACHINERY BREATHES

An English writer on engineering subjects, Mervyn O'Gorman, calls attention to the fact that a piece of machinery, such as an automobile, laid aside after being used, is in danger of internal rusting through a kind of respiration which affects cylinders, gear boxes, clutch chambers, interspaces in ball bearings, and so forth.

Every enclosed air space "breathes" by drawing in air when a fall of temperature contracts its walls, and expelling it when the walls expand through heat. The moisture introduced with the air is deposited in the cavities, and may produce serious damage through rust. The popular belief that oil will protect the inaccessible parts of unused machinery is fallacious, since nearly all oils take up about 3 per cent of water in solution.—Youth's Companion.

Making Electricity Work

E. B. Miner lives on a farm near Oriskany Falls, Oneida county, N. Y. When he moved to the farm he noticed that Oriskany creek, if dammed at a certain place, would produce a six-foot waterfall. He built a dam and put in a water wheel—a $300 turbine that yielded twenty-five horsepower. Over the water wheel he built a power-house in which he placed a dynamo for the water wheel to run. The electricity was wired 1700 feet to the farm buildings.

Mr. Miner had imagination. He put his electricity to work in every possible place about the premises. He heated and lighted the house with electricity; did the cooking with electricity; and the washing and ironing with electricity; did the sweeping and dusting with electricity; beat eggs—and at three different speeds, too—with electricity; turned the ice-cream freezer with electricity, and, in summer, ventilated the house with electric fans.

Nor is that all. Electricity, working through a vacuum milking machine, milks twenty cows, two at a time; drives the cream separator; churns; pumps water into every room in the house and into the stall of each horse and cow; drives lathes and drills in a workshop; drives a circular saw to cut cordwood; drives an ensilage cutter. The water wheel and the dynamo run weeks at a time without attention. Rather than be bothered to go to the wheelhouse and shut off the water, Mr. Miner installed a device that causes the current, when not in use, to enter resistance coils, from which it is dissipated in the form of heat.—Delineator.

SECTION OF STRIKING MINERS CAMP

STRIKING MINER AND HIS FAMILY

Pennsylvania's soft coal miners, gathered in tents on the hill sides look square into the eyes of starvation and exposure that unionism may live. Fight for life and principle under conditions that seem incredible.

Up in the hills of Westmoreland county in Pennsylvania two thousand men, women and children are starving and freezing for a principle.

They are the striking miners and their families of the Keystone state's rich soft coal fields and they are enduring the lowest of human misery for the cause of unionism.

Thanksgiving, New Year's and Christmas passed by them unheeded. The New Year means nothing to them but a hopeless continuation of their woe and suffering. They have ceased to reckon time by the calendar. Life now is measured from the beginning of their desolation—the beginning of their fight, a strike for a cause, which occurred on March 12, 1910.

There are but few mortals but to whom the new child of time brought some solace, some gleam of hope, but not so these denizens of the world underground who are now living on the hillsides. They have no hope and yet they look starvation and death from exposure square in the face and keep on existing—for a principle.

CONSIDERS COMMISSION

It is true that Governor Edwin Stuart of Pennsylvania has considered the advisability of appointing a commission to investigate the inhuman conditions, but legal agencies require a long time to act, if they act at all, and immediate succor is needed.

The appeal for a commission was made to the governor by President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor. President Gompers informed the governor that the distress among the strikers is almost unbelievable. Thousands of men, women and children, he declared, are facing the winter's rigors in tents on the hills without food, with insufficient clothing and no fuel.

Both strikers and coal operators are determined, he asserted, to fight the battle to a finish. There must be a truce, he urged, or the potter's field would claim hundreds.

STORY OF MISERY

The history of the strike is a story of misery and poverty, of body-chilling and heart-breaking distress. It is a story of men, women and children who have no shelter from wind and snow except the thin protection of leaky tents. It is a story of babies of the white race born under conditions infinitely more heart breaking than those that attended the birth in the manger. It is a story of the sick for whom there is no medicine, of empty stomachs for which there is no food. It is a story of suffering in that bitterest of wars—a conflict between capital and labor.

Under the feet of these hill dwellers are thick veins of warmth giving coal enough to keep warm all the poor of the nation for years to come. Yet the babies and women poorly clothed hover carefully over tiny fires, for fuel is precious and must not be wasted.

Around them are barns fairly bursting with the wealth of the summer fields. But the strikers own neither the fields nor the harvests. Nothing is theirs but the right to live—if they can.

In the mud and snow, shivering by night and seeking the warmth of the sun by day, they are waiting and enduring, determined not to give way in their fight for what they believe is their right. And they have waited thus for ten months.

HUNGER AND PAIN

Hunger, pain and distress as painted in the messages sent out from this stricken region are not at all the same things as the hunger, pain and distress that are met face to face on the hills and in the valleys.

It seems incredible that there should be found in this country people living under such conditions as surround the tented settlements which dot the hillsides.

How these people managed to live at all through the long summer months seems a marvel when the story of their privations is learned. How they are surviving the bitter cold with the snow inches deep is a matter of amazement.

But the most surprising feature of all to the stranger among these people is the good spirit, the unshaken determination and courage, the willingness of both men and women to bear hardship and hunger which they show after long months of famine.

ONCE WERE 17,000

Originally there were 17,000 of the strikers and their families living on the hillsides. Work for 10,000 of these was found by the union in other coal mining fields. Of the remainder many have mere houses, but the work of building shacks was stopped by the advent of Arctic weather. As a result hundreds are forced to brave the open, exposed to every wind and storm. It is bitter cold. There is no hope now of obtaining shelter proper for human beings.

The warfare in which these shivering men and women are playing so heroic and remarkable parts has been one of the bitterest in the history of the soft coal fields. From the beginning both sides have regarded the struggle as a fight to a finish. Neither side has asked for quarter, neither has given it.

On the one side has been the well-filled purse and on the other the empty stomach.

More than a dozen men have been killed in clashes. A hundred have been more or less severely wounded. Many have been indicted for crimes more or less serious. Many have been fined and a number sent to prison.

UNIMPORTANT DISPUTE.

From a comparatively unimportant dispute over wages the great strike in the contest has become whether Westmoreland county is to be unionized or whether union labor is to be cut out of the mines.

Half a dozen companies own these mines, all operating under different managements. Through the intermarriage of some of the wealthy families, however, the larger of these concerns have come under the control of a comparatively small circle of men bound together by relationship and common interests, so that the strikers have opposed to them a powerful organization as united in purpose as their own.

Hardly had the miners walked out of the mine last March before agents of the operators notified the tenants in the company houses that they must move in five days. Almost without exception the strikers were tenants. Few of them had money laid by. When the five day limit expired those strikers who had not complied with the order were put out under the company's legal rights.

FEW HOUSES RENTED

There are comparatively few houses in that part of the country which can be rented at any time. Most of the settlements consist of company houses, little two-family structures which rent for from $14 to $16 a month.

Those strikers who have sufficient money to rent a house declare that when they went to engage one they found some person had leased all the vacant houses within miles of the mines. They were not only evicted from their homes, but all houses were barred to them. Only the fields and the mountain sides were left.

The men obtained tents and the United Mine Workers sent them more tents. They took to the hills. Many weakened and succumbing to sickness have died since that time. The storms of winter have beat down upon the tents and cold winds pierce through the cloth walls and tear the flappings from the pegs. The children, barefooted in many instances, trot around the tents in snow inches deep.

Inside the tents are improvised beds covered with straw mattresses. Folded back on top are piles of bags and old garments which are used for bed covers. The canvas is in most cases rotten, and every time it snows the white flakes drift in on the inside.

The furniture in most instances consists of a bed or two, a table, a few dishes, a small stove and a bench. Under these conditions somehow six and seven members of a family live, eat and sleep.

The strikers are not stupid or stolid. On the contrary most of them seem intelligent. They appear to be of a high type of peasant immigration.

The demands for which they are suffering the keenest privations are recognition of the union, a signed agreement establishing a scale of wages equally as high as those in the Pittsburg district a few miles away, and the right to have a check weighman of their own choosing on the tipple when the coal is weighed.

WILLING TO SUBMIT

They are willing to submit all these demands to arbitration. The coal companies thus far have refused to consider any of the demands.

With regard to the charges which the miners make that the cars have gradually been enlarged while the pay for each carload of coal mined has remained the same, Miss Dougherty, one of the leaders, tells this parable:

"Once there lived in the forests of Pennsylvania an acorn, and the acorn took root and grew into a sapling. The sapling grew into a big tree. Along came the woodman and cut it down and the tree grew into lumber. Then the lumber grew into coal cars, and the cars have been growing ever since until you can't find the bottom of them now."

The miners on the hillsides and their wives and children say the bottom of those cars must be found, and so they starve and freeze for a principle.

Custom of Kissing Under the Mistletoe and What History Says of It

The custom of kissing under the mistletoe goes back to the days when Thor and Odin and all the other gods of Northland walked and talked with men.

Baldur, the son of Odin and Frigga, the Apollo of Scandinavian mythology, the flaxen haired god of sunshine and its attendant blessings, was loved by all earthly and heavenly beings save one—Loki, the god of earthly fire and its attendant evils.

Naturally Loki would hate him, for in the spring when Baldur came forth with his bright and warm sunlight the world's people deserted Loki's hearth fires and did not return to them until the golden faced god chose to depart in the fall. But Baldur with his happy nature cared little for the others' jealousy, and in the love of his wife Nanna blossomed [illegible] for years a joyous existence.

At length, however, says a writer in Uncle Remus's Magazine, he began to have troubled dreams, visions of a mysterious end of death. What could it mean? It was all so new to him, his love of light and pleasure. He consulted the mother Frigga and she in her distress sent word to Odin.

Long Frigga thought and then she devised a plan. She sent messengers far and wide through the universe and bid every creature animate and inanimate swear to do her son no harm. Willingly all promised, for did not all love the sunlight god? All? No, the surly mistletoe refused to swear, and that was the cause of great future sorrow. But what injury could a bit of mistletoe do? Frigga was all joy, her darling was safe from anything sprung from earth, air, fire or water.

Now as the years passed and the gods learned how absolutely safe Baldur was from any wound whatever, they frequently amused themselves by using him for a target for all sorts of missiles—stones, clubs and weapons. One day as they were playing thus and shouting with laughter at their failure, Frigga, sitting at her spinning wheel, asked an old woman who was passing what was the cause of all the merriment.

"The gods," answered the old woman, "are amusing themselves trying to hurt your son."

"Ah," said Frigga with a boastful smile, "they can never do it, for all things have promised not to harm him."

"All things?" inquired the old woman.

"Yes, all things except the frail mistletoe, who of course is too insignificant to trouble any one." The old woman was Loki in disguise.

Hastening away, the evil god went straight to the mistletoe that grew on the oak outside the gates of Valhalla and breaking off a piece turned it by magic art into a hard, sharp dart. Then hurrying back he found the gods still playing the game—all except Baldur's blind brother Hodur, who leaned gloomily against a tree and listened in silence to the laughter.

"Why do you not play, Hodur?" said Loki.

"How can I?" answered Hodur. "Am I not blind?"

"Ah," laughed Loki, "I will show you how. Stand thus and throw this dart with all your strength."

The mistletoe shaft passed through the air and Baldur, the god of life-giving light, fell dead.

Tenderly the guard placed his body upon his favorite ship, the Ringhorn, and prepared to give both to the sea. Then all the heavenly ones came to gaze upon the beloved face, but Nanna, bending over him, could not bear the sight and her heart broke and she was laid beside him on the vessel. Then the great ship was set afire and floated, a sheet of flame, out on the distant waters. And even yet we may see at sunset the burning vessel of Baldur far in the west.

Now the guards felt that some show of justice must be made, and in conciliation, hoping to soothe the passionate sorrow of the mother Frigga, they dedicated the mistletoe to her and to this day it is under her care and control. And now she and sorrow had hallowed it, for henceforth it was to grow no more as a symbol of bitterness and hatred, but as a sign of tenderness and love.

But the gods decreed that it was to stand for these things only so long as it touched not Loki's kingdom, the soil, and for this reason it is never seen growing on the ground, and we ourselves always hang it high on the rafters or chandeliers. And now that it was the plant of love, the custom arose for enemies to become friends under it, for lovers to pledge their troth beneath it, and for those who met there to kiss as a sign of affectionate fellowship.

∴ What Americans of the Present Day Read ∴

A summary of the tendencies in book publishing at any one season of any particular year must necessarily be limited. It does, however, generally reflect certain book publishing and book reading tendencies which are more or less indicative of a permanent trend. It has been the custom of this Review to give in its December number brief informational notes about the most representative and important serious books of the season. In the informational paragraphs that follow there will be noted an increasing tendency among the longer established publishing houses to increase the number of titles of works of biography and reminiscences and those devoted to travel and description. One of the most successful booksellers of New York recently remarked that the increasing interest in books of biography and memoirs is one of the striking signs of the times in the reading world.

The year just about closing has been marked by the publication of an unusually large number of noteworthy works of the nature referred to above. In our January number we had something to say about Lieut. Shackleton's book "The Heart of the Antarctic." This had been brought out some weeks before but it reached the public and its reviewers in the early days of 1910. Then came Dr. Sven Hedin's "Trans-Himalaya," A. Radclyffe Dugmore's "Camera Adventures in the African Wilds," Commander Peary's "North Pole" and Mr. Roosevelt's "African Game Trails." Among the notable biographers and volumes and memoirs and reminiscences which appeared during the year and were duly noted in these pages were "The Journals of Ralph Waldo Emerson," the lives of Richard Brinsley Sheridan and Edward Bulwer, the "Recollections of George Cary Eggleston" and the regular standard biographies of Senator Orville H. Platt and Dr. Daniel Coit Gilman, the "Life and Letters of Josiah Dwight Whitney," a new biography of Karl Marx, the "Intimate Life of Alexander Hamilton," a biographical study of Moliere and "A Sailor's Log" by Admiral "Bob" Evans. Still another notable biography which we noticed in these pages was published in Spain and translated into English, the reminiscences of Capt.-Gen. Weyler. This month we mention an unusual number of important works of this character. It is indeed an unusual season that sees the publication of so many and such important books about people as the memoirs of Modjeska, or Rosa Bonheur, of Alexander H. Stephens, of Jane Addams and Elihu Vedder, as well as the scholarly and entertainingly written biographies of the late Leopold II, King of the Belgians, of Cecil Rhodes, of Edmund Clarence Stedman, of Grover Cleveland, of Thomas Edison, of Goldwin Smith, of Fiona Macleod and of Lewis Carroll, and the "authorized" biography of Count Tolstoy.

The publication of several notable histories was continued during the year. These included the third volume of Dr. Jusserand's "Literary History of the English People," the seventh volume of John B. McMaster's "History of the People of the United States" and several volumes of that monumental work, "The Documentary History of American Industrial Society." Full announcement was also made of the publication of the eleventh edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, which was first issued in 1768. Among works of general reference we had several volumes of the Schaff-Herzog [illegible] the [illegible] volume of Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians." [illegible] were [illegible] "Spirit [illegible] America," and Dr. Andrew D. White's "Seven Great Statesmen," Professor Percival Lowell's study of "The Evolution of Worlds," Hudson Maxim's "Science of Poetry" and the first volume of Prof. Hugo de Vries' monumental work, "The Mutation Theory" [illegible] the progress of scientific research.—Review of Reviews.

Here Is the Story of a Woman Who Built an Aeroplane

What next, O modern American woman? Will you attempt to go to Mars by special limited torpedo? Miss Julia Hoerner of St. Louis is making balloon flights in a determined effort to win the Lahm cup for the long distance record. Now comes Miss Lilian Todd of New York, who has just completed at Mineola, N. Y., an aeroplane, every distinctive feature of which she designed herself. And more to the point, Miss Todd intends to fly about in her own aeroplane as aviator.

Until her wrist muscles recover from the strain of overwork in helping to build her machine Miss Todd will get a member of the Junior Aero Club of America to act as her chauffeur, but just as soon as her hands are strong enough to operate the mechanism she will essay flights.

She may take up some men in her machine as a passenger for this smart aeroplane built for two, or she may invite Miss Hoerner to the honor of a place on her biplane, while all the other women and all the men except half a dozen or so will cling to solid earth and gaze in awe—many doubtless in admiration, some perhaps in scorn at the one woman who dares.

It is no sudden fancy or midwinter madness that has prompted Miss Todd in building the first aeroplane ever designed by a woman. She has grown up to the part. From childhood she has been an inventor, an investigator. Like the average boy, this girl wanted to see the wheels go round and she wanted to take the wheels off and see if she could put them on again, and thus learning how machinery was constructed.

As a child she began with weather vanes and mechanical dolls. Later she turned her talents to typewriters, clocks and sundials. Neighbors saved up their wornout clocks so that little Miss Todd might take them apart and put them together.

While experimenting in this way she also read many scientific works. She has studied in books and by practical object lessons the laws of equilibrium. Her aeroplane, she declares, is built upon scientific principles according to the laws of aerial flight and is no mere bungiesome toy or plaything like the many so-called aeroplanes that won [illegible] aero-[illegible]nate.

Miss Todd's ship of the air is thirty six feet long. Small flexible planes extend two feet at the ends at each end. Her machine may be called a triplane, because between the two superior planes is a central one needed for additional sustaining surface, the only motor she has been able to obtain in America being heavier than is desirable.

In all the framework the highest grade of selected spruce is used. Unbleached muslin of the finest quality is used to cover the upper side of the planes. The under sides, which are the sustaining surfaces, are covered with seven ounce army duck, the strongest material possible for the purpose.

An original feature in Miss Todd's aeroplane is the employment of curved planes. Miss Todd has departed from the flat plane. She studied the noble bird, the albatross, in the Metropolitan museum in New York and discovered that the outer edges of its wings are curved. She made the planes of her air vessel according to the albatross curve.

This, she says, makes for the stability of the machine. Instead of sweeping across the full surface of the planes a wind which might strike the end of a plane from below strikes downward. Miss Todd claims that her curved planes are scientifically essential to equilibrium. Whether her claim is warranted by the laws of physics remains of course to be proved or disproved by actual test.

The thing that stands out as distinctive in the newness of this thing of endeavor and achievement is that for the first time in the history of the world a woman has entered the lists with men in construction of a specimen of the highest and most scientific type of air craft, and, according to the opinions of persons who have paid special attention to the progress of aerial flight, has achieved a mechanism which gives promise of fairly successful competition with those of the men—the bolder, sterner and more daring sex—who are seeking to solve the problem of navigating the air upon a practical basis.

Easy to Be Clown, Declares Marceline

KANSAS CITY.—A visitor who wished to chat with Marceline cautiously felt his way among the scenery back of the stage at Convention Hall while the New York Hippodrome's performance was in progress. Marceline is foreman of a gang of ten clowns.

"Want to talk with me?" asked the clown in chief when the visitor found him. "What about?"

"About you. Do the boys who insist upon drawing funny pictures on their geographies grow up to be famous clowns? I suppose your geography was a fright—"

DIDN'T MARK HIS GEOGRAPHY

"Nix. Those who mark up their books finally grow up and make similar unreadable marks on large checks. Who do you think the 'White Man's Hope' will turn out to be? I think—"

"But about clowns. Did you ever want to play in dramas or anything?"

"No, I have dramatic talent, but—[illegible] when I started out I was eight. My old [illegible] act was of an acrobatic nature. As I grew older I found I could make a living just as easy by being tossed from one side of the stage to the other, landing gracefully on my left ear, [illegible] I could by aiming a pistol at the hero and saying 'At last I have you in my power.' The acrobatic act was a more healthy one, too. Do you think Battling Nelson is about played out? I think—"

A CLOWN IN EVENING CLOTHES

"But about clowns," the visitor suggested.

"Oh, yes—clowns. I am the first clown to wear evening clothes in my act. Why, I wouldn't trade places with the best villain that pulled at his false mustache. I do whatever I wish when I'm turned loose on the stage. You see, I've been a clown thirty years.

"From my experience as an acrobat I have no end of [illegible]. I change these [illegible] from time to time. Just before we left New York I injured my right knee while jumping over eight [illegible] who were on their hands and knees. It was a jump of about twenty [illegible]. I had to cut out that act. There's nothing like having a lot of stunts in reserve for emergencies. I stand on my head now without the aid of hands or feet. If something should happen to my head I could do a two-step on my elbow or a Highland fling with the left knee. You see I always give an ailment time to get well. There's nothing like variety, I tell you. What about Sam Langford? He might—"

But the visitor went away. He'd come to talk about clowns.

Windings of a Stream

There is a stream in this State called the North river. It starts in a pond near Hanson and runs to the sea at Scituate. It is ten miles by air line from Hanson to Scituate and the river is forty miles long.

This river is probably the most remarkable body of water barring the Dead Sea on this footstool and has stood more abuse and bad language than the Chicago river. When the tide is coming in the river runs up stream, and not only that, but the upper part of it, which is fresh water, also runs up, and the spectacle of a fresh water river beating it up hill is done enough to call attention to itself. But there is much more to it than that.

This North river is noted for being the scene of the first Indian raid on the coast settlements. It is notable for having given birth to the ship Columbia River, whose captain discovered and named the Columbia river and was the first American vessel to circumnavigate the world. It is notorious for having suddenly changed its mind on its course on the night of November 27, 1899, when it moved its mouth three miles to the northward, presented the town of Marshfield with a deep harbor, killed three men and converted about 200,000 acres of prime meadow land into a salt marsh.

But the chief thing about this river is its crookedness. This river is so crooked that it double crosses itself. If you don't believe it go and see. There is one place in Hanover where by rowing [illegible] the river moves toward the sea for a distance of almost five feet only and is about fifteen miles in doing it.—Boston Traveler.

Gossip About Makers of Books and Their Work

By Mollie E. Conners

Dodd, Mead & Co., have published one of the important books of the year in "A Diplomatist's Wife in Many Lands," written by Mrs. Hugh Fraser, a sister of the late novelist, F. Marion Crawford.

The first volume deals with the writer's life in Rome, and the second volume describes life and society in Europe, the Orient and South America during twenty eventful years, the author's husband, Hugh Fraser, being one of the noted diplomats of his time.

A great charm of the book will, of course, be for many readers Mrs. Fraser's reminiscences of her brother, Marion Crawford, one of the most distinguished story tellers of his day. We may admire Dickens and Thackeray, but they belong to another generation, to that of our mothers and grandmothers. F. Marion Crawford has been a novelist of our own time, and we have watched his literary development with interest and a new book from his pen, has marked eventful hours in our lives. One might quote whole columns at once from this thoroughly readable book and much light is thrown on Crawford's early days.

"When he was twelve years old he was sent to America to study at St. Paul's school, Concord, where the head master was an old friend of his mother's. After three years at St. Paul's he went to England to prepare for Cambridge University, and spent some time with a tutor in Essex. The life in Essex furnished the material for one of his early novels 'The Tale of a Lonely Parish.' Crawford said once to his sister 'England is the most romantic country in the world. Anything could happen in those lonely old country houses, lost in a dip of the moors, miles away from the beaten roads. No Eastern despot has finer opportunities for autocracy than an ordinary English squire.'

The wonderful novels of the Saracinesca are the books by which Crawford will be longest remembered.

ABRUZZI DISTRICT

"In Italy, Marion Crawford was very fond of the wild Abruzzi district which he afterward described so vividly in Saracinesca. In order to become thoroughly acquainted with the people's ways he dressed as one of them and wandered about in the mountains for a whole month, leading a mule laden with sacks of beans, which he sold to the peasants. They thought he was a peddler from Rome, and never dreamed that he could speak any dialect but the broad lingua Romana."

From Mrs. Fraser's account Marion Crawford's career at Cambridge must have resembled that of Mr. Arthur Pendennis at Oxford. "At Cambridge she tells us he did not have the reputation of an ardent student, but he enjoyed himself immensely. That term 'intense' was one which was being constantly applied to him by his fellow students and at last he thought he might as well show people what it meant. He hunted for the biggest trotting horse he could find, had a towering dog cart built, dressed himself in checks a foot square and of outrageous colors and thus equipped paraded the dignified University town to the scandal of the authorities and the joy of his fellows.

CLOCK ON DOG CHAIN

He had a clock, a French gimcrack exactly imitating a watch, and having instructed his tailor to make a pocket large enough to hold it he attached it to a big dog chain, the links of which dangled ostentatiously across his waistcoat. One day in the train a facetious stranger glancing at this ornament asked him the time. When Marion pulled out a watch two inches thick and as big round as a musk melon the joker turned white. He thought he was shut in with a maniac and rushed from the carriage at the next stop. Heavy money losses came upon the Crawford family and Marion was obliged to return to Rome and take up the problem of carving out an independence."

Later Mrs. Fraser writes:

"The story of how 'Mr. Isaacs' came to be written is too well known to bear repetition. But there is an odd incident in the history of the novel," she says, "which is less well known. Marion wrote it in a few weeks and sent it to Macmillan and then forgot all about the manuscript. For three months had passed and no notice was taken of it. Years afterward when, as Henry James once remarked, Marion was 'meat and drink and lodgings' to publishers, he was shown a letter from John Morley who had been a reader for Macmillan. He classed 'Mr. Isaacs' as a work which would never be popular. It would not pay well. But he advocated its production, saying that it was original and well written and would do a respectable publishing house no harm."

Mrs. Fraser pays high tribute to her brother's thoroughness. "He was so scrupulous," she says, "that he would not write about any subject of which he had not practically mastered the details. 'A Roman Singer' was the outcome of years of familiarity with the musical life of Rome. For 'Marietta, a Maid of Venice' he went into the mysteries of Venetian glass work on the spot.

For 'Marzio's Crucifix' he became a silversmith, making his own designs and beating them out of the metal in classic form. To write 'The Witch of Prague' he went and lived in that city and learned Bohemian. It was the seventeenth language he had acquired."

"I do not know how many were added to this afterward," writes Mrs. Fraser. "Slav and Scandinavian, Persian and Arabic, Latin and Teutonic tongues—he possessed them all and I remember his telling me gravely that any one ought to be able to learn a new language in six weeks."

Mrs. Fraser's descriptions of her life in many lands are charming and she has made a most delightful contribution to the world of literature.

ALONG UNIQUE LINES

In fact all the "reminiscences" which characterize so much of the Christmas literature have been along truly unique and original lines. The Reminiscences of Rosa Bonheur is very ably edited by Theodore Stanton. One finds many of Rosa Bonheur's letters and they seem to have been exceedingly well chosen. The Bonheur ancestors for three generations were cooks, but Rosa's father had a talent for drawing. One reads of her:

"Her growing love for animals soon turned their home into a Noah's ark. When she was about twenty three she began to work in the slaughter houses. 'To be loved by animals,' she said, 'one must love them.' She had a mare that would rear up, put its hoof on her shoulders, kiss her, then actually follow her up stairs. When she went to Paris or out in society she always wore a black silk gown and cloak. She was very proud of her hands and even coquettish about them. There was no posing about her adoption of trousers, it was simply for convenience, and occasionally for protection. These and tobacco were offset by a taste for dancing and music. No money offer could ever hasten her; she had excessive modesty about her work and made her customers wait long for canvases practically finished. Her dominating qualities were honesty, candor and uprightness, her nature was serious and meditative, and all the country side adored her."

TELLS OF HOLY LAND.

"The Holy Land" is one of the most beautiful books that has appeared in many months. The word sketches are by Robert W. Hichens, whose color work was so magnificently done in his splendid novel, "The Garden of Allah."

Mr. Hichens wrote the text and the pictures are by Jules Guerin. There are eighteen pictures by this notable painter, and many good photographs besides.

Mr. Hichens entered the Holy Land by way of Baalbec. "It is still unique in Syria, thoroughly oriental, and even the trams do not interfere with the atmosphere of the East. In no other town are so many alluring displays of food and the butcher and baker and confectioner are coquettishly clever in arranging their wares.

"The essence of its wonderful charm is that it is a garden city touched by the great desert, under its roses one feels the sands."

One reads of the descriptions in this book:

"The calm of Galilee on a spring morning is like no other calm, gentler and sweeter than that of the desert. It is as you drew near to God the Son. Everywhere there is beauty, touching and exquisite. The approach to Jerusalem is inhospitable, sterile and cruel. One wonders why a great city should ever have been built on such a site. The beauty of the mountains of Moab is in [illegible] Jerusalem is an austere city on sterile hills. And in this Holy Land you pass from one world to another with bewildering swiftness."

The local color in the descriptions is wonderfully done. It is characteristic of Hichens' best work, but here is added a tone of reverence haunted with wistfulness and the pathos of what the civilizations have made of the footsteps of Christ.

LONGEST STORY

"John Winterbourne's Family" (Houghton Mifflin & Co.) is Miss Alice Brown's longest story.

It is a little difficult to call it a story. Its pages are so overloaded with conversation that it is almost impossible to see the movement of any plot. In fact the situations which are developed are in many cases beyond reconciliation with life as most of us know it. A middle aged man who has divided his property with his wife and is living in gorgeous rustic simplicity suddenly finds himself repossessed of his wife minus a fortune plus two adopted young women daughters. How against his will he finally adjusts himself to the new situation, how the girls, one of whom is the very representative of artificial repression and the other of natural woman, find themselves married, and how he [illegible] readjusts himself to the changed order of things [illegible] relations with his wife until finally she disappears in Europe with the suggestion [illegible] hope of speedy [illegible] is told by Miss Brown with altogether too long conversations. And yet out from the midst of impossible situations, Greek mythologies and expositions of the futility of uplift of women, there emerge three or four very distinct characters whom it is a pleasure to meet. These characters it is which justify the book in its claim upon the reader's attention for they show Miss Brown's undoubted ability to make the people of fiction actually alive.

LEANS TOWARD ARCHITECTURE

Meredith Nicholson has always shown a leaning toward architecture as witness his "House of a Thousand Candles." In his fantasy "The Siege of the Seven Suitors" (Houghton Mifflin Co.) he introduces us to still another great house with its mysterious passages. The story itself has a freshness and originality thoroughly engaging. The plot is quite outside the region of actual life and constitutes a sort of plea for itself in that it seeks to justify a play spirit that is supposed to belong to the so called ages of romance. A charming young girl undertakes through various compulsions to marry the seventh man who proposes to her. Whether or not this was really in Mr. Nicholson's mind when he began the story, the plot in the latter half of the book swings around in the effort to make sure the seventh man is the right man, but the piece de resistance of the book is an undoubtedly [illegible] maiden aunt who at the age of sixty determines to break loose from conventionality and enjoy untrammeled life.

"THE SIEGE OF THE SEVEN SUITORS"

"The Siege of the Seven Suitors" we have again a situation dependent upon the eccentricities of one of the characters. There is a certain old lady whose [illegible] are so extraordinary as to be almost unbalanced, yet the reader suspects very early in the proceedings that she is only mad when the wind is nor'-west, and that when it is in other quarters she is a dangerous and shrewd old person. The number Seven is one of her delusions. Her first meeting with the hero in a Raphaelite tea-room is due to the fact that the tea-room is the seventh door from the corner and his table the seventh from the door. Incidentally it may be said that this old lady, with her youthful briskness, her contempt for other people's fads, her amazing contradictions and vagaries and [illegible] is a keen and refreshing joy. The underlying machinery of the book, the two attractive nieces, one of whom is kept in the background while the other undergoes the siege of a band of persistent suitors whom the aunt has limited to the mystic number of seven, a house brimful of mystery and ghostly magic wherein there is a chimney that behaves itself quite as a chimney should throughout the greater part of the time but regularly begins to smoke violently whenever one of the suitors starts to propose—all of this is carried out with that happy mixture of seriousness and burlesque which the general public seems to like and of which the author of "The House of a Thousand Candles" has triumphantly learned the trick. "The Siege of the Seven Suitors" may quite honestly be pronounced as a piece of extreme cleverness, and not the least reason for this judgment is the fact that while it is well calculated to satisfy the readers of Mr. Nicholson's other volumes, it contains, here and there in a few of his characters something a little finer, more unique and altogether better worth while than anything he has previously done.

IN LONDON "QUARTER"

Elizabeth Robins Pennell has done for the London "quarter" what many have done for the Paris 'Latin quarter.' "Our House and the People In It" is just a rarely kindly, bright description of such people as "Enrietter"—and anyone who has roomed in London will recognize the woman—the beggars, the tenants and the other people who make the real life of the dirty old city. These kindly studies in personality are worthy of the handsome clothes in which the publishers dressed them.

The old and the new are skilfully woven together in Mary F. Nixon Roulet's "The Spaniard at Home." She tells much about Spain but more about the Spaniard. The homes of the people, their intimate family life, customs and ideas are described as by a friend. She takes you along the streets to church, to market, opera and games. Many good sketches and photographs make this charmingly written book a valuable and interesting addition to a library on Spain.

One is so proud of California that praise for a California writer goes to one's heart. A recent critic says of Jack London's "Burning Daylight":

"When you come right down to it the majority of our great books have been only melodramas handled with gloves. The man whose novel described Life as it really is would be declared impossible. Not because it is different from real life but because it is different from the real life as pictured in other books. It is perhaps just as well after all, for without the exaggerations and impossibilities of fiction existence would become even more practical and prosaic than it is. For that reason we should welcome Jack London's 'Burning Daylight' (Macmillan), praising it for its strength and pardoning its improbabilities. Not since 'The Sea Wolf' has London written so powerful and stirring a tale. 'Burning Daylight,' the giant with an abnormal brain whose masterful personality masses him a leader of men, is a creation at which even Nietzsche would not have scoffed. His [illegible] strength and almost [illegible] ruthlessness make him fame and fortune in the Klondike, and when he goes to San Francisco and bucks the game of high finance his pile grows to thirty millions or more. For a time the money lust has Daylight bound [illegible] it is too late and gladly sacrifices his riches when it means the winning of the [illegible] he has learned to love."

ROSE IN THE RING

"The Rose in the Ring" (Dodd, Mead & Company) is the latest book of George Barr McCutcheon. Of this new story one reads:

Mr. McCutcheon [illegible] steeped in the very spirit of Romance with a [illegible] David Jennison, the young Virginian who comes faring over the mountains, is just the handsome [illegible] McCutcheon loves to draw. And the Rose—well, she is just as sweet and brave and fascinating, just as absolutely satisfying [illegible] the Princess Yetive [illegible] of her predecessors. The Rose is a bareback rider and David [illegible] they meet at a circus where she is a star equestrienne and he becomes a [illegible] There are intrigues and [illegible] blows given and taken, dangers [illegible] perils, misunderstandings lived through [illegible] it is all so permeated with the humor, the sentiment and the [illegible] rush of story telling which have made the author famous that the reader can [illegible] as he settles down to read it with a [illegible] of content. "HEAP BIG HUNTER"

Emerson Hough, the author of "The Purchase Price," is a heap big hunter. He has the scalps of more than a dozen bears to his credit. The Chicago Record-Herald said not long ago that he was going to Africa like T. R. for big game. But it's really Asia that Mr. Hough has his eye on. In the northeast corner of China there is a particular kind of long haired tiger in which he is very much interested.

Mr. Hough has however found plenty of sport in this continent. He has hunted bear in all the Rockies from Mexico to Alaska and has fished pretty much all the waters between those extremes.

He is a crack shot with a rifle or shot gun. He has never allowed any one to know whether or not he is a good shot with a six shooter and carefully refrains from shooting at a mark with that weapon. He has often been asked whether he ever had personal trouble any place in the West and he is very shy about answering that question also. As to the West being tough he holds that it never was as dangerous as the large cities are now.

WANDERING LIFE

In "Ups and Downs of a Wandering Life" Walter Seymour, an Englishman, tells the story of his adventures in various parts of the world. He has knocked around in the Argentine, Paraguay, Italy and Palestine, Australia, [illegible] and other unfamiliar places, mixing a little business with a good deal of fun and his book which he has just published is said to be full of adventure and amusing incidents.

"Patty's Success" (Dodd, Mead & Co.) is by Carolyn Wells, author of "Patty Fairfield."

Patty's success really began seven years ago with the publication of a new girl's book called "Patty Fairfield." Patty was so successful in making a great many friends that the next year Miss Wells wrote a second volume about her. The new book was popular and the old book retained its popularity. And ever since it has been the history of this very bright, very charming and very successful series that the new volumes are popular and the old ones retain their popularity. By now it is an established fact that the "Patty" books are here to stay.

It is said that Miss Wells before beginning a new book purchases a five pound box of candy and a bottle of red ink. When the box is empty and the bottle of ink exhausted the story is ready for the publisher. At all events the manuscript of each new Marjorie story arrives in an empty candy box and furnishes far more delight and entertainment to hundreds of little girls than could a vast amount of candy.

IN EIGHTY-FOURTH YEAR HE HAS FIRST DOCTOR

WINSTED, Conn., Jan. 7.—Thomas Elmere, who is in his eighty-fourth year, has just had a doctor for the first time in his life, but against his wishes. He was suffering with a severe cold and was threatened with pneumonia when a few days ago friends found him in bed in his home, on the old Co ebrock road, with no fire in the house. He objected when told that he must have a physician, saying he had never had one all his life and he did not intend to start at this late day.

Dr. W. S. Richards was sent to his home, however, and the aged man finally agreed to take the medicine that was prescribed for him. He is now recovering. Elmere is an old railroad conductor, who used to live in New York with his son Benjamin, a Pullman conductor running between New York and Boston.

Elmere was in charge of a special Hartford & Connecticut Western train which while returning from a Moody and Sankey meeting in Harhford in the 70's, plunged through a trestle at T riffville, nearly a score of persons being killed in the wreck.

GRANTED LEAVE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Captain R. F. Woods, coast artillery corps, Presidio of San Francisco, has been granted two months' leave of absence effective upon his being relieved from recruiting duty.

SUES LANDLADY FOR MORE HOT WATER

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—Dr. Joseph J. Currie, a dentist of Jamaica Plain, has appealed to Judge Hitchcock in the superior civil court, asking the judge to make his landlady, Charlotte L. Mair, allow him all the hot and cold water he wants, sufficient heat and not to interfere with him or his patients by locking the front door to the house.

Charlotte Mair lives directly above Dr. Currie, who, in his bill asking for an injunction, says that his practice has been hurt and his health injured by the way his landlady has treated him. He says that she has turned off the hot and cold water and the heat many times when he needed them in his business. Judge Hitchcock granted a preliminary injunction.

MAKES CUT IN STATE FORESTS

President Taft Eliminates 167,608 Acres From Shasta Land.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The President has signed a proclamation eliminating 167,608 acres from the Shasta National Forest, California, and adding 26,787 acres. At the same time, for greater convenience of administration, 30,227 acres were transferred from the Shasta to the Trinity National Forest. These changes are the result of a careful field examination made by the United States Department of Agriculture in pursuance of a general plan for the correction of all national forest boundaries.

The eliminations comprise lands adjacent to nearly all portions of the exterior boundaries, which have been found either to be not chiefly valuable for national forest purposes or to be so heavily alienated that their administration by the forest service is impracticable.

The additions comprise many small tracts of vacant public lands found to be chiefly valuable for timber. The area transferred to the Trinity lies east of the Trinity river adjacent to the extreme southwestern portion of the Shasta forest.

The unappropriated portions of the lands eliminated by this proclamation will be restored to settlement and entry after they shall have been advertised in the local papers by the Secretary of the Interior.

MAJORS TRANSFERRED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Major Samuel W. Dunnin has been transferred from the Twentieth infantry to the Seventh infantry. Major William P. Burnham is transferred from the Seventh to the Twentieth infantry.

BIG ALLIGATOR ATTACKS TRAINER

The Reptile Goes On Rampage, Snaps Victim's Leg and Strikes With Tail.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—"Custy," a seven-foot alligator which is being exhibited in a local music hall went on the rampage and attacked his trainer, Bert Swam.

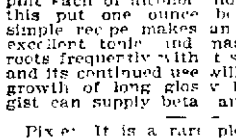
Several swipes from the horny tail of the beast and the snap of his jaws on the leg of the victim sent the stage hands scurrying to the showman's assistance. They pried Custy loose and a surgeon sewed up Swan's wounds. He found, in addition to several cuts about the arms, legs and body, a deep open gash across the scalp.

USES NEW HATCHET ON WOODEN PONY

PITTSBURG, Jan. 7.—Henry Faulkner, 5 years old, expected a real Shetland pony of Santa Claus, whom he saw on a street corner. Instead he got a bright red hobby horse. Among other presents was a keen-edged hatchet.

He was up Christmas before the rest of the family. He gazed at the Christmas tree, then at his pony and immediately the hatchet was put into action.

He hacked at the tree until its beauty lay spread upon the floor. He turned upon the "pony," and soon it lay in chips and splinters. Then he sat down and cried, because Santa Claus didn't know the difference between a pony and a hobby horse.



Little Home Helps On How to Be Beautiful

By MADAME MAREE.

FOR A ROSE-TONED COMPLEXION

Beautiful complexions are ruined through excessive use of powder, whose minute particles clog pores, causing blackheads and pimply eruptions, while the delicate tissues are aggravated and a rough, blotchy, unhealthy condition follows. A reliable massage cream is essential to free the pores and skin's surface from impurities and to promote a healthy bloom—the hall mark of refined beauty. You can prepare a trustworthy massage cream at small cost, by dissolving three ounces of c rol in a pint of hot water, stirring until smooth and creamy. This gently massaged into the skin makes it soft and satiny, and gives cheeks a rosy glow.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Lulu: It is entirely wrong for you to lose your hair so rapidly and you should attend to it without delay. Mix a half pint each of alcohol and water, and into this put one ounce beta-canthol. This simple recipe makes an inexpensive and excellent tonic and massaging the hair roots frequently with it stops falling hair, and its continued use will promote a thick growth of long glossy hair. Any druggist can supply beta-canthol.

Pixie: It is a rare pleasure to read a letter like yours, and I am glad my gallol recipe has given you a "sylph-like" form, as you say. You can make an excellent retiring cream at small cost, if you will get from your druggist two ounces of amarol and dissolve in a pint of hot water. After washing the skin thoroughly and drying well, apply this retiring cream and you will find in a short time you have a complexion no powder or rouge can imitate.

Dixy D.: If you are interested and really want a good recipe for shampooing, get some eggol at the drug store and try it. Using this twice a month for a while soon corrects the itchy, scaly condition of the scalp, making it vigorous and pliant and stops falling hair. An eggol shampoo is delightful to use, and is especially good for oiliness. With this use the beta-canthol tonic mentioned elsewhere in these columns.

Nan: I know it is annoying to have fuzz on your cheek and if you will get an ounce of delol at the drug store and mix some with water to make a thick paste and apply to the offending hairs, then after two or three minutes rub off and wash the skin you will find the hairs are gone. While delol is a trifle expensive it is seldom necessary to use the second application to permanently remove hairs.

Fay: Undeveloped point is due to a starved condition of the delicate tissues, and until corrected you cannot round out the figure. The only successful method known is the [illegible] treatment. This feeds the [illegible] tissues and as a natural result the form becomes plump and symmetrical. You can easily prepare your own treatment if you dissolve one and a half cups sugar in water to make a pint and stir in an ounce of true gallol, which any druggist can supply. Take two teaspoonfuls before meals for a while and you will be truly delighted at results.

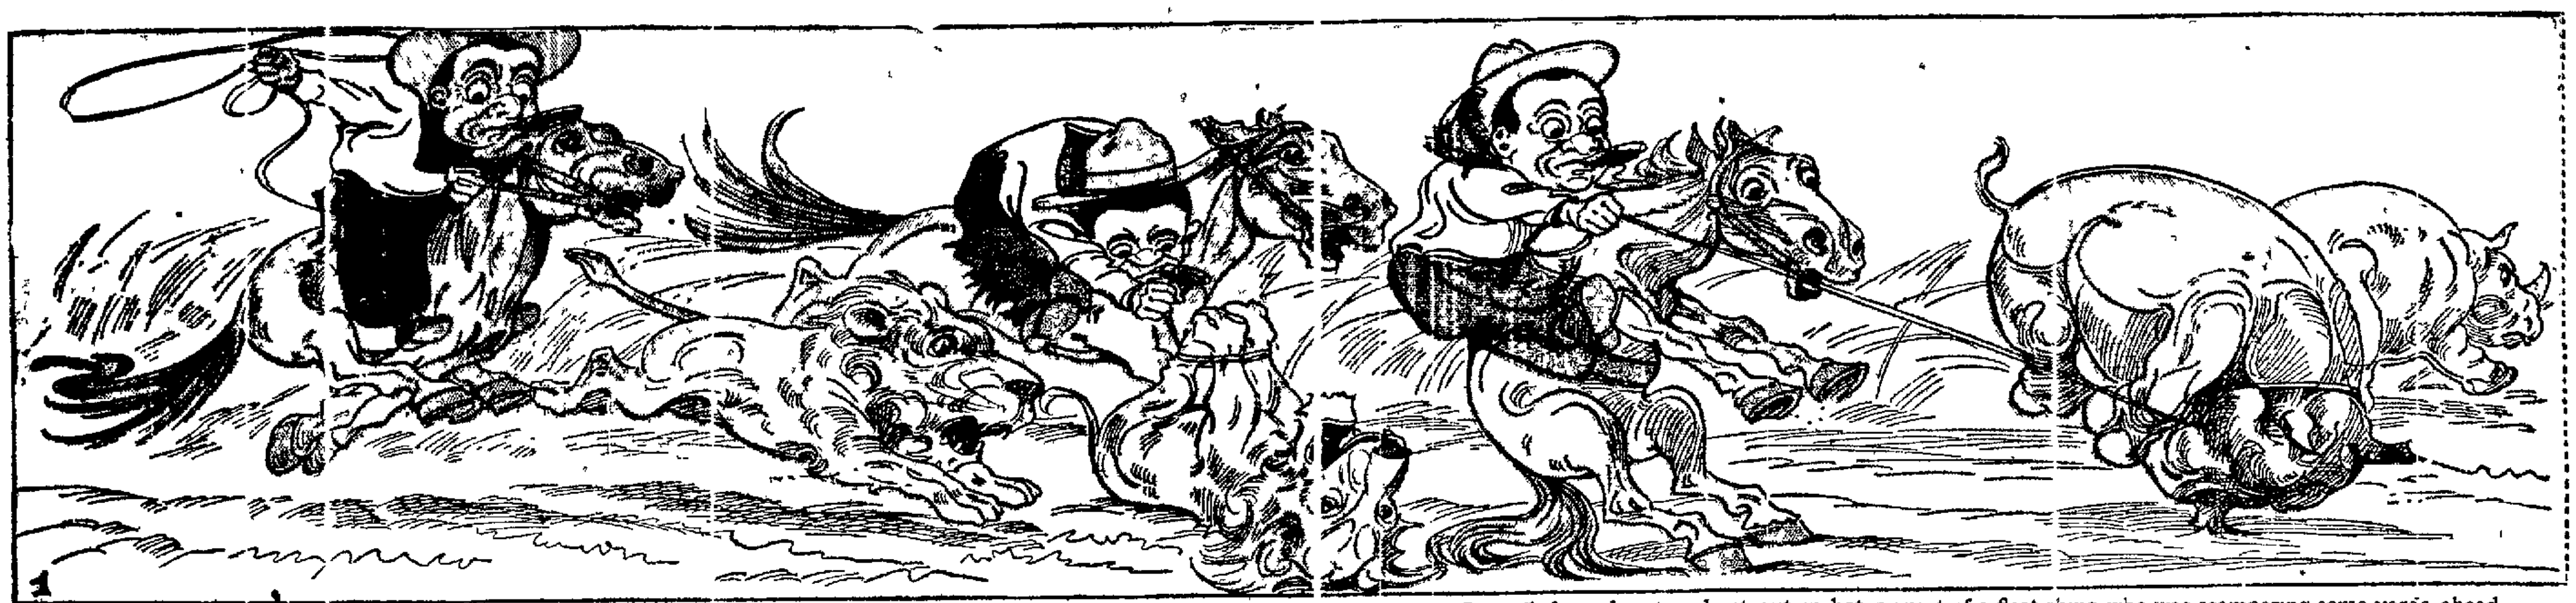
Practicing at throwing the lasso, eh? Well, that's harmless sport and it furnishes much amusement. Just keep right on practicing and some day you may be able to do about half of the marvelous things I have done in my good time. Mind you, I say about half, for no man ever lived or ever will live, for that matter, who will go out, as I did, and with nothing but a lasso stock up one of our representative zoological institutes with one or two specimens of every animal that ever was known to freely roam the jungle. Some day I may take you over to these zoological gardens and show you the fruits of my wonderful prowess.

To make a panorama the four strips may be pasted together at dotted lines in 1-2-3-4 order.

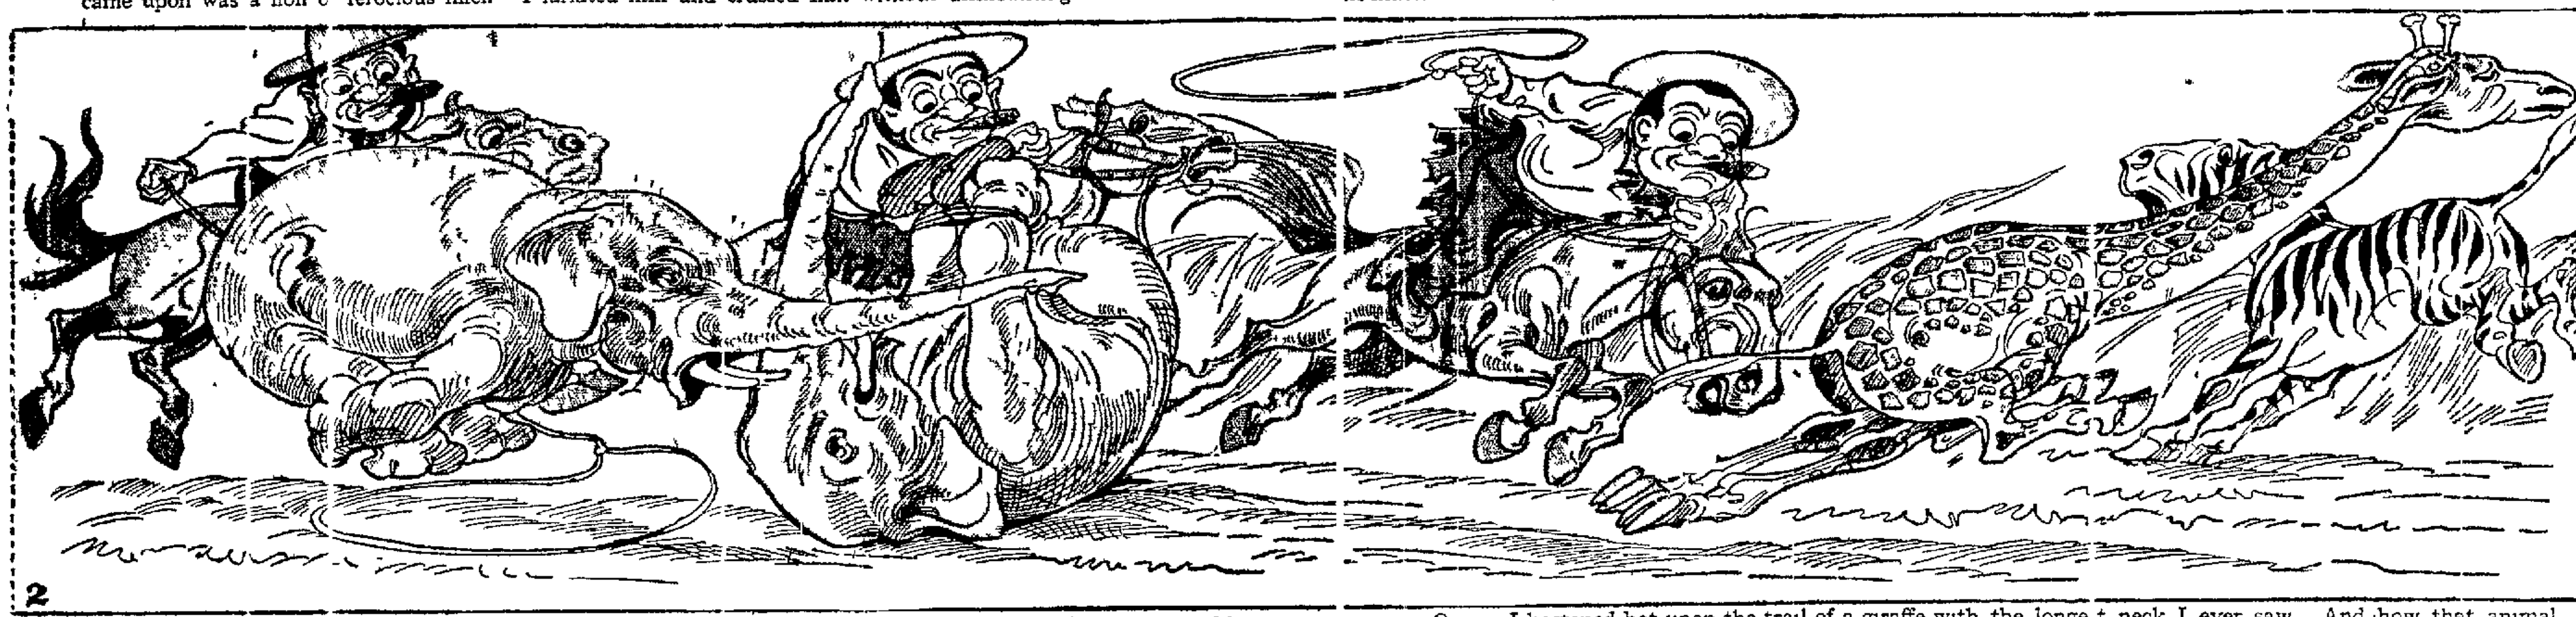
OLD OPIE DILLDOCK'S STORIES

(Copyright, 1914, by The Trib ne Company, Chicago Ill.)



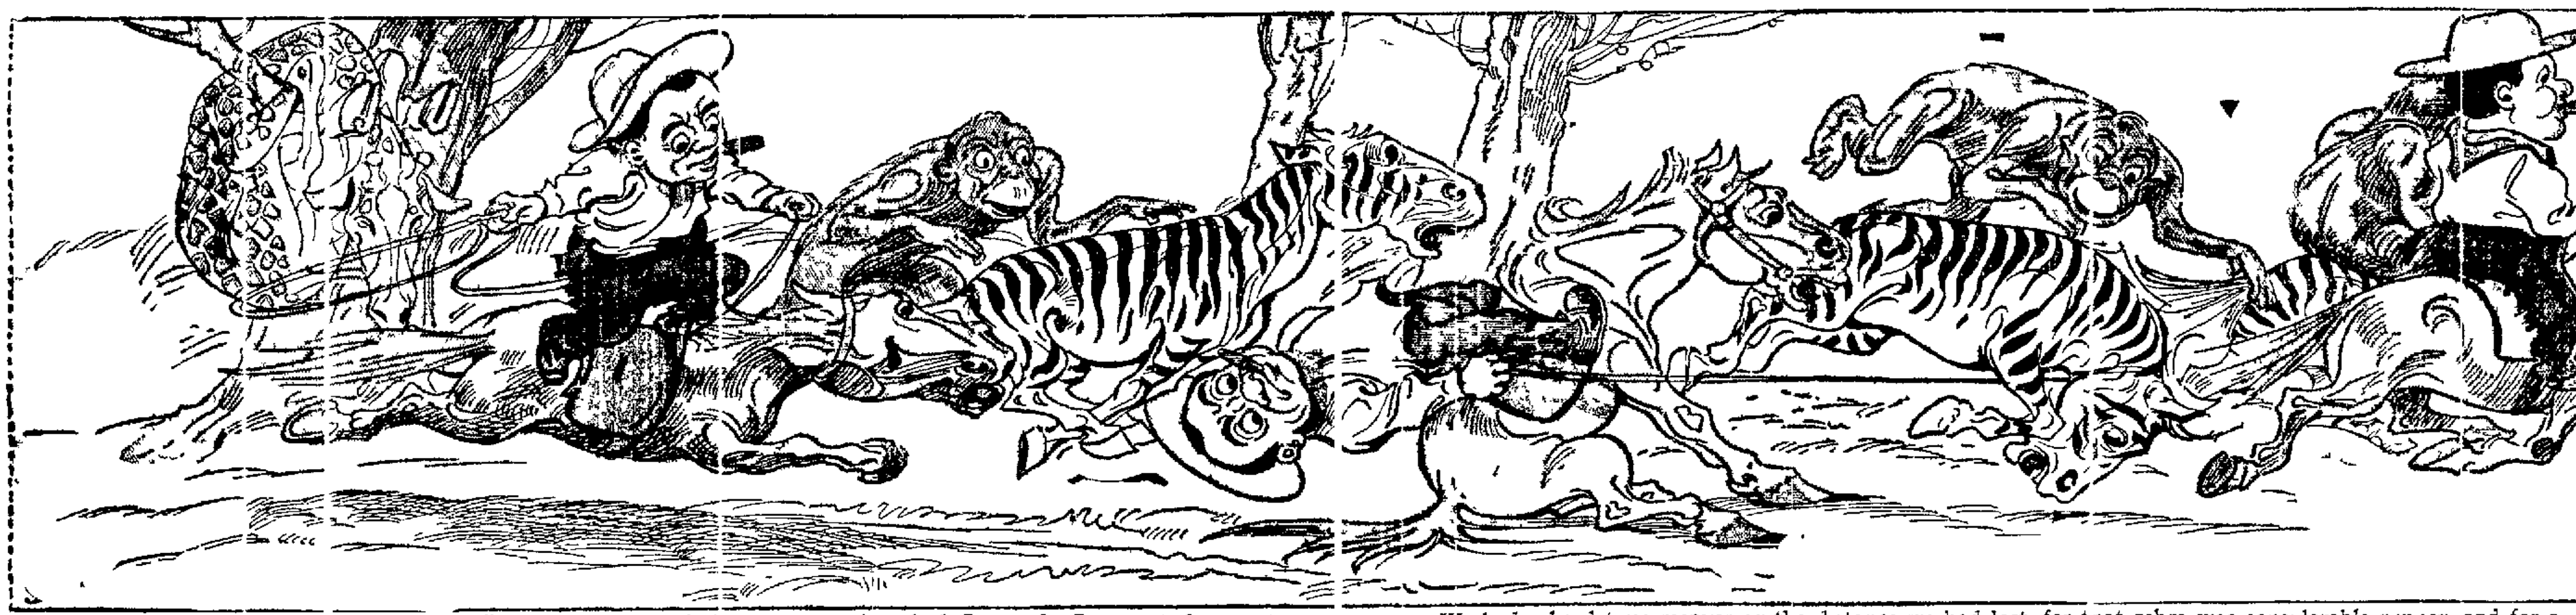
You children, who never have lassoed anything larger than a caterpillar, don't appreciate what a hard feat it is to go out in a wild jungle and undertake to lasso one or two of each of the wildest animals and bring them alive into captivity But that is exactly what I did—captured enough animals to stock, a zoological garden for one of our foremost institutes On a spirited little mustang I set out in the densest jungle one day and the first thing I came upon was a lion o ferocious mien I lariated him and trussed him without dismounting

Then I recoiled my lariat and set out in hot pursuit of a fleet rhino who was scampering some yards ahead missed the first throw and with a derisive snort he fled on It was then I determined that that would be my irst and only miscue Swinging my rope wildly about my head and ur ing my mustang at top speed I overtook he horned monster just as he was starting to break through the underbrush This time my rope fell accurately about is massive shoulders, and he went toppling heels over head. I bound him securely and hurried on.



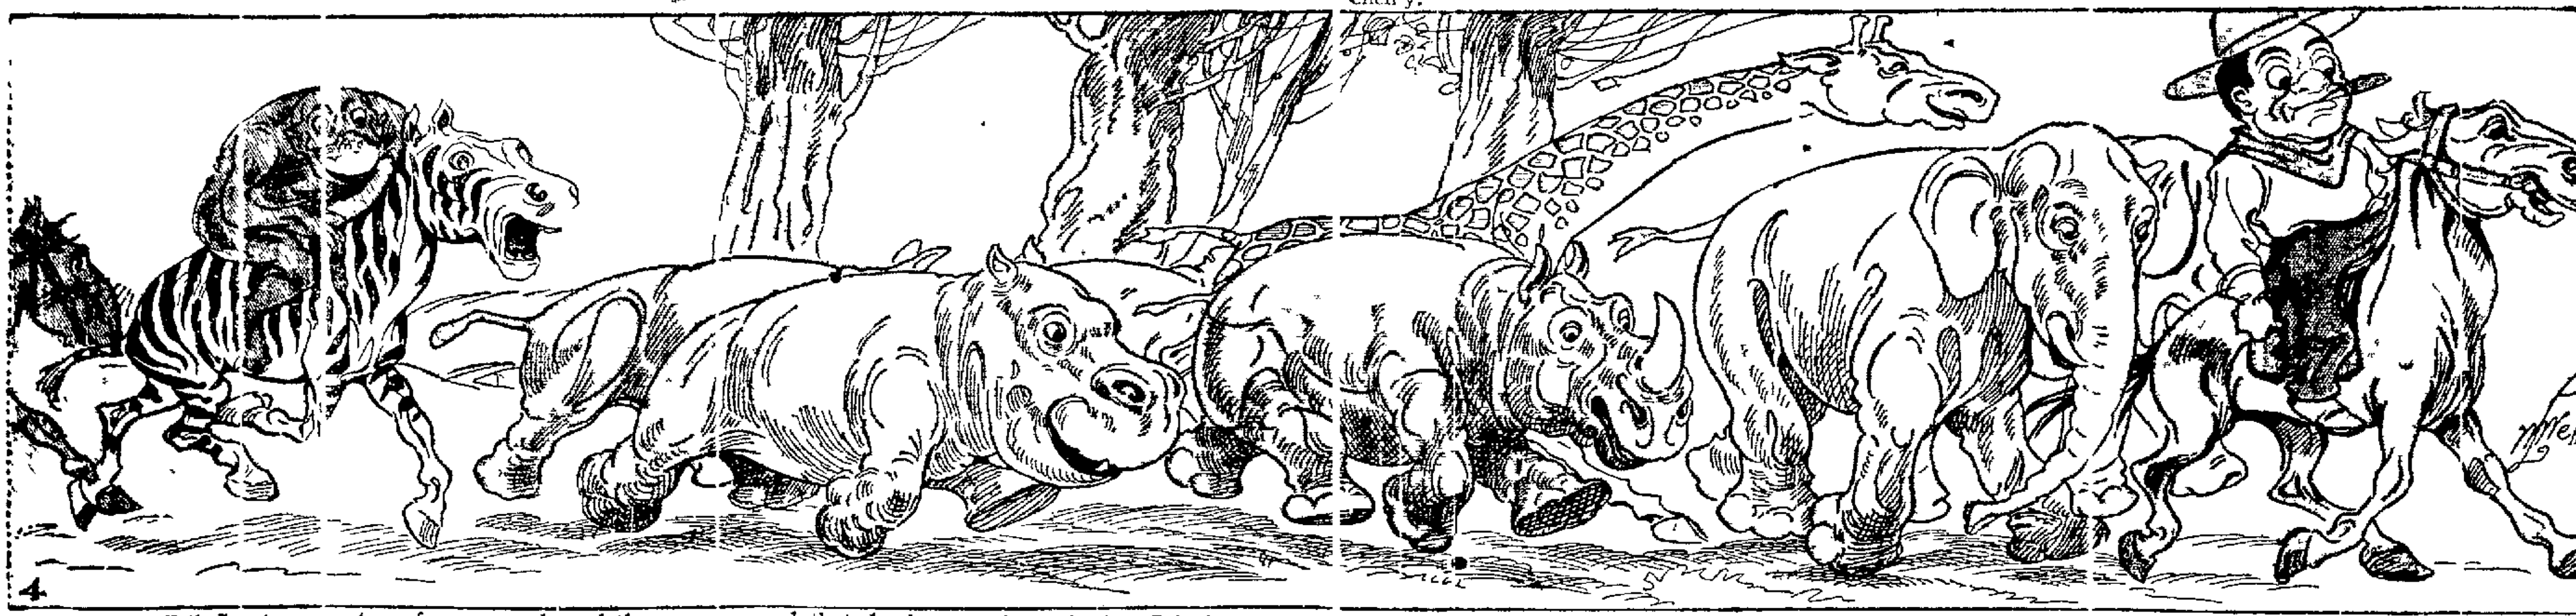
An elephant of enormous size next attracted my attention He heard the hoofbeats of my approaching mount, and throwing his trunk high in air, bolted running at terrific speed Looping my lasso as I urged my horse forward, I gained upon the pachyderm slowly and surely, and as I came within striking distance I hurled my loop and played out several hundred feet of rope in the throw It fell under the ponderous feet of the elephant, he stepped in the loop, and as he did so I gave it a violent jerk, turned him completely over and bound his feet together.

On, on I hastened hot upon the trail of a giraffe with the longest neck I ever saw And how that animal could run! My, it was a revelation to even me. As he ran, a zebra galloped out of the underbrush ahead of him and set him a merry pace It was a close race while it lasted, but I finally overtook him, my mustang breathing heavily Round my head I swirled the enormous lasso, and then, with great accuracy, flung it over the head of the giraffe, bringing him to a dead halt. It was the work of a few seconds only to put him hors de combat



Galloping on hung the giraffe in a convenient fork in a tree under which I passed It was at this point that I was joined by a grinning and cunning orang-outang who asked permission to accompany me Being lonesome, I accepted his companionship, and he went along his antics furnishing me much amusement in my strenuous hunt for wild animal We took up the pursuit of the magnificent specimen of zebra, who had gained on us as we paused to hang the giraffe in the tree The 'rang, with amusing chattering, urged my horse to greater speed.

We had a hard time recovering the distance we had lost, for that zebra was considerable runner and for a long time I despaired of overtaking him The orang-outang, however laughed merrily and told me to keep up the chase, knowing, he said, the zebra would soon lose heart and capitulate Thus reassured I went on, and sure enough, soon the zebra slackened his speed long enough to permit me to draw close enough to hurl the lariat before him, treat him to a somersault, and then, when he recovered his breath, remind him he was a captive in the hands of the enemy.



Well, I got one or two of every quadruped that ever roamed that desolate jungle, and when I had captured the last one I lined them all up and informed them that they were to be taken to a wonderful institute where their traits were to be studied "You will understand," I said to them, "that it would be foolhardy for you to attempt to escape, for I would only recapture you and my treatment of you then would be quite severe. Over where I intend taking you you'l be fed the choicest meats and viands, and life over there will be one perpetual holiday and most enjoyable"

That they understood and would behave was evidenced by their glad roars and screeches of undisguised happiness So, mounted on my trusted mustang, I led the grand march from the heart of the jungle, the orang outang, clinging to the bare back of the zebra, bringing up the vanguard. All went well, and stopping only long enough for food at various times we went merrily upon our homeward trip No discord marred our journey, and within a few days, brimming over with pride at my miraculous accomplishment, I led the long line of submissive animals to the cells which had been prepared for them.

HORRORS OF RUSSIAN PRISON ARE SHOWN TO WORLD

KAISER'S LAND FORGING AHEAD

Progress Gaining Slowly But Surely in Germany, According to Events.

Constitution Awarded to Alsace-Lorraine; Many Savages Are Convicted.

(By MALCOLM CLARKE.)

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—Progress is gaining here slowly but steadily This is shown by recent events One is practically granting of a constitution to the conquered provinces of Alsace Lorraine, which were wrung by Prussia from France 40 years ago The other was the conviction of two savages who were petty officers in the imperial navy

The proposed constitution for the conquered province of Alsace Lorraine provides for home rule and manhood suffrage

The federal council and the reichstag are eliminated as factors in the legislation of the province Two chambers are provided for the first consisting of eighteen representatives either ex officio or elected by the various trades or professions, and of eighteen designated by the Emperor and the second consisting of members elected by universal suffrage with secret ballot, the franchise being extended to all nationals over 25 years of age provided they have decided in their commune over three years or held and on which they have resided for the year or pursue a permanent trade or agriculture on their own account or hold public office, or are engaged in legal practice, or in ecclesiastical or scholastic service

Two votes are allowed to electors over 35 and three votes to electors over 45 years of age

The ex officio members of the Upper Chamber include the heads of the Catholic Protestant, and Jewish communities, representatives each of the agricultural organizations the Chamber of Commerce and the proposed new Labor Chambers a representative of the University of Strassburg and several representatives of the local authorities

GET SEVEN YEARS.

At a naval courtmartial held at Kiel, two engineer petty officers of a torpedo boat were sentenced to seven years penal servitude each for brutal ill treatment of a stoker causing the latter's death Petty Officer Vroschke sent a recruit named Brandt to clean a boiler furnace which was still red hot and thrashed him with a rope's end because he wanted to come out Subsequently Vroschke locked Brandt in the furnace till the latter fainted Then he was brought out and abused for two hours while in a fainting condition On the following day the man died

The hazing is not only winked at but encouraged is shown [illegible] the fact that the Emperor William has commuted the sentence of a week's imprisonment imposed on two Bonn students for [illegible] a week's attention The sentence of imprisonment would have closed the roads to all official careers in the Army or Civil Service to the two young [illegible] in question both of whom belong to the nobility, that is to say people who follow no useful trade calling or occupation

IN SEARCH OF VOICE

The police have failed to find the owner of the voice which was heard in the flat of the eccentric old lady Frau [illegible] who was later found dead in her bedroom

The police summoned by the neighbors who had heard a scream and the sound of a fall in the flat had to force their way in Each door was locked and as each was broken open the police heard a voice protesting in the room beyond The mysterious person is supposed to have escaped by the back stairs The mystery was pursued no further the body not being discovered by the police who abandoned search for a week

The result of the investigation has been rather to shake the theory that the criminal was a woman The voice as the neighbors who had [illegible] through the closed doors were convinced that the voice was that of a woman

The murderer must have been well acquainted with the old woman and her habits She was so suspicious that she would admit nobody whom she did not know well The murderer must have been able to gain access to her sitting room without opposition A large sum stated to amount to [illegible] chiefly in securities has been found in a drawer in the flat Probably it was this that the murderer was looking for

SLATTERNLY WOMEN ABOUND IN COREA

PARIS Jan 7—In an interesting article on the Coreans M. Lannelongue referring to the graceful movement of the people and their picturesque costumes says that the ladies are little slatternly in appearance the men on the other hand looking grand in their white tunics recalling the burnous the [illegible] of Algeria This silhouette is sometimes spoiled by the fantastic headgear which marks the social position of the wearer The national popular hat high in form has a tube of half the calibre of ours and is slightly conical black in color supported by brims The material is of horsehair, very finely woven

BRITISH FOLKS HAVE HOLD ON LAW

Liberals Assured of Numerical Strength Enough to Carry Out Program.

Churchill Looks for Many Reforms After the Veto Has Been Abolished.

(By PAUL LAMBETH)

LONDON Jan 7—The election being over and the liberals having been assured of numerical strength in Parliament sufficient to carry out pretty nearly any program they may decide upon the people may depend upon securing any reform within reasonable bounds which they may ask for Lest there might be any doubt on the subject Churchill one of the liberal leaders has come out with an emphatic declaration as to the program of the party Speaking at [illegible] recently he said in the course of an address which was applauded enthusiastically

After the veto has gone it is my hope and belief that the new Parliament may come together as no Parliament has yet done in a whole hearted effort to solve the great problems which stare us in the face and to consolidate and fortify the strength the peace and the glory of our common country

MAJORITY TRUE

'After all deep and wide as are our party differences strong as are the contrasts of feeling and conviction of temperament and interest which mark and diversify our political life the overwhelming majority of British men and women stand true and clear for peace abroad for law and order at home for the reconciliation of races within the kingdom for the unity and consolidation of the empire for a supreme and unchallengeable navy for a better a fairer and more scientific organization of the social life of the people for the due correction of the abuses of wealth and monopoly for religious equality and for industrial progress

We stand for all that and I have hopes that the new House of Commons may find great schemes of national insurance in the reform of the poor law in the development of national resources in the training of our youth in relieving the Imperial Parliament from congestion by well considered plans of devolution in the work of reconciling the two islands by giving Ireland a Parliament for the management of purely Irish affairs in prison reform even in the reform of our electoral laws and the redistribution of constituencies—it is my hope that the new house may find in all these immense and necessary labors a great deal more common ground than is now apparent

LOYALTY TO MONARCH

I think that it is the wish of every one of us that the coronation of the King should display to all the world not only the abiding loyalty of the British Empire to the institution of monarchy and its attachment to the person of the sovereign but should also make manifest the deep and fundamental unities which underlie the clamorous conflicts of the British nation—that there should be a season of rejoicing and of unity of concord and good feeling in which Liberal and Conservative, [illegible] and nonconformist shall bear their part in which Welshmen and Scotsmen shall be conspicuous and from which Ireland shall not be excluded

Addressing an assemblage at Dundee he said 'They have [illegible] conclusions with us once too often This time they are knocked clear out of the ring They have got to make up their minds to the liberal solution of the great problems of the day abolition of the veto of the House of Lords disestablishment of the Welsh church maintenance of free trade grant of self government for Ireland and abolition of plural voting'

WREAKS VENGEANCE WITH LIVE WIRES

VIENNA Jan 7—An act of vengeance has it is alleged been wreaked against a gamekeeper at [illegible] who had taken legal steps against the workmen of a neighboring electrical works for stealing wood

The path along which his two children went every day to school passed under a highly charged overhead cable From this a wire was suspended It is stated in such a way that the children through curiosity or accident were sure to touch it An eight year old boy was instantly killed and his brother who was holding him by the hand was severely burnt

WOULD SAVE PARIS FROM DRINK

Premier Briand Declares City in Danger of Drowning Itself in Absinthe.

Rural Police Watch Murderer at Work, But Let Him Get Away.

(By PAUL VILLIERS)

PARIS Jan 7—The liquor question promises to become a dominant issue in this country It is likely before long the government will draft a drastic measure to reduce the number of drinking places which are increasing at an alarming rate Premier Briand has intimated his intentions both in the legislature in interviews and in private He recently said France was in danger of drinking itself to death

LET SLAYER GO

An extraordinary story of rural police methods comes from Pontcarre a little summer resort situated near the forest of Armainvilliers where a tramp murdered an old woman who kept a small inn Hearing the old woman's screams, her neighbor instead of giving the alarm went off to fetch her husband in a village a mile away leaving the woman to her fate The husband thought he had better tell the local watchman and went off to the latter's house In his turn the watchman decided he must inform the mayor who was working at Edouard de Rothschild's chateau in the neighborhood At once the mayor set out for the scene accompanied by the watchman a commercial traveler who happened to be in the village and a shopkeeper Through the windows of the murdered woman's inn they could see the murderer rifling the rooms but the mayor refused to act until the gendarmes arrived When the tramp came down stairs the party saw him stepping over his victim who lay dead Only after the guardians of public order had watched the violation of the law for 20 minutes did the watchman decide to take action crying 'Open in the name of the law' and beating on the door But the murderer opened a back window and escaped easily into the black depths of the forest So far he has not been captured

DOG GIVEN BURIAL

The seventeenth brigade of the city police got up a funeral for the police dog Leo shot dead by an Apache Leo who was the pet of the brigade was working with his comrade and friend the mastiff Prince on the fortifications late at night scouting with a cyclist police patrol Just under the massive stonework of the disused fortresses the two dogs halted before a gap recently cut through wooden palings

They examined the spot and then returned to the police showing signs that something was amiss Two officers returned to the gap and decided to go through Leo and Prince went with them The policemen had not gone many steps when surprised by a revolver fusillade

Satisfied that they had to do with outlaws the officers slipped the leashes of the two dogs which leaped for the fence and made toward one of the men who was shooting This man almost succeeded in getting away but after a chase the police seized him

HEARTS OF MONARCHS

In the Cathedral of St Denis there is a room which contains the hearts of some French monarchs

The name of each sovereign is engraved on the pedestals There was no pedestal reserved for the heart of Louis XVII but in the middle of one of the rows a pedestal rather larger than the others bore the initial N without a crown The casket was in gold M Boissy d'Anglas suggests with some support from other authorities that this is the heart of Napoleon placed there by one of those who served him at St Helena and having been taken from the body after the autopsy

Riot in British Workhouse Suppressed by the Police

LONDON Jan 7—As the result of a disturbance at the Belmont workhouse Surrey which necessitated the calling in of the police Alfred White a stoker was charged at the local police court with refusing to perform his work and with breaking two plates

Evidence was given to the effect that the prisoner walked into the dining hall in a very excited condition and made threats The attitude of the other inmates became threatening and the witness found it necessary to telephone for the police

A police inspector spoke of going to the workhouse with thirteen constables and finding about 340 men shouting and singing and creating [illegible]

The prisoner was sentenced to three months hard labor

One of the most unusual and amusing incidents of the election has been the voting by a four year-old boy for one of the candidates for the Biggleswade division of Bedfordshire The boy's name is Harold Sidney Walter Francis his father's name is Charles Francis but the name of Harold Sidney Walter Francis appeared on the register in mistake The father protested strongly at this treatment so the authorities told him that his little boy would be allowed to vote in [illegible] And the youngster was allowed to cast the vote that was properly the right of his father

DOUBLE MURDER FOLLOWED BY 2 SUICIDES

Mme Aussenac with her husband and two daughters went to live at the farm and did all in their power to please the old man By French law a deed of gift is irrevocable He found out that if his niece and her daughters died he would become their heir [illegible] be the owner of his farm again

TRIES POISON

One night recently he tried to kill them by putting poison in their soup Prompt medical aid balked the poison plot but did not alter Chanel's design to commit murder The head of the house was off on a business trip at the time It was night when M Aussenac returned All was dark in the farmhouse and the door was locked M Aussenac banged at it and listened At first he heard nothing then he heard his youngest daughter's voice call to him

He could not get in at the ground floor

PLURAL VOTING BILL TO BE ABOLISHED

Now Legally Possible for Man to Vote Four or Five Times

LONDON Jan 7—It is more than probable that the privilege of plural voting will be abolished by the new parliament Under the system it is possible for a man to legally vote four or five times

How necessary it is for the government to abolish plural voting which operates so unfairly against Liberals is shown by the results of the elections in the county constituencies An analysis of the polls in these divisions proves that but for the plural votes the Tories not only would not have gained a single seat but would have lost several In the five seats won by them and in fifteen of the twenty five held on the pollings which took place on December 7 and 8 the plural voters outnumbered the majorities enormously in many cases as the following statement clearly indicates

Housewives Declare Husbands Spend Time and Money Away from Home

ZURICH Jan 7—Swiss housewives [illegible] Saturday half holiday [illegible] employing many men in this city recently decided to give its employes a half holiday on Saturday Now practically all the wives and fiancees of the men have signed a petition asserting that the Saturday half holiday [illegible] withdrawn on the ground that [illegible] spend their time and money away from home with [illegible] results to family life and to the family exchequer

The petition points out that Sunday has always been a holiday in Switzerland and [illegible] useless half holiday in the week [illegible] compulsory closing of shops [illegible] places of amusement on the Sabbath but [illegible] free to [illegible] pleases In some of the cantons [illegible] closed during divine service but it is not the rule in the other cantons [illegible]

As a general rule the Swiss people go to church on Sunday mornings and afterwards tend their gardens and orchards go to a matinee in the theater and play at football or tennis The Zurich firm is much perplexed concerning the women's petition and is inclined to grant it, for it feels itself in the wrong

100 PRISONERS FLOGGED AT VOLOGDA

Lid Lifted and Terrible Scenes Revealed; Conspiracy Was Charged.

Mystery Shrouding Reported Suicide of Sazonoff Grows Deeper Every Day.

(By GEORGE FRASER)

ST PETERSBURG Jan 7—Once in a while the lid is lifted and the outside public gets a glimpse of the horrors of the Russian prison system and the methods of the Russian secret police Several of the instances have recently become public The newspapers the other day printed lengthy accounts of the flogging of 100 prisoners in the Vologda jail because they complained of their food It was stated that the prison physician resigned because he declared many of the prisoners were in no condition to undergo a flogging

The prisons administration states that there was a conspiracy among the prisoners to rise en masse and that after the discovery of the plot the governor of the prison gave orders for corporal punishment to be administered to two convicts As a protest against this three convicts severed their arteries and three others took overdoses of morphia

In consequence of further rioting fifty-nine convicts were ordered to be chastened with rods The minister of justice has ordered a strict inquiry into the whole affair

SAZONOFF A SUICIDE

One of the prisoners who committed suicide was alleged to have been Sazonoff the man who was at the bottom of the [illegible] plot to assassinate M de Plehve

Despite the official prison statements of Sazonoff's death his political friends deny that Sazonoff had died and still claim that he was never imprisoned but escaped immediately after De Plehve's death

M de Plehve was killed in a St Petersburg street by a bomb on July 8 1904 It [illegible] clear that the assassin was Sazonoff and that he was assisted by a [illegible] named Sikorsky It is also known that a man who was found wounded at the time of the assassination was arrested

MYSTERY DEEPENS

The mystery began to get deep when the police tried to prove that Sazonoff [illegible] generally reputed to be [illegible] and the prisoner were really [illegible] The prisoners [illegible] Boroznoff [illegible] gives some idea [illegible]

TRUTH IS OUT

According to the best informed revolutionaries [illegible] matter [illegible] police had arrested Sazonoff [illegible] the aid of [illegible] to escape and [illegible] police were [illegible] they were with [illegible]

LISBON Jan 7—All is [illegible] nothing has [illegible] Portuguese [illegible] the urgent [illegible] public will necessitate the [illegible] many of the very valuable art treasures now lying at the numerous ex-royal palaces In the Necessidades palace for example there are several Holbeins which would fetch an enormous sum if placed on the market

FEAR PLOT ON LIFE OF KING

Italy's Ruler's Hunt Is Declared Off; Telephone Line Stolen.

Leading Catholic Organ Says Cardinal Still Enjoys Confidence.

(By CLEMENT J BARRET

ROME Jan 7—A strand of telephone wire one-half mile long connecting the Quirinal and the Perziano Castle was stolen a few nights ago Hence the King will not be able to go hunting around the Perziano Castle The police claim that they could not guarantee the King's safety unless they had telephones at their disposal There are several theories floating about in connection with the so-called theft One is that the anarchists did it Another has it that practical jokers fiddled with the wire for the sake of a sensation Still another theory is that one of the servants made away with the wire so as to prevent the hunt which means work for royal servants who must toil day and night when the King entertains

While the theorizing has been going on no one has thought of ordering new wire to replace the stolen strand Half a dozen official reports on the subject have been submitted already.

ENJOYS CONFIDNECE

The Vaterland a leading Catholic organ published in Vienna declares that Cardinal Merry del Val enjoys the undiminished confidence of the Pope and that the only basis for the rumors of the impending resignation of the papal secretary of state is that several elder cardinals are taking more active part in the work of the secretariat

This, the Vaterland says is not a sign that the Pope's confidence in Cardinal Merry del Val has decreased but may be explained by the necessity of taking counsel with experienced men in view of the present difficulties of papal diplomacy

NEGOTIATES FOR MEAT

The municipality is negotiating with American packers for the importation of 6000 tons of Argentine meat early in 1911 The object is to compel the lowering of the prices of fresh beef which is now selling at prohibitive prices There are people here who can afford to have meat only once a week others only once a month

Contrary to the orders of his medical adviser the Pope insisted upon celebrating midnight mass on Christmas He said he had done so for fifty years ever since he became a priest Midnight mass begins a few minutes after 12 o'clock midnight The compromise was that he by holding the divine service in his room would do a great deal of good

Recently his household staff has sought to relieve him by doing much of his routine work He has complained of this saying that he could not bear to be idle for even an hour He often has said that an idle man is the most miserable of beings He insists upon writing letters that a clerk could easily attend to

DOUBLE MURDER FOLLOWS SUICIDE

but the shutters were not closed upstairs He was an active man and climbed up the side of the house and got into his daughter's bedroom On the floor was Mme Aussenac Her head was terribly battered On the bed lay the elder daughter with her throat cut and on the other bed the child of five lay moaning

QUARREL WAS FATAL

The old man who was 76 years old had gone out for a walk returned an hour before her niece's husband had returned home The rest of the story was told by the little grand niece who survived the murderer's blows He quarreled with Mme Aussenac He tried to put something in my medicine said the child and mother would not let him

Then he got angry and said mother had robbed him of his home Mother had been ironing when he came in and the iron was on the board He took it up, and he killed mother with it Alice and I cried and begged Uncle to spare us Alice was clinging around his knees and I [illegible] I tried to get up and to run away but I could not Then uncle killed Alice with a knife

LEAPS FROM WINDOW

M Aussenac left the room to look for him Chanel had heard him when he came to the front door and had run up to the garret M Aussenac searched room after room—the garret last of all But as he burst in there he heard a shout of savage triumph The window of the garret was open Aussenac ran to the window looked out and ran down stairs again

He unlocked the farm door and there upon the stones in front of it he found the murderer But the old man was dead had thrown himself out of the window Mme Aussenac lived long enough to confirm her daughter's story

Next morning a villager found the body of M Aussenac in a pond He could not survive his wife's death and he had drowned himself leaving a letter which told the whole story

PROTESTANT PASTOR RECEIVES CONFESSION

MADRID Jan 7—A strange incident has occurred in a hospital at Huelva An American was dying and not being able to speak a word of Spanish made signs that he wished to receive the last sacrament Thinking he was a Protestant the authorities had a Church of England clergyman called in, but the dying man told him he was a Roman Catholic

Since no Catholic priest could be found who understood English the man made his confession and received absolution through the intermediary of the Protestant clergyman who acted as interpreter, and took an oath to observe strict secrecy regarding what he had heard

INCREASE NOTED IN DEMAND FOR BONDS

Healthy Increase Felt; High Class Securities Are Sought.

(By PRESTON C ADAMS)

NEW YORK Jan 7—One of the features of the opening of the year 1911 is a healthy increase in the demand for high class bonds This seems to be general and affects all classes of these securities There is in financial circles a general belief that this means a healthy normal business without the financing incidents of boom times Investors apparently are shy of new ventures in the line of stock exploitation

There seems to be a disposition on the part of railroads and other great corporations to come into the market for loans for the legitimate extension of business when conditions are favorable This is regarded as a good sign for if they were not [illegible] convinced that the prospects for business were good they would not be willing to add materially to their fixed charge

IMPROVE METHODS

As a result of the self examination of methods which have been brought about in great industries of the country there is a tendency to improve methods so that labor cost may be reduced This has resulted in a considerable reduction in the number of employes in some lines And it is likely to be permanent While it will be hard on those directly affected in time there will be a readjustment to new conditions and a permanent reduction in the cost of production This is particularly true with the steel and allied industries and the railroads

J R Rowland who has been general manager of the Texas City Steamship Company is now traffic manager of the Atlanta Birmingham and Atlantic Railway Mr Rowland is a first class traffic man and the Atlanta Birmingham and Atlantic is to be congratulated on securing him

The many New York friends of J T Harahan are glad to know that he does not contemplate retirement from active participation in railroad management because of his withdrawal from the presidency of the Illinois Central He will probably take a long rest before he gets back into harness

COPPER CONSUMPTION

The domestic consumption of copper in 1910 has been slightly larger than in 1909 but more than 20 per cent less than in 1906 which was the banner year for the electrical companies wire drawers and brass founders In 1906 the consumption was estimated at [illegible] 000 000 pounds

The consumption of copper has fallen off very heavily in the last few months this respect going hand in hand with the iron trade and it is evident that similar remedial measures are necessary

Stocks of unconsumed copper are greater today than a year ago the output is record breaking and consumption is less The so-called visible supplies in Europe are largely a farce

LEADS IN COTTON

Texas leads the cotton producing states with 3 140 000 bales of 500 pounds gross each with a value at 1[illegible] cents a pound, $22[illegible] 800 000 Florida produces the highest selling cotton in the country Its yield of 58 000 bales is valued at 21 cents a pound The lowest yield is the 12 000 bales from California although Virginia is not much ahead of her with 13 000 bales

The fourteen cotton producing states in order of production in 1910 are Texas Georgia Alabama, Mississippi South Carolina Arkansas North Carolina Tennessee, Louisiana Florida Missouri, Virginia and California

BOYS CRUELLY BEATEN FOR ATTEMPTED ESCAPE

Reformatory at Mielschin Scene of Terrible Punishment; Naval Limitation in Reichstag

BERLIN Jan 7 Terrible punishments in the Boys' Reformatory Mielschin are alleged against the director and eight subordinates They are accused of having whipped the boys with a horsewhip beating them with stocks on the soles of the feet and kneecaps of placing chains on the wrists and ankles of boys suspected of attempting to escape and of chaining another youth in a cellar to a ring fastened in the wall

On the table of the court here where the trial was held were several implements alleged to have been used in securing discipline in their establishment These included a cat o' nine-tails manacles handcuffs and chains

The defense is that stern measures were necessary to keep the boys under control

NAVAL LIMITATION

Discussing naval limitation in the Reichstag recently the Imperial Chancellor said As regards our relations with England and alleged negotiations with that country on the subject of limiting naval armaments I wish to point out that it is hardly as well known that the British government has repeatedly declared itself that an arrangement stipulating the strength of the navies of the several powers would essentially contribute toward consolidating international relations England has already expressed that idea at The Hague Conference Since then England has repeatedly referred again to the idea without however making propositions which could have been either positively accepted or rejected We likewise fall in with the desire cherished by England of avoiding rivalry in regard to armaments

But in the informal pourparlers conducted in a friendly spirit we have always laid emphasis on the fundamental idea that an open exchange of views followed by an understanding on the mutual economic and political interests of the two countries would be the best means of removing any distrust arising from the comparative strength of their armies and navies The very continuance of such an exchange of views gives evidence of the friendly intentions prevailing on either side It may gradually remove the distrust which has made itself felt not between the governments but unhappily often in public opinion

UP TO STANDARD

Dr Wiemer (Radical) said that the army and navy must be kept up to the standard but this ought to be possible without an increase in the peace strength Those who wanted an understanding with England would do well not to say too much about it Limitation of armaments in agreement with other states would not be excluded by the self-evident condition that every state must determine the measure of its own armaments

Baron von Gamp (Imperial) asked Why do we question the need for our armaments? Just go to France Presumably the Labor party has the deciding voice in England If it should refuse its naval demand then we may perhaps come to an understanding Germany has shown in forty years of peace that she wants peace If Great Britain today takes a different view of the naval question we owe this chiefly to the initiative of Admiral Tirpitz Secretary of State for the Navy The probability of it coming to a fight is as good as removed owing to the respect inspired by our fleet Likewise a good army is an unconditional necessity for the maintenance of peace

'SPIRITUAL FLUID' WONDER-WORKER

"Doctor" Papus Declares in Court That He Makes the Blind See.

PARIS Jan 7—Prosecuted in a local court here for alleged illegal practice of medicine Doctor Papus a self styled wizard called many witnesses on his behalf who testified to the benefit they had derived from his potent spiritual fluid

One young women said she had a paralyzed arm which was unsuccessfully treated by specialists and she was completely cured by the defendant who merely made a few passes over the diseased limb Another woman suffered from anemia of the brain and was cured in twenty four hours An insane woman who was to be sent to an asylum recovered her reason when the faith healer made passes on her forehead A case was cited of a patient whose ear drum was broken and who now hears quite well after magnetic treatment I have also caused the blind to see put in the defendant

One voluble witness was vehement in defense of the faith healer What was your ailment? asked the judge Paralysis of the tongue One would not think it Another patient urged the judge to try defendant's magic treatment The judge protested that he was quite well Ah one never knows said witness shaking his head The wizard was held

BULL FIGHT IN STREET STARTS PANIC IN CITY

MADRID Jan 7—Casualties including three or four broken arms or legs three men seriously and several slightly injured and about a dozen faintings as suffered by women accompanied an improvised bull fight which has taken place in the streets of Seville Three young bulls while being driven by herdsmen took to flight and the opportunity proving too good for the worthy Sevilians to lose a corrida was organized in the streets There was immediately a wild rush of men women and children to reach a position of vantage as the toreros made their repeated attempts to capture and subdue the novilles

After three hours confusion during which time the interest in the proceedings equalled that at an ordinary arena the scene of the corrida was transferred to an open square the approaches to which were blocked by carts

BOSTON 'TROT' EXCITES LONDON

Most Freakish Dance Ever Becomes Craze at British Capital.

LONDON Jan 7—The 'wave waltz' and the 'Boston trot' two popular American society dances have reached London and are being tried in high court circles The wave waltz is a variety of the old original Boston danced by Elisha Dyer many years ago In Paris where the wave waltz created more or less of a furore in the salons it became known as "The Vague"

The chief part of the 'wave waltz' as described in M A P consists of a long wave like dip produced by a slow glide backward with a bent knee When the leg is straightened the double movement produces a slow dip like a wave It is a difficult dance for elderly beaux and spinsters whose joints are stiff and creaky but plump and supple persons find it a delightful form of exercise they say

The Vague itself takes three beats of music and from there the original Boston step is performed twice The Vague is repeated also the step [illegible] reversed The Vague comes on the off beat in the music and the woman always goes backward The Boston is not as easy to do but once accomplished it has a fascinating swing of its own that sets it high above other Bostons

FREAKEST EVER

The Boston Trot is regarded in London society as the freakest dance ever brought here from America It is a fast time waltz The man dances his partner backwards Then the couple take eight brisk little steps down the room turning on the sixth so that the male partner goes back Then the partner breaks into the original Boston step repeated twice very slowly By that time the woman dancer should be facing the male Then the couple take eight quick steps sideways passing the foot behind and in front This ends the Boston Trot which takes up twenty four bars of music and is repeated as often as possible It is danced straight round and sideways Then there are the other variations The Bostons Double Boston and the Boston Two Step which last named is done to two step music with the second step long Finally there is the Judy Walk—which London society votes [illegible] a prance and a waddle as one journal puts it

AUSTRIA SEEKS TO FORESTALL ITALY

Naval Program Not Being Carried Out to Help Germany.

(By EMIL ANDRASSY)

VIENNA Jan 7—Austria's naval program is being not with an idea of helping out Germany in any collision she may have with England but solely for the purpose of forestalling any attempt Italy may make to dominate the Adriatic and take Trieste This statement comes from high sources While both Italy and Austria are members of the Triple Alliance and are nominally at least friends the feeling is growing here that Rome aspires to be recognized as the mistress of the Adriatic and would welcome any shifting of the cards which would give her Trieste

Austria realizes that she must have a fleet equal to that of Italy if she is to hold her own This is the reason for the ambitious super-Dreadnaught program

COUNT JAILED

High play at rouge et noir in a London hotel has led to the arrest in Vienna of the young Count Gisbert Rolf Metternich aged twenty four a nephew of the German Ambassador in London Count Metternich who is at present engaged as secretary to a motor car factory three months ago married a favorite Viennese musical comedy actress

As he has been a Prussian subject he was transferred into the charge of the German police The charge against him is alleged complicity in a gambling swindle and is laid by a German artillery lieutenant stationed at Metz named Backhaus

Lieutenant Backhaus alleges that while on leave in London last summer he made the acquaintance of the Count together with two other men Accompanied by his new friends Lieutenant Backhaus visited the sights of London They dined at an hotel and after dinner played at rouge et noir using matches as counters

SCENTS PLOT

At first the lieutenant won It was then agreed he says that he and Count Metternich should hold the bank together They lost $3[illegible] Lieutenant Backhaus having no money to pay his share the Count handed a cheque for the whole sum to their opponents Lieutenant Backhause saw little more of his companions and shortly afterwards returned to his garrison at Metz On receiving later an emphatic request from Count Metternich for the repayment of the $1750 advanced to him he conceived certain suspicions and informed the police

It is stated that further allegations are made against Count Metternich—that he obtained a valuable pin on credit from a London jeweler by falsely representing himself to be a member of the German embassy and that he fraudulently withheld the proceeds of the sale of a horse belonging to a lady in Berlin The Count's own statement with reference to the rouge et noir affair is that both he and Lieutenant Backhaus were duped by the other two players

DREAM IS AWKWARD

The dream of a Servian bishop has had some rather awkward consequences In a letter to a friend Bishop Nikandor of Nish said that he dreamed that a great revolution had taken place in Servia and that the streets ran with blood Finally Prince George remained master of the situation and became King of Servia The bishop's friend published this letter and an agitation against the bishop was commenced in Belgrade and Nisch Finally the bishop was subjected to an examination resulting in his being not responsible for his actions He thereupon lost his position but in his own diocese a movement has been commenced for his reinstallation Demonstrations in favor of the bishop who enjoys great popularity are also being made

COLOR QUESTION IN SOUTH AFRICAN LAWS

CAPE TOWN Jan 7—In South Africa there is just now a recrudescence of the color question and in the Union Parliament a Dutch member has introduced an amendment to the marriage bill forbidding marriage between whites and colored persons The heads of the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches declare that if the amendment be carried they will nevertheless solemnize such marriages Other churches except the Dutch will probably act in a similar way The government is trying to kill the amendment but a large body of Dutch opinion demands the enactment of this restriction

The Dutch church is promoting a private bill to amalgamate the different sections of the church A feature of the bill is a clause enacting that colored members of the church in Cape Colony lose their membership if they migrate north of the Cape while colored people in the northern colonies will be ineligible for membership

VILLAGE FEUD LEADS TO TROUBLE

Many Outrages Follow Legal Battle on Charge of Slander.

Family of Two Brothers and Sister Lose Reason on Same Day

(By THOMAS EMMET)

DUBLIN Jan 7 The Redmond family to which the Irish leader John Redmond belongs has had a distinction almost unparalleled in parliamentary history

William Archer Redmond who was elected for the representation of East Tyrone [illegible] is the son of the leader of the Irish party He bears the name of his grandfather who for many years represented Wexford in parliament Already members of the family for three generations have sat in parliament—and for their native county of Wexford—namely John Redmond and his brother William Redmond their father and their great uncle

FEUD DEVELOPS

How a village feud brought about through the people taking sides over a dispute between a priest and a curate led to outrages was told at the hearing of a slander action brought here by John Smith Patrick O'Reilly and others against a James Smith a Ballyhally farmer

The defendant was secretary of the Drung branch of the United Irish League

One of the plaintiffs stated that eight or ten outrages were committed in Drung The outrages included window breaking breaking into a Catholic chapel injury to farm implements tossing hay burning and destroying plants The people in the parish took sides—some with the parish priest and some with the curate resulting in bitter feeling The defendant won the suit

THREE GO MAD

A family of two brothers and a sister named Kilcullen the eldest a sudden lost their reason the other day in Mayo The brothers were seen careering furiously in a trap through the streets of Ballina and their extraordinary behavior attracted the attention of the police who placed them under arrest

Their strange answers and conduct aroused suspicions and when a doctor was called in the two men were declared to be insane At their house six miles away their sister became suddenly demented about the time that the brothers were arrested and she and the two men were removed to the asylum the same evening

A year ago another brother became insane

OUTLINES SCHEME

Lord MacDonell addressing the Historical Society of Trinity College recently outlined his scheme of devolution in which he said he had the concurrence of Lord Dunraven

The proposed system had no parallel in our colonies It postulated the maintenance of an imperial parliament at Westminster a representative Irish assembly with legislative and administrative functions controlling the executive and dealing with purely Irish matters and the establishment of an Irish treasury furnished with funds in the manner indicated in the Irish councils bill the continuance of the [illegible] responsibility for financing land purchase and the reasonably [illegible] recognition of the conclusions of the royal commission on financial relations

NOTHING TO GAIN

From tariff reform he said Ireland had nothing to gain but a great deal to lose He believed his countrymen would not relax their efforts to procure that measure of legislative and administrative control which would enable them to manage the domestic affairs of Ireland free from English official meddling

The Irish people had been willing to live as subjects to the king if only they were allowed to live in peace They objected to being governed by a foreign nation which had demonstrated its absolute unfitness to govern any people foreign to itself They objected to being pillaged and oppressed by men who never saw Ireland and had no interest in it save that interest in it which a freebooter has in the place he pillages He added

But the English government has never forgiven the concession they had been compelled to make in 1782 and had striven at every favorable opportunity to recover by guile what they had yielded to force

DUTCH NEUTRALITY DEMANDED OF HAGUE

THE HAGUE Jan 7—The Dutch government has published an extract from the secret report on maritime defenses in which it declares that the system of defense must give complete guarantees for the maintenance of Dutch neutrality

The fortifications of Texel are to be modernized those of the port of Ymuiden and of the Nieuwe and Helewoutsdyk also to be supplemented by works of the highest class at Flushing The total cost of the scheme is estimated at about $6 000 000

FIVE LIONS POISONED BY OX THEY KILLED

4 474,00 IN AUSTRALIA

SYDNEY N S W Jan 7—An advance estimate of the population of the Australian commonwealth places the total number of people in the six states at 4 474 000 and allowing for the normal increase before the census is taken next year there should then be a total of 4 500 000 which would represent an increase during the past ten years of about 725 000 or 19 per cent.

QUEEN RAISES WHIRLWIND IN NORWAY

Ruler Criticized for Allowing it; Score Poisoned by "Loco" Weed.

(By ERIC GRUNDMARK)

COPENHAGEN Jan 7—A tempest in a tea pot has been caused in Norway by Queen Maud Her majesty who is devotedly attached to her 7 year old son Prince Olaf in order to help a local charity issued a beautifully decorated Christmas carol illustrated with pictures of the little prince

While the Norwegians are very fond of the baby prince they are also very religious and some of the pictures in connection with the carol come pretty near the line of being sacrilegious to their minds placing the prince on the place of the divine child whose birthday is celebrated on Christmas Hence the action of the queen is being severely criticised in some quarters

REMAPKABLE SUIT

Much interest is felt in a remarkable lawsuit which is set for trial here next week Among the witnesses summoned are their majesties the Dowager Queen Sophia of Sweden and Queen Louise of Denmark who was born a Swedish princess and Prince Carl and Eugene That any of these royal personages will appear in court is not believed

The plaintiffs are the heirs of Hilga de la Prash who died in 188[illegible] In her will she made this remarkable declaration

My parents were King Gustavus IV of Sweden and his consort Princess Frederikke of Baden That this is true can be proved by four letters which I deposited with the (then) Crown Prince Oscar the late king of Sweden

It is for the purpose of proving the existence and contents of these letters that the royal witnesses are called

If the case comes to trial some very interesting developments are expected whether the queens and princes testify or not It is regarded as possible however that the case will be settled out of court

VISITS VIENNA

The King of Denmark has been staying for a week at Vienna on private business incognito and he has paid a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland at their country seat near Gmunden King Frederick may very likely visit Frankfurt and Paris on his way back to Copenhagen His majesty travels as Count Kronborg and he is attended by one equerry

Prince Waldemar the third and youngest brother of Queen Alexandra is going to England shortly on a visit to her majesty at Sandringham [illegible] and will probably be accompanied by his daughter Princess Margrethe Prince Waldemar's children will [illegible] their grandfather the [illegible] Chartres

SCORE LOCOED

The last issue of a medical journal at Munich contains an article describing the strange sickness for which the unwitting eating of henbane by guests at a boarding house at Davos was responsible

The doctor says that 25 visitors and some employes were given horseradish for dinner with which the henbane root was accidentally mixed and all were poisoned

A Russian lady who spoke German fluently forgot that language An English woman wanted to teach everybody her tongue One woman thought herself a flying swallow another on her hands and knees insisted on searching for an old [illegible] that was lost and several women could not stop laughing One woman ran to the telephone and put her tongue out at the receiver as though exhibiting it to a doctor A female servant piled the water bottles in her own bed [illegible] those of the visitors A [illegible] visitor busied himself painting imaginary [illegible] while another guest set out for the village store [illegible] and bought useless things in heaps The proprietor of the boarding house carried a tureen of soup in his ball room and emptied the liquid on the piano A doctor was sent for and explained how they had all been poisoned by henbane This affects the brain but all the patients recovered after treatment

POLICE HOAXED BY CLEVER 'AD'

Rich Woman Wanted Husband and Got Several of Them.

PARIS Jan 7—There is much laughter on the Paris boulevards over an elaborate hoax just worked off on a number of innocent people and on the police Among the personal ads in the daily papers appeared the announcement that a rich woman wanted a husband [illegible] inviting replies from men who were desirous of marrying a rich woman

Naturally there were scores of replies and each applicant was asked to be at a certain cafe at a certain hour and to wear a white rose for identification At the same time the police were warned by letter that a great Royalist demonstration would take place at the cafe in question at the same time

Crowds of [illegible] seekers gathered at the cafe and [illegible] regarding the suspicious white roses the general stupefaction arising from the situation can be imagined Gradually it began to dawn upon them that they were victims of a practical joke [illegible] Parisians they saw the humor [illegible] several couples amicably [illegible] after a friendly glass left the cafe together Meanwhile the police were watching the scene for signs of a plot against the Republic When they realized what this amounted to they also departed with broad grins

CONSUMERS FORM LEAGUE IN PARIS

Weary of Oppression and Exploitation, Ultimate Buyer Takes Hard.

The State Tobacco Monopoly Finds it Necessary to Advertise Goods.

(By GEORGE DUFRESNE.)

PARIS, Jan. 7 — Simultaneously with the new year a most interesting league was born here.

It is called "The League of the Paris Consumers," and it means business. In three days it has attained several thousand members. University professors, politicians and property owners are amongst those joining the new league, the main object of which is to protect the unfortunate consumer from the abuses of which he is the victim.

It is pointed out that up until now the consumer has remained isolated and therefore powerless. He has submitted with angelic patience to the increase in the cost of living, to the strikes in the public services and to the increases in salaries. But he is now weary of being oppressed and exploited and intends to make his voice heard.

The idea of the league was first suggested by M. Gide, a professor in the Faculty of Law, who considered that the time was ripe to create a vast association which should defend individual interests. The League of Consumers will seek to bring pressure on public authorities and take immediate action when the prices of articles of food are unjustifiably increased.

NEEDS ADVERTISING

The Regie, which is another name for the State tobacco monopoly, has found it necessary to advertise its goods. This step has been taken on account of the publicity given to foreign cigars and cigarettes in the State tobacco shops. Outside the shops a luminous sign informs the passerby that foreign tobacco can be had within. Inside these foreign goods are displayed everywhere, the cigars of French manufacture being relegated to some dark corner. The result is that the French products are not getting a chance.

But all this will be changed. The Regie is going to take up advertising. A catalogue is in course of preparation. In it will be described the different kinds of cigars and cigarettes turned out by the State. Much is expected from this catalogue. But the Regie will have to take care not to defeat its object. There have long been complaints of delay in furnishing supplies. What is the good of smokers being attracted to a certain cigar or cigarette through an advertisement if they cannot get it when they ask for it?

MAIL BY AEROPLANE

Convinced of the great usefulness of aeroplanes not only in war but also as a means of communication in peace, the French colonial minister is about to spend $80,000 for experiments with Bleriot monoplanes in the French colonies, and before the end of the year mails may be delivered regularly by aeroplanes in French and West Africa.

The aeroplanes are to leave here in about a week and the erection of post hangars will be undertaken at once.

When the Chamber meets again the minister will ask for a grant of $100,000 to be spent during 1912 in establishing an aerial postal delivery service in Indo-China in case the West African experiment proves successful.

POSTPONE DEBATE

By postponing the debate on the French naval estimates for the coming financial year until the Chamber meets again, Admiral Boue de Lapeyrere, the indefatigable Secretary of the Navy, has gained time to prepare some very important and interesting declarations. The Secretary has a naval program which will add immensely to the strength of the French navy already prepared, and M. Briand intends to stake the whole political existence of the cabinet on its adoption by the Chamber and Senate.

The Prime Minister is also thoroughly persuaded of the imperative necessity of at least eight new Dreadnoughts. At present two are being constructed with the utmost rapidity, the Jean Bart at Brest and the Courbet at Lorient. They are of 23,500 tons each and they form the model of ironclads to come. In fact when parliament voted the credits for them it was understood that the two ships were an installment of the program. I do not think that in the present parliament and with a Prime Minister the force of M. Briand opposition to the scheme will have any chance of success.

REVOLUTIONIZE WIRELESS

From Italy comes the news that Professor Felice Jacovielo of the University of Parma has invented an appliance which will completely revolutionize wireless telegraphy and transmission of electrical force.

Though difficult to explain in simple language it may be said that the appliance is constructed with the object of transforming ordinary electric currents into Hertzian waves, and experiment has proved the power of an appliance to transform 90 per cent of any current. It consists of an [illegible] which two tubes of metal varying according to the force of the current to be transformed [illegible] the [illegible] points. Currents varying in strength from fifteen thousand [illegible] hundred thousand volts have been [illegible] with success[illegible]. The most interesting part of the arc is a strong stream of air or at times gas that is forced through the two metal tubes of the arc in such a manner that the molecules of the air or gas move in the same direction as the ions and electrons or electrified particles [illegible] air. The stream of air or gas serves to regulate the production of [illegible] particles and to render the [illegible] charging and discharging many thousand volts per second into and from an electrostatic condenser, thus producing Hertzian continuity.

TRANSFORMED POWER

The chief advantages of this new appliance are that it utilizes a much bigger percentage of the transformed electric energy than before and permits the use of electrostatic condensers only one twentieth of the size of those ordinarily employed.

The first experiments with the arc were made on November 17 at the Arsenal of Spezia. The wireless telegraph station at Venice on the other coast of Italy, to which the Hertzian waves were directed by the [illegible] instrument, replied immediately that the signals had been received with an extraordinary force and clearness. The length of the waves generated by the arc is said to be at present two thousand miles. The strength of the appliance can be judged from the fact that steel plates of armor and other metals rapidly melt in the neighborhood of the arc [illegible] that electric furnaces can now be constructed more simply and much more cheaply than before. For purposes of illumination the arc is equally valuable. Glass tubes and globes from which air has been extracted yield a bright light when placed in the path of the Hertzian waves.

The railway station square of Parma will shortly be lighted in this manner.

MYSTERY SHROUDS MURDER OF WOMAN

Wealthy Berlin Woman Killed in Flat; the Police Follow Clews.

BERLIN, Jan. 7—The mystery surrounding the strange murder of Mme. Hoffmann, a wealthy widow 68 years of age, is monopolizing public attention at present.

Mme. Hoffmann, who inherited a large fortune from her husband, was closely related to several high government officials and occupied a prominent position in Berlin society. She lived alone in a small flat.

Curiously enough, owing to the fear of being murdered, Mme. Hoffmann refused to engage a companion or servant, declaring that an elderly helpless lady was easily killed by unscrupulous domestics.

Mme. Hoffmann, who went out every morning, visited a theater on the night of December 6 accompanied by a woman friend. The next morning the charwoman cleaned the flat as usual. This was the last time that Mme. Hoffmann was seen alive.

CRIES ARE HEARD

About two weeks later the occupant of the flat immediately beneath the flat occupied by Mme. Hoffmann heard continuous screams and calls for help, then the words: "I don't want to die. I [illegible] yet." These words were followed by a heavy thump and then heavy footsteps.

The neighbors, who were thoroughly alarmed, rushed to the concierge, who summoned a policeman from the street. The entire party went upstairs to Mme. Hoffmann's flat. Hearing sounds within, the policeman knocked at the door.

At first there was no reply, but finally persistent knocking produced the response: "I was ill, but am feeling better. I shall not open the door."

The concierge declared that the voice was that of Mme. Hoffmann, but it was strange and somewhat muffled. The policeman was not satisfied and proceeded to force the door. The moment the door was opened another door inside the flat leading into the room behind the entrance hall was hastily locked.

When the policeman promptly forced this door the person within the room retreated to another apartment and locked the door. When the third door was forced the fugitive escaped through a back door down the backstairs and got away unnoticed.

FIND NO CLEW

After an attempted pursuit, which proved fruitless, the policeman with the concierge and three neighbors proceeded to examine the [illegible]. There were no suspicious signs [illegible] concluded that Mme. Hoffmann must have become mentally deranged and fled from her home under some delusion. The policeman locked the flat and departed.

A few days later a relative arrived from the country to visit her and heard the story of her remarkable flight from home. [illegible] more suspicious than the police [illegible] neighbors, she informed the authorities, [illegible] sent a policeman with her [illegible]. After searching all the rooms the policeman, the relative and the wife of the concierge were about to leave again without discovering anything when the latter thought that the appearance of the bed was unusual.

She pulled the quilt away and found Mme. Hoffmann's body wrapped in the bedclothes.

The police are following several clews which lead to the conclusion that the perpetrator of this mysterious crime must have been a woman intimately acquainted with Mme. Hoffmann.

'DISLOYAL PARTNERSHIP' BRANDED CONSPIRACY

London Conjures Up Dark Pictures of Armed Resistance, as Result of Recent Election

(By PHILLIP EVERETT)

LONDON, Jan. 7.—I doubt if any place in the civilized world is as dull as London during the weeks that follow immediately after Christmas, and this year it has been particularly bad. [illegible] who can possibly afford it is away [illegible] the [illegible] them selves [illegible] to fill [illegible] papers.

[illegible] of news [illegible] papers still continue to [illegible] the election which ended nearly [illegible] weeks ago and the results of which are certain to be the [illegible] of the Tories and [illegible]. Some of the Tory papers have [illegible] worked up a little excitement by [illegible] how their [illegible] picture [illegible] Major [illegible] smuggling [illegible] from Germany free of [illegible] blessing [illegible] present free and potent [illegible] on the [illegible] when they [illegible] to govern [illegible] at these well advertised secret [illegible]. The government is not [illegible] keeping an eye on these supposedly bloodthirsty [illegible] of the [illegible] press.

DISCUSS PLANS

Meanwhile the English [illegible] in this partnership of disloyalty are still discussing their future plans. The special point which seems to rest heavily on [illegible] the question of the [illegible]. Shall they force the [illegible] not?

[illegible] first [illegible] was [illegible] It has a false note. The [illegible] puppet [illegible] all [illegible] still less [illegible] phrases. What [illegible] of the present peers [illegible] Lord Lansdowne [illegible] What [illegible] Liberal [illegible] Lords not only willing to pass the veto bill but willing to give instant passage to all the great Liberal bills? What if they in their turn served a tariff re[illegible] that the Tory peers served the budget of 1909?

CHILLY THOUGHTS

These are chilly thoughts of the Tories and [illegible] the danger of thinking [illegible] noblemen are [illegible] jests.

What if the new peers [illegible] a new aristocracy of merit and [illegible] which would throw the old aristocracy into the shade? The thing is not impossible.

The government at any rate [illegible] out [illegible] to [illegible] eight [illegible] If the existing peers [illegible] obstinate they are quite [illegible] whatever [illegible] may be necessary. They would do [illegible] they are determined that the [illegible] gulf [illegible] of [illegible] from their purpose. [illegible] the veto bill.

SURPRISE PLANNED

London is to have some great surprises in the way of [illegible] in the coming year. [illegible] few weeks [illegible] leading [illegible] Calvin [illegible] huge [illegible] One of the foremost of these American makers of fun [illegible] is Mr. F. McClellan of Coney Island, New York's famous pleasure resort.

McClellan holds the opinion that English exhibitions and other summer resorts are not half jolly enough.

[illegible] states [illegible] advantages [illegible] The proposed [illegible] of [illegible] will [illegible] court next year, for instance, will [illegible] novelties which will give Londoners [illegible] excitement [illegible] form of switchback which will give people the opportunity [illegible] will cost $10[illegible]. Many other riding devices [illegible] novel character are to be introduced."

The hitherto unpublished cantos of Garibaldi's great autobiographical poem have now been issued to the world. The work was written by the great Italian hero during his enforced stay on the Island of Caprera in 18[illegible]. [illegible] handwriting was [illegible] by an English lady [illegible] Mrs. Roberts, and it is to her devotion and industry that [illegible] now [illegible] for a work of massive and spontaneous genius by Italy's most heroic figure.

The poem consists of 30 cantos in blank verse. Its surpassing merit consists not so much in technical perfection or the mere artistry of word—the work was largely an improvisation and was dashed off at red hot speed—but in the sublime grandeur and nobility of the conception in which the struggle for Italian liberty is recounted in epic form. Never perhaps in the history of literature has a political theme been treated so magnificently.

The [illegible] canto is not new. Italian readers [illegible] preserved it during his lifetime to the [illegible] instruction [illegible] should be devoted to the [illegible] but in the neighboring pine woods where his wife Anita died in his arms while he was fleeing from the Austrians. In this canto Garibaldi described with infinite pathos this sad tragedy in his life

CHICAGO TIP TRUST IN DANGER

Two Chicagoans Capitalize a Restaurant and Cafe Patrons' Gratuities.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—The Chicago tip trust is in danger of dissolution. Bernard Neuburger is suing his partner, Jacques Rousseau, for an accounting.

According to the bill filed in court, the trust has concessions from the leading restaurants, installs check racks, bootblacking and in many instances manicuring stands.

"Your orator further represents," the bill continues, "that the nature of the business consists of installing and operating racks and rooms for checking parcels, wraps and the wearing apparel of patrons frequenting cafes and restaurants, and also [illegible] for the purpose of [illegible] in attendance on the patrons, and for furnishing and operating bootblack stands; that they employ numerous attendants in all of said places for said purposes.

ALSACE-LORRAINE GLOWERING AT CONSTITUTION, BRANDED SHAM

Herr Von Bethamn Holweg's Document Makes Him No Friends in Section He Desired to Win Over

(By FREDERICK WERNER)

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—If Herr von Bethamn Holweg hopes that the constitution which he has just granted to the annexed French provinces, Alsace-Lorraine, is going to win much needed friends for him in that part of the German empire or praise from France or the German Liberal party, he is evidently greatly mistaken. To the people of Alsace-Lorraine who had hoped for a real, not a sham constitution, the grant is a great disappointment because it does not go far enough, and here in Prussia it is looked upon with bitterness because it grants to the people of the annexed anti-German provinces greater freedom than loyal Prussian subjects are now enjoying.

What makes the home rule proposition more interesting than anything else is that its second chamber, which consists of 6 members, of whom half are named by the Kaiser, evidently gives an intimation of what the government considers a model senate. The other 18 members of the Alsatian upper house will consist of the heads of the recognized religious communities, the Evangelical, Roman Catholic, Jewish, etc.; of four representatives of the town councils of the four largest cities in the Reichland (Strassburg, Metz, Kolmar and Muehlhausen); of three representatives of the chambers of commerce, [illegible] from the chambers of agriculture, and one delegate from the Strassburg University and the Strassburg chamber of trade, and lastly [illegible] president of the central law court.

REICHSTAG SUFFRAGE

As for methods of election to the popular chamber, they probably show the lines on which Prussia would like to revise the Reichstag suffrage. Males over 25 years of age get one vote, those reaching [illegible] get two, and those of [illegible] get three votes.

The laboring population, which is everywhere very shifty, is almost entirely disfranchised by a clause requiring a residential qualification of three years from all those who do not possess either a stake in the country or independent means of living. This clause is obviously intended to handicap the Socialists.

As I intended to say, the proper [illegible] Alsace-Lorraine [illegible] constitution is a failure principally because it does not [illegible] the German [illegible] Alsace-Lorraine remains [illegible] its sovereign [illegible] no resemblance [illegible] autonomy.

The press of Alsace-Lorraine has not for a moment concealed its opinion that the people [illegible] the constitution [illegible] themselves [illegible] gratitude toward the [illegible] press is [illegible] that the [illegible] a single [illegible]. [illegible] opinion in Holland [illegible] strongly opposed to the scheme of the government for spending $19,000,000 in coast defenses.

It is generally agreed that the government [illegible] to some indirect pressure from Germany. No one seriously believes that the coast of the Netherlands is in danger from Great Britain. The only power that can covet [illegible] occupation of Holland [illegible] people [illegible] government [illegible] policy of [illegible] eastern frontier [illegible] annual subsidy [illegible]

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—New York is a great hotel town. It seems to be [illegible] there are constantly more visitors in the city than there are inhabitants in any but a few of the largest cities in the country. New York [illegible] has more than once entertained [illegible] guests [illegible] citizens [illegible] other city in the United States, and [illegible] has never been any complaint that she did not take good care of them. MARY MANNERING COMING TO THE MACDONOUGH

SYDNEY AYERS WHO PLAYS "SAMSON" YE LIBERTY

MME. GERVILLE REACHE, CONTRALT YE LIBERTY.

LA PIA OAKLAND ORPHEUM

MACDONOUGH.

Mary Mannering, who will come to the Macdonough Theater for two nights only, January 11 and 12, says that if she married again she would pity her husband.

"Yes, that's the truth," states Miss Mannering. "If I were to marry now I should expect my husband to be so perfect that it would be impossible for him to live up to the picture. He would have to be supplied with a number of qualities that I would never have asked for in my youth. I should better realize his advantages and I am afraid I would be something of a tyrant.

"One thing is quite certain, men growing up nowadays will have to be mighty careful, or they won't be able to marry. Why, of course not. Do you think a woman who has been about the world, who knows the good and the bad side of life, and who makes enough money to live comfortably on her income, is going to throw herself away on a man. No indeed, women are becoming more and more particular, and if a woman makes up her mind to marry she first ascertains that the man she loves is all that she expects of him.

"Now that women are going around in the world earning their own living, they don't have to marry for their bread and butter, and consequently are becoming very particular.

"The girl of a few years ago could not make the same demands as she can today. Or, rather, she might have made them, but nobody would have paid any attention to her. They would have said she didn't know what she was talking about, and told her to attend to matters more in her own line. Why, I know myself, when I married, I was only 18 years old, and although I loved my husband and felt sure that he was all that I expected of him, I could not have set the same standard I would now set if I should marry again, which I suppose I never will.

"'A Man's World' is a wonderful play, I think, and certainly proves that a woman is very much to be pitied if she doesn't take good care of herself. Every woman should be trained to do that, and even if I were a millionaire many times over, I should have my baby learn to be independent."

MINSTRELS COMING

Manager H. H. Campbell of the Macdonough Theater takes pleasure in announcing that he has secured Richards & Pringle's famous minstrels for four performances, opening January 14.

This famous band of Funsters, like wine, appears to improve with age. For thirty years they have kept the whole world laughing, and, like Tennyson's "Brook," bid fair to "go on forever."

The beautiful new first part, the palace of revelry, is a dream of splendor and a feast for the eye. Extravagant adjectives do but slight justice to the scenic painters' art. This, together with the lighting effects and beautiful and expensive satin and silk costumes and settings form a picture not soon to be forgotten, and represents an outlay of money that would stagger a minor attraction. The singing portion of the program is under a competent instructor and you will hear the songs of the Southland sung with a spirit and fidelity true to the ante-bellum days.

But the good things do not end here. There are seven big vaudeville acts, two of which have never appeared with a minstrel company before.

There will be a parade at noon on January 14, and also a free band concert by the best minstrel band in the world, at 7:30 o'clock in front of the theater.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Dollar Princess" is well supplied with comedians, each of whom seems the funniest fellow you ever saw—until the next one comes on the stage. Their merry sallies kept the big audience in a gale of laughter till the rafters rang at the Knickerbocker Theater during its ten months run there last season.

The music of "The Dollar Princess" composed by Leo Fall, which comes to the Macdonough Theater, is almost worthy of a place in the realm of grand opera. The lyrics are extremely graceful and melodious, and "The Dollar Princess" waltz is fast becoming recognized as the successor of the famous "Merry Widow Waltz." Not only is the score of superior merit, but the orchestration has been as carefully worked out as for a Wagnerian opera. The result is a delightful concert.

Miss Maxine Elliott, who has not been seen in some seasons, comes to the Macdonough Theater in "The Inferior Sex," the jolly nautical comedy from the pen of Frank Stayton, with which she captivated New York theatergoers at Daly's Theater last winter and spring. Miss Elliott, who is the only woman in the cast, will have practically the same supporting company which was with her in New York, and identically the same production, which shows the cabin and deck of a luxuriously appointed yacht and which is especially lavish.

SENSATION COMING.

"The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," the title of the musical comedy which set Broadway aflame with enthusiasm and stirred the critics of the city, is rather a misnomer. So much has been written about it that further words are almost useless. However, a few sentences to correct a popular misapprehension, doubtless caused by its suggestive title will be worth while. That it is chic, bizarre and inspiring, is frankly admitted. That it has dash, harmless transiency, effervescence is cordially granted. That it is not risque, low in moral tone or offensive to the modest eyes and ears is whose direction it appears at the Macdonough theater, commencing today. The most defensible thing about "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" is the abundance of song hits and its pretty and vivacious dancing stunts. Parisian costumes, always a delight, are a notable feature. The production is elaborate and the presenting company is unusually large, requiring a special train of five cars for transportation.

YE LIBERTY.

For the week commencing tomorrow evening the stock players will offer the initial local presentation of one of the most remarkable dramatic hits of the past several seasons, "Samson," another play from the pen of the brilliant Henri Bernstein, whose earlier success, "The Thief," proved him to be one of the greatest living dramatists. This new play is said to be much stronger than the latter piece, and judging from the manner in which it was received in New York when played there originally by William Gillette and later by James K. Hackett, it is certainly a play far above the ordinary.

The story of "Samson" is one of great strength, and an idea of the acting opportunities it affords an evenly balanced stock company like the Bishop players can be gained from the following brief synopsis: "Samson" is Maurice Brachard, the self-made millionaire copper operator of Paris, who has earned the title by the power his money and methods have given him. His wife is Anne-Marie, daughter of the Marquis D'Andeline, who had accepted him as a son-in-law for his wealth alone. Finding that he is paying more attention to money-getting than to his home, the wife engages in an intrigue with Jeanne Le Govain, prompted thereto not by love of him, but by the need of distraction this man-about-town who has been made by her husband's generosity could provide for her.

Brachard discovers the intrigue and plans revenge, for Le Govain's fortune is invested entirely in copper stocks which he (Brachard) controls. He invites Le Govain to the rooms he has provided for himself at a downtown hotel and forcibly detains the frantic man while newsboys are shouting the news of the great crash in copper stocks in which both are going down to utter ruin. For this modern Samson, in order to reduce to poverty the man who has disturbed the happiness of his home, sacrifices every penny of his own fortune. Then love for this strong husband who had sacrificed all for her, and who because he is now poor all his former associates despise, is kindled in the heart of Anne-Marie, and they are reconciled.

The cast to be seen in this great play at Ye Liberty next week is one that is certain to do it full justice. Sydney Ayres will be seen in the title role, and Miss Muriel Hope as Anne-Marie, and both are ideally suited to their respective parts in every way. Henry Shumer appears as the Marquis, Mrs. Gleason as his wife and James Gleason as their dissipated son. Andrew Bennison has an excellent role in Le Govain, and George Friend, Walter Whipple, Maribel Seymour and Catharine Calhoun will have the remainder of the more important roles.

"Samson" will be given at the Liberty for next week only, with the usual Saturday and Sunday matinee performances, and will be followed by "Billy," the farce comedy which ran all last season at Daly's Theater, New York.

Mme. Gerville-Reache, the possessor of the most beautiful contralto voice in the whole world and one of the greatest artists now before the public, will appear at Ye Liberty playhouse next Wednesday afternoon, January 11, at 3:30, offering one of the best and most varied programs of song ever heard in one afternoon.

This artist, who has appeared with Tetrazzini in New York and London, has, like the great soprano, the faculty of winning the hearts of her audiences, and Manager Will Greenbaum predicts that the name of Gerville-Reache will be added to the list of favorites who are always sure of a welcome whenever they may choose to return to us.

The program to be given on this occasion contains no less than six great operatic numbers besides beautiful "lieder" in German, French and English. Here is the exceptional offering in its entirety:

(a) "J'ai perdu mon Eurydice"...Gluck
(Orphee et Eurydice.)
(b) "Mon coeur s'ouvre a ta voix".. .... Saint-Saens
(Samson and Delilah.)
(a) Aufenthalt .... Schubert
(b) Ich grolle nicht .... Schumann

(c) Chanson Slave .... Chaminade

(e) Viens avec nous petit (La Vivandiere .... Godard

Seats will be ready at Ye Liberty box office on Monday morning and prices will be $1, $1.50 and $2.

Jarislav Kocian, the Bohemian violin virtuoso, will be the next musical attraction, the date being Friday afternoon, January 20.

ORPHEUM.

The great Orpheum Road Show, whose annual visit to the Oakland Orpheum is the theatrical event of the year, will appear this afternoon beginning an engagement that is expected to be memorable in every way. There is always a tremendous crush during the Road Show week, the business invariably being of the "standing room" variety at every performance, with hundreds turned away. The management announces that the advance sale this year is very large, news of the Road Show's tremendous success in San Francisco having preceded it here.

The twin brothers Rigoletto, Charles and Henry, who come with the Orpheum Road Show, have proved an immense sensation in Europe. Not since the appearance of Sylvester Shaefer at the Alhambra theater, in London, four years ago, has there been a performance as versatile, unique and interesting as theirs. Their offering is divided into eight parts, each entirely distinct, and in every one they attain perfection. They excel equally as instrumentalists, as jugglers, as Chinese magicians, as mimics, as illusionists, in plastic poses, as acrobats and as aerial gymnasts.

La Pia, who makes her first appearance here at today's matinee, comes direct from the Palace theater, London, where she was playing a sensationally successful engagement when seen and engaged by Martin Beck for this season's Orpheum Road Show. She is a girl of extraordinary beauty of face and form and she presents four varied dances, the effect of which is heightened by elaborate scenery, electric and cinematographic effects. Her most brilliant performance is her last dance, "The Spirit of the Wave," and in it she manifests the greatest originality. The stage seems to be transformed into a raging sea and the breakers are seen rolling thunderingly against the shore. In the midst of storm-tossed waves La Pia appears and with frightened expression tries to reach a place of safety. A prey of the roaring ocean she is thrown back and forth, now covered over, then swaying on the crest of a wave, until at last she is swallowed up by the angry sea.

Howard, Scotland's premier ventriloquist, who is said to excel every other ventriloquist abroad, will be one of the chief features.

Mae Melville and Robert Higgins, eccentric character singing comedians, will reappear next week at the Orpheum after quite an absence. Their skit is entitled "Just a Little Fun" and the immense popularity they enjoy will insure it a cordial reception.

Charles B. Lawlor, with his two clever daughters, will appear in a melange of songs and dances, with comedy trimmings, that are all calculated to please immensely.

Charles Leonard Fletcher, with a fine company of players, will appear in the drama called "His Nerve." It is a splendid sketch, splendidly played and Mr. Fletcher will demonstrate why he is given a proud place on the Orpheum Road Show list. There is a dramatic sketch included in the Road Show roster always, and this year it is Mr. Fletcher's privilege to be selected for that feature of the show.

Wellington Cross and Lois Josephine will provide laughs with their laughable sketch "Dying to Act," with song and dance numbers of approved excellence.

Joe Jackson, an immensely funny tramp cyclist who was recently brought from Europe by the Orpheum company, will round out the big bill. There will be special motion pictures.

You always are sure of a satisfactory bill at the Bell theater, but this week they are going to give you more than

BEARISH TWANG IN WHEAT PIT TODAY

Much of the Buying Was for Houses On Advances Yesterday.

CHICAGO, Jan 7—Cheap Australian and Argentine offers at Liverpool had a bearish effect today on the wheat market here. Local longs unloaded quite freely. Good support however, developed at shade under $1. Considerable of the buying was for houses on the advances of yesterday. Trade was of fairly large proportions. Prices opened ⅜@⅝c lower. May started at $1@1 00¼, a loss of ⅝c to ¾c, touched 99⅞c@$1 and rallied to $1 00¼@1 00⅜.

Later the demand for wheat slackened and the pressure increased. The close, however, was firm with May at $1 00⅜@1 00½, a net loss of ⅛@¼c.

Corn turned strong after an easy period at the outset. The reason for the change was a dispatch asserting that unless there was a rain at once in the Argentine Republic, that country would not harvest half an ordinary crop. May opened ⅛@¼c off at 49⅝c to 49¼c, sold at 49¾c and then advanced to 49⅞@49⅞c.

Predictions of lighter receipts helped keep the corn market firm. The close was ⅛c net higher at 49¾c for May.

Cash corn—No 2 and No 2 white, 43½@46¾c; No 2 yellow 46⅝@47c; No 3 45@45¼c; No 3 white 45¼@45½c; No 3 yellow 45¼@45½c; No 4 44¼@44¾c; No 4 white and No 4 yellow 44@44¾c.

A general rush of sales carried down oats for a while, but there was a reaction with corn. May started ⅛@¼c lower at 34⅝@34½ and rallied to 34⅝@34¾c.

Advancing hog prices gave a firm tone to provisions. First sales were 5c to 12½c higher with May options at $19 20@19 27 for pork, $10 72½ to $10 37 for lard and $10 70 to $10 17½ for ribs.

The closing quotations were as follows:

Wheat—May, $1 00⅜@1 00½; July, 96c; September 94⅛c.

Corn—May 49¾c; July 50½@50⅝c; September 51⅛@51¼c.

Oats—May, 34⅝c; July, 34⅜@34½c; September 34⅛c.

Pork—January $19 30; May $19 20.

Lard—January $10 67½; May $10 32½.

Ribs—January $10 70; May $10 12½ to $10 1[illegible]; July $10 07½.

Rye—Cash 8[illegible]c.

Barley—Cash 60@79c.

Timothy—Cash $3@[illegible].

Clover—Cash $10@10 45.

LIVERPOOL, Jan 7—Broomhall says: The wheat market showed a fairly firm undertone at the immediate start with offerings light, stimulated by the unexpected firmness in American markets yesterday and values were ⅛d to ⅜d higher. Following the opening there was further light covering by shorts on the expected light world's shipments and the decrease in the visible here. Later and during the remainder of the morning the market was under selling pressure and prices declined ⅜d to ⅛d from the opening. Pressure was due to cheaper Australian and Argentine offers, very poor demand from mills, weakness in spot, favorable reports from Roumania and India and less demand from the continent. At the close the market was weak and ⅛d lower than yesterday. The corn market was quiet at the start and unchanged to ⅛d higher. Following the opening there was an additional advance of ⅛d with the undertone firm. There was a smaller demand for forward shipment, but the lower offers offset by the unfavorable outlook in Argentine and indifferent covering by January shorts.

CHICAGO, Jan 7—The Inter Ocean says: That wheat is in control of the Armour-Lichstern interests [illegible] apparent [illegible] as [illegible] suggestion [illegible]. It was the talk among traders last night that the bull leaders would put the price high enough to unload all their wheat at a profit [illegible] surprising. It was the gossip on wheat last night that the big St Louis trader who sold through Lamson & Bennett was a heavy covered his line yesterday through Wagner. The latter's buying from 00¾c to $1 for May carried the [illegible] element [illegible] their feet and stampeded shorts above $1. Messages sent out by the Armour Grain Company claimed that the government had overestimated the wheat crop 4? 000 000 bushels, that domestic conditions are [illegible] that there are over 90 000 000 people in the United States and it is unnecessary for an export demand to use all the wheat we raise. Traders do not agree with these statements and say that the movement of the crop and supplies show differently. Traders said that the [illegible] interests was powerful enough to force all the shorts to cover at higher prices and [illegible] eventually make the public believe that there is a scarcity of wheat if it is possible before they [illegible].

It was [illegible] traders last night [illegible] the country [illegible] sold [illegible] yesterday. There was [illegible] of corn bought by houses who [illegible] The [illegible] country [illegible] were able to pay the farmers 40c in Illinois and they sold it [illegible] interests and shippers here [illegible] in the country. It was not realized that the bull interest [illegible] on the break and traders said that the late strength in corn was due to sympathy with the strength in wheat.

ACTIVE SELLING IS ORDER ON CHANGE

Reading Sold 8000 Shares Under Yesterday's Price; U. S. Steel Reduced.

NEW YORK, Jan 7—The market opened heavy under an active selling movement in which all the leading shares participated. There was a sale of 8000 shares of Reading at from 153¼ to 153¼ compared to 154 yesterday's closing and 8700 shares of United States Steel at 73¾ to 73½ against 74¼ yesterday. Elsewhere losses ran from ⅛ to ⅜ with an exceptional decline of ¾ in Canadian Pacific and 1 in Union Pacific. The announcement of the closing of the Carnegie Trust Company was made just after the market opened.

The market received influential backing as soon as the closing of the Carnegie Trust Company became generally known and supporting orders were quickly distributed which stopped the decline. Reading, which had been one of the weakest features, was marked up from 153¼ to 154¾, placing it ⅝ above yesterday's close. Consolidated Gas also scored a similar recovery but the rest of the list fell a trifle short of making up all of its loss.

The short interest took alarm at the subtle character of the buying orders which appeared in the market and bid for stocks eagerly to retire their contracts.

The demand was especially urgent for Reading, which climbed to 150, a rally from the low of the morning of almost 2 points. Baltimore and Ohio and local Gas stocks also were bid up aggressively and there was a further jump of 4 points in United Railroads and Investment.

Generally speaking, the market showed a good rise over the final prices of yesterday with the inquiry broad and comprehensive and on a large scale for both accounts.

NEW YORK, Jan 7—Gibson says: There are still evidences of profit taking in the stocks which have recently advanced, but the selling seems to come from more traders who have operated for a turn than from any important interests. So far as I can determine there are no stocks pressing for sale and on the whole offerings are well absorbed. I do not believe there is any considerable floating supply of stocks in the street. The brokerage houses say their loans are not more than 25 to 30 per cent of normal and that they have very few long accounts on their books. I do not look for any material decline and think the recessions will be quickly recovered under present conditions unless something occurs to influence the course of prices. Would buy on every dip of a point or two, waiting to sell at higher prices a little later. Wheat and corn are on the mend and I look for higher prices for both cereals. Would sell cotton on every hard spot.

Eastern Theatrical Notes

(By JAMES GRANT THURSTON.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—During the holiday season about 25,000 poor children were entertained free of cost by the theatrical managers of Greater New York. Other well-meaning men and women got the credit for it, but as a matter of fact the theatrical men footed the greater part of the expenses.

Senator Timothy D Sullivan, one of the men, treated thousands of children to free fun and also gave a Christmas dinner and shoes to five thousand homeless men. He was a newsboy years ago.

Lillian Russell recently celebrated her birthday somewhere beyond the Rocky Mountains. It was on December 4. It is bordering on the unchivalrous to mention the age of this beautiful woman, so I shall not say anything more about it beyond stating that she was born in Iowa, two years and five months before the Civil War began and she doesn't look a day over thirty-four.

OPERA IN ENGLISH.

The Chicago Grand Opera Company will in February give here a performance of Victor Herbert's grand opera "Natoma," in English with Mary Garden in the title role.

The opening night of the Chicago Grand Opera Company of Series A on January 24 will be Massenet's "Thais," with Miss Garden, Messrs Dalmores and Renaud. The opening night of Series B on January 31 will be Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman," with Mmes Marguerita Sylva, Alice Zeppilli and Lillian Grenville, Messrs Dalmores or McCormack and Renaud in the leading roles.

In response to a number of requests managers along the route of Sarah Bernhardt's tour of the United States William F Connor has decided to extend the season of the French actress for six weeks.

The added weeks will extend Bernhardt's American engagement until spring and will necessitate the cancellation of conditional contracts to appear in Mexico and Cuba.

Last week was the last week of "The Commuters," the "play with 1000 laughs," which has scored such a success at the Criterion Theater, giving its 152d performance. "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," which is also due for a long run, was produced at the Gaiety with an extra Christmas matinee.

Victor Herbert and Rida Johnson Young's "Naughty Marietta," with Orville Harrold, is still played to crowded houses at the New York Theater while at the Garrick Annie Russell is scoring an unquestioned success in "The Imposter."

Women are still flocking to see "The Foolish Virgin," with Mrs Patrick Campbell at the Knickerbocker, while the Bijou is doing a big business as it is the last two weeks of Zelda Sears in "The Nest Egg."

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" at the Republic, and "The Concert" at the Belasco, are both leaping in honors at the respective houses and are expected to run weeks yet.

The spread of the legislation in reference to the employment of child labor has been so rapid that managers, authors, actors and others interested in the theatrical enterprise are taking steps to protect themselves against further restrictions. At the Hotel Astor a few days ago there was held a meeting attended by Augustus Thomas, Marc Klaw, Henry B Harris and others who understand State legislatures.

The discussion was in a large measure informal, but one of its results will be the appointment of committees and the arrangement of a definite campaign against further encroachment.

THEATERS BURN.

During the past week three theaters were destroyed. The Shubert Theater and several adjoining buildings in New Orleans were destroyed by fire. The loss in total will amount to about $150,000.

Fire almost completely destroyed Harter's Opera House, Wabash's best known theater.

Miss Marguerite Snow, who has just returned to this city after finishing an engagement, was present at a dinner when the subject of disagreeable weather came up.

"When I was playing at the Willis Wood in Kansas City two years ago," said the young woman, "we had an awful sleet storm. The streets became so slippery that twenty-seven horses fell and broke their legs. All were shot. The noise of the revolvers sounded like a battle."

Everybody gasped and a short period of silence followed. Then a young man spoke up.

"When I was in Denver, playing at the Broadway," he said, "the snow was so deep and slushy that every woman who attended the performance wore rubber boots, which she removed and checked in the foyer. One woman lost her boots and had to remain in the theater all night."

There were more gasps of astonishment. Miss Snow was the next to score.

"I was in a company that opened in Salt Lake City one winter," she said. "Two Utah men were the financial backers of the show. The night of the opening performance the frost was so thick it froze the pocket-books of the angels, and there was no show."

SONGS AT $1 PER.

A number of vaudeville artists have received cards announcing that there is a sweet singer down in Maine who was prepared to write songs for $1 a piece. Some of them have sent him their measures for songs.

Here is something new. A loving cup for a woman. Bessie McCoy, who was in "The Echo" in Brooklyn recently was recipient of a handsome loving cup, the gift of the company. The presentation speech was made by Mrs Annie Yeamans.

The Travelers' Aid Association is widening its scope and believes stage people should take an active interest.

The Association has for some time done a great but unostentatious work along the lines of protecting young women from the perils of great cities, and it has of late made an especially strong appeal to the sympathies of stage people by its work in caring for a band of English dancers, none of them over seventeen years of age, who were recently left without funds in a southern city. An appeal to the police of Memphis placed these girls in touch with the Travelers' Aid, who met them when they reached here, and with the assistance of the British Consul put them in the way of a better engagement than they had before enjoyed, and furnished a home at the inn maintained by the association until they were able to look out for themselves again.

Mayor Fitzgerald has accepted from Blanche Ring a fund for the winter's care of the Boston Common squirrels robbed of their homes and food by the tearing up of the Common for improvements.

The Blue Bird will not leave the Majestic Theater on the date recently announced. Matinees will be given from December 26 to January 3.

Happy Jack Gardner is back in the vaudeville [illegible] after another season as [illegible] feature of the George Primrose Minstrels and he is in it with one of the most laughable sketches he has ever put over. [illegible] of the Gardner tabloid [illegible] "A Close Call" and it is so framed [illegible] gives Mr Gardner ample opportunity [illegible] his famous monologue and [illegible] several song numbers that every one will relish. He has a great supporting company and there is every indication that the act will be a big feature of the Road Show. Joe Dungan, the roystering raconteur, will offer his original fund of comicalities and comic ditties. He is one of the most [illegible] characters on the vaudeville stage and like all spare fellows he is the soul of jocundity.

Lee and Chapman have an eccentric novelty and while their specialty is of the laugh provoking type it abounds in sensational gymnastic feats. With it all there is a plenitude of music, song and mirth of the character that makes for fun and is sure to tickle the palate of the still vaudeville attendant. London's lively [illegible] Kitty Edwards is another distinguished luminary of the road show. She comes from across the water. She is a delightful comedienne of the fresh and [illegible] type. She has a voice of rare training and is noted for gorgeous costume display.

The Three National Comiques will be seen in a whirlwind acrobatic act that is shot full of comedy, so much so that it becomes difficult whether to class it as comedy or an athletic offering. Their work is fast, extremely thrilling and of an unusual order.

Fred Penhoff and Anna Gordon in a cracker-jack novelty act combine a wide knowledge of music with an unlimited supply of native humor and have put this combination in a vaudeville offering distinctly to the profit of vaudeville. Their most exacting critics claim that their music produced on a wide range of instruments is in a distinctly high class. Great motion pictures have been secured, and with the foregoing list of positive attractions one will find at the Bell this week a bill that will suit every one.

ALCAZAR.

One of the funniest comedies ever written is "Billy," which is to be given its first presentation in San Francisco next Monday evening at the Alcazar with Evelyn Vaughan and Bertram Lytell in the leading roles. It was constructed by Mr and Mrs Sydney Drew and produced by them in New York where it scored a long and profitable run, after which it was put on tour and made much money for its proprietors. Its plot hinges on the loss and recovery of a set of false teeth owned by Billy Hargrave, a football hero who is ultra-sensitive as to his personal appearance.

QUIET RUN SMASHES CARNEGIE TRUST

Though Not Financially Interested, Steel King Will Aid Bank Named for Him

Immediate Cause of Failure Was Rumor Connecting Wrecker Robin With Concern

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The State banking department took possession of the Carnegie Trust Company this morning and closed the doors of that institution until its tangled affairs shall be straightened out.

Whether the company is solvent is not yet known, as no statement bearing on this phase of the matter could be obtained from O. S. Cheney, superintendent of the State banking department. In point of fact the superintendent declined all day even to see newspapermen, nor could any of his deputies or examiners be induced to utter a single word of information.

ROBIN CAUSE OF FAILURE.

Apparently the immediate cause of the failure was based upon rumors in quiet circulation for two or three weeks that J. G. Robin, who is now in jail under indictment for wrecking the Northern Bank, was heavily involved with the Carnegie Trust Company. These rumors resulted in a quiet but determined run on the bank. Heavy withdrawals were made without attracting public notice until the total deposits were less than the legal reserve. The reserve prescribed by the law in the cases of all trust companies is 15 per cent of deposits, exclusive of trust funds and other specified preferred deposits. The last statement of the company issued on November 10th last showed total deposits of $8,8[illegible]6,75[illegible]. Of this amount the preferred deposits of all kinds amounted to $4,7[illegible]6,350. The total of deposits therefore subject to the legal reserve law was $4,191,3[illegible].

NEW YORK HEAVY DEPOSITOR

Among the bank's many depositors is the city of New York, with an account of $650,000, which Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde has managed to keep on its books despite the efforts of Comptroller Prendergast to reduce the account. Finding himself unable to compel the chamberlain's office to protect the funds of the city, which at that time amounted to $1,000,000, the comptroller early in June last obtained a guarantee from the directors of the bank to protect the city.

This guarantee was delivered on October 31st to [illegible] after repeated demands by the chamberlain.

It is not now in the possession of the city. Mr. Hyde's whereabouts have been a mystery for more than a month.

All that the city has to protect its [illegible] is a certified copy of the guarantee made by the comptroller before he delivered the original to Hyde two months ago.

CARNEGIE PROMISES AID

It was asserted tonight by one of the executors of the estate of [illegible] Dickinson, founder of the company, that negotiations were well under way with Andrew Carnegie to come

LONDON DROPS HIS PEN FOR SAW

Plants Eucalyptus Trees and Wants to Abandon Writing Forever.

"Miserable Occupation" for Him and It Has Been Wearing Him Down

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—Jack London, who verbally and imaginatively whipped Judge Samuels of Oakland in a magazine article a short time ago, is paying a flying visit to friends in Los Angeles preparatory to turning his knowledge of nature from the writing of books to the cultivating of eucalyptus trees.

London stated tonight that his revenge was complete and in the very near future he would throw aside the pen and pencil for the more congenial ax and rip saw. The author and his wife came to Los Angeles last Thursday night. He was seen today and said:

TO QUIT SCRATCHING

"I have been trying hard to get out of the writing game for many years. I never liked to write and only took up the profession as my third and last choice in life. I did it to make money, and I made it. I made up my mind some time ago that as soon as I saw my way clear to making money in another direction I would quit pen scratching for good. I think that my eucalyptus trees will help me make my getaway in the near future and it will be a relief for me to get out of the scorching focus of the public eye.

"Writing has always been a miserable occupation for me. One has to burn whole gallons of midnight oil to get ideas, and lately it has been wearing on me. I do not appreciate the honor of having my books get into the hands of many people who cannot read [illegible] meanings [illegible] not understand me.

TO PLANT TREES

"I have written my stories and in a sense had my [illegible]. I am satisfied with the results of my work, and now it is going to be trees for me and the bigger the better. The year before last I planted over [illegible]4,000 eucalyptus trees [illegible] and last year put in 30,000 more. I am here now to look over the samples of wood at the chamber of commerce exhibit.

"I have been told that this is one of the most complete exhibits of its kind in the country and I want to know all I can about the subject. If things turn out well the reading public may say good-bye to Jack London."

The Londons are staying with [illegible] Felix Pianos in the Wilshire district, but expect to leave the city in the course of the next few days.

Vivien Gould to Wed Lord Decies Feb. 7

Date of Wedding of Prominent Couple Becomes Known by Accident

LONDON, Jan. 7.—It was learned today that the marriage of Miss Vivien Gould, daughter of George Gould, and Lord Decies will take place February 7th in New York. The date had been kept a secret from the public, but became known today by accident.

Hon. S. R. Beresford, brother of the groom, has arranged to sail for New York [illegible]. He is to be best man at the wedding. Whether the ceremony is to be performed at the Gould mansion or at a church has not been decided.

RESIGNS PLACE AS AMBASSADOR TO TURKEY

OSCAR STRAUS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Oscar S. Straus of New York has resigned as American Ambassador to Turkey.

Straus has had a wider diplomatic experience than any man connected with the State Department, having been minister to Turkey under Presidents Cleveland, Harrison and McKinley. He was offered the place of Ambassador to Japan last year but refused it. Later he went to Turkey. Straus has made a deep study of diplomacy and international law.

MILLIONAIRE FLEES; ALSO TYPIST

Charles Drummond Said to Have Eloped for the Third Time

Tobacco Manufacturer's Son Is Still Married to His Second Wife.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Charles Drummond, millionaire in his own right and son of the multi-millionaire tobacco manufacturers of St. Louis, is in New York today and is said to have eloped again from his home with a young woman.

Only four days ago he was fined $500 for bigamy and paroled on his promise never to touch liquor in St. Louis and never to marry without being legally divorced. Miss Agnes McClanahan of St. Louis, a pretty stenographer, also is missing.

Drummond left St. Louis Thursday afternoon. A young woman was with him when he alighted from the twenty-four hour train from St. Louis last night.

It is believed that Drummond, who has been divorced from two wives and who legally is still tied to a third wife, and the young woman will sail for Europe.

ACCOMPANIED BY MAN.

Drummond and the young woman were accompanied by a young man named Logan, who seemed to be guiding them and aiding them to find a hotel in New York. Logan traveled with the couple from St. Louis to this city.

Drummond, looking fatigued and not at all like the pictured youth in the flush of a romantic elopement, was hailed by a man who had known him in St. Louis as he stepped from the train. He would not answer a direct question as to whether he contemplated another plunge into matrimony, and when he approached a taxicab he turned with a smile and said:

"I don't happen to be Mr. Drummond."

He then jumped into the taxi.

ELOPED EACH TIME

Each of the three times Drummond has married he eloped. His last marriage was less than one month ago, when he went through a ceremony with Helen Vance in a St. Louis rathskeller. Immediately after the ceremony Miss Vance burst into tears.

Drummond's first marriage was in 18[illegible]5, following his elopement with Miss Mabel King, a daughter of [illegible] King, a stove manufacturer. He was then 20 years old and she was a school girl. Mrs. Drummond later filed a suit for divorce in Chicago, charging that Drummond drank to excess, squandered his money in bucket shops and neglected her and the children. She said that she was hypnotized when she became Drummond's wife, and the decree she asked was granted.

Drummond next eloped with Charlotte [illegible] and they were married at Clayton. She parted from Drummond in [illegible] four weeks, declaring she had been hypnotized and that Drummond was under some strange psychic influence. Then, without the formality of a divorce, Drummond married Miss Vance. She also claimed to have fallen under hypnotic influence.

When the third marriage became known Drummond was arrested on the bigamy charge.

Thirty Thousand People Cheer the Kings of the Air at Tanforan

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—San Francisco today passed a new mark in the record of her achievements. Her first real aviation meet opened with what, without strangulation of the exact truth, can be called a blaze of glory. Even that hen-pecked phrase is inadequate.

It was perfect weather, more remarkable than the aviation to the aviators. On the rest of us, some 15,000, the estimators say, the wonder and wizardry of it was lost. Meteorological luxury is ours by divine right.

A Summer Day

It might have been possible to pass unrecorded that summer day of today had it not, at the very inauguration of the meet, plumped this city into the ranks of apologists.

The aviators did not altogether like it. Amazing, but true. They found it too hot—too hot in the lower strata of air. It forced them to fly high to keep cool. And they're wary, these magicians of the clouds, of high flying until they have tested the temper of their craft. But today they found that they sweltered in the lower air lines.

Alleged Vanderbilt Is Identified

PARIS, Jan. 7.—The police have at last identified who, posing as Frederick K. Vanderbilt and who is alleged to have swindled a number of persons, including Prince Miguel of Braganza, Anita Stewart's husband, is an adventurer named Thompson. He was born in Warrnambool, Victoria, Australia.

Thompson speaks seven languages. He has a polished manner and except when he wears a yellow wig looks very like W. K. Vanderbilt. Thompson married a Miss Oakley of San Francisco, a daughter of the late Judge Oakley of California, and a near relative of Franklin Pierce. The ceremony took place in Paris July 16, 1898. After a honeymoon of three days his wife left him.

Battleships Located by Cruisers

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—A wireless message received here says that Rear-Admiral Staunton, commanding the fleet of armored cruisers, scouts and torpedo craft, has found the United States battleship fleet which has been steaming across the Atlantic in an effort to get into a position to make a theoretical attack at some strategic point along the coast.

The battleship fleet, which comprises the 'enemy,' commanded by Rear-Admiral Schroeder, sailed from European waters with the information that a fleet was to be sent out to defend the coast against its attack. While the maneuvers have been entirely a naval problem, the navy department has taken great pains to create conditions closely resembling those which would exist in warfare.

Havemeyer Will Reveals $29,000 Violin Collection

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The report on the estate of the late Henry O. Havemeyer shows that the sugar king left a collection of violins valued at $29,000, exclusive of a Stradivarius valued at [illegible] seized by the government, which charges that the instrument was smuggled.

Havemeyer bequests to his family are: [illegible] widow, $1[illegible]2,270; [illegible] Mrs. J[illegible] Watson [illegible]; Adeline [illegible] $4,0[illegible]; Horace [illegible] $[illegible]18,810.

U. S. Senate Is in Tumult And Lorimer May Resign

[illegible] Lorimer of Illinois, [illegible] storm that will break in the Senate Monday over his election, may resign. Canvasses of the senate are bringing out a surprising amount of strength in opposition to the seating of the senator.

Predictions were freely made that Lorimer will be forced out of the Senate [illegible] he doesn't resign. [illegible] are voicing their criticism that he should appear on the floor of the Senate at a time when his face is hanging in the balance. Others are saying that he ought to resign.

Many senators feel keenly that the Senate of the United States itself is on trial in the eyes of the people and that if it calmly submits to the seating of Lorimer in the face of what has been disclosed [illegible] the Illinois [illegible] the [illegible] stand [illegible] will be irreparably damaged.

One of the striking developments in the situation is the Democratic strength in opposition to Lorimer. Inquiry among the Senate Democrats [illegible] discloses that probably not more than a third of them will stand by Lorimer. This in spite of the fact that Senator Bailey of Texas has lined up for him.

If Lorimer does not resign Monday the fight will open then and will go to a finish this session.

MYSTERY VEILS DEATH OF COUPLE

The Detectives Follow Clews for Week and Problem Is Still Unsolved.

Coroner Adheres to Murder and Suicide Theory; State's Attorney Differs.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 7.—The deaths of Miss Grace Elosser and Charles Edward Twigg on the eve of the day set for their marriage a week ago becomes more and more of a mystery.

The members of the Elosser family in whose home the tragedy occurred maintain their united declaration that they know nothing of how the young man and woman were poisoned.

Coroner Beall still holds to his theory that the poisoning was the deed of Twigg; no explanation of why Miss May Elosser was also given a small dose of the deadly drug has been forthcoming.

ATTORNEY IS CERTAIN

State's Attorney Robb, however, is just as firm in his belief that some one who was in the Elosser home knows how the poisoning was done. His detectives are zealously pursuing clews on the basis of that theory.

Miss May Elosser was questioned again today and she solemnly reiterated her denial of any knowledge of the cause of the killing. Considerable significance is attached by the state's attorney to the testimony of Mrs. Carrie See, the youngest of the Elosser sisters, who said that she had hidden a certain box of candy after the tragedy.

Coroner Beall, who is pursuing a careful investigation of the past life of young Twigg, says he has found that he was of a peculiar temperament. The coroner believes Twigg suddenly determined to kill his fiancee and himself and acted on the determination.

Although he has received reports that Twigg has had other affairs with women and might have been hounded by some of his former sweethearts, the coroner has not been able to find any letters among Twigg's possessions indicating that he had such affairs.

SISTER WAS UPSTAIRS

The coroner has found confirmation of the statement that May Elosser was upstairs dressing when Mrs. Elosser found the pair dead. May claims she was attracted from her room by her mother's screams.

State's Attorney Robb predicts that there will be a surprising development and very soon. He has put Pinkertons at work on the case.

The report that May Elosser has been friendly with a woman in South Cumberland is being looked into carefully by the officers.

ATTEMPT TO KISS TENANT IS CHARGE

"Blackmail," Says Wife of San Jose Capitalisst "Wanted" by the Police.

SAN JOSE, Jan. 7.—Accused of having forcibly attempted to kiss the pretty wife of one of his tenants, Homer Prindle, retired capitalist and a former member of the city council, is wanted on a warrant charging battery sworn to by A. J. Neilsen, the woman's husband. Prindle is out of town but his wife says he is the victim of a blackmailing scheme.

Prindle was taken in a patrol wagon from the home of Mrs. Christine Neilsen, 486 North First street, where the struggle for the kiss is said to have occurred at 7:30 o'clock last night, but was released on his own recognizance.

Neilsen told Police Judge Thomas Dougherty today that Prindle made an appointment with his wife during the day to close business differences.

After trying to arrange the engagement in a cafe, says Neilsen, it was agreed that Prindle should visit Mrs. Neilsen in the evening when her husband was away. Neilsen and a neighbor were in hiding and rushed out and seized Prindle when Mrs. Neilsen summoned them.

According to Neilsen, Prindle would not talk business but seated himself beside Mrs. Neilsen on a lounge and used "force and violence" in attempting to kiss her.

The story Prindle told his wife was quite different. He said Mrs. Neilsen invited him to sit beside her to discuss business and that he heard Neilsen in the house despite Mrs. Neilsen's assertions that he was away. He said Neilsen rushed in when his wife failed to persuade him to cancel certain obligations. The Neilsens came recently from Salinas.

SPALDING BACKER SAYS CHESTER ROWELL OFFERED JOB TO A LOS ANGELAN

San Diego Aspirant Wires That He Will Be in Sacramento Tomorrow to Wage Big Fight

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 7.—George Burnham, president of the San Diego county chamber of commerce, came in tonight with a statement that is believed by those who know him and questioned by those who do not, among the latter being Meyer Lissner.

Burnham came through Los Angeles yesterday on his way to the capital to help make A. G. Spalding, the baseball man who won 73 assembly districts but lost on the state wide vote, United States senator. Here is what Burnham says:

"While passing through Los Angeles on Friday I met one of the most prominent business men of that city who told me that only a few hours before Chester Rowell of Fresno had called upon him and asked him if he would accept the United States senatorship."

LISSNER SHRUGS HIS SHOULDERS

But Burnham refused to give the name of the prominent man who said that Rowell had approached him.

Of course this talk was bandied about by the few members of the legislature who are here. Judge Works didn't seem to mind it. Lissner shrugged his shoulders gracefully, waved his hands and smiled as though it was all rot.

But it is known that Chester Rowell is in Los Angeles and Burnham's statement is given credence to the extent that it is probable there will be a new candidate for senator when the time comes to name him.

Former Assemblyman [illegible] of Los Angeles arrived this evening as the advance agent of Edwin A. Meserve of Los Angeles, who ran third for the senatorship in the primary election.

MESERVE CLINGS TO STRAW

For the last week [illegible] legislators who had been advised to vote for Edwin A. Meserve for the United States senatorship, as well as those who had expressed a desire to cast their votes for either Works or Spalding, have made requests of Mr. Meserve to permit the presentation of his name as a candidate for that office before the session of both houses next Tuesday.

"I am authorized to state that Mr. Meserve feels that he is entitled to the same consideration by the Legislators with reference to this office that any candidate at the primary election receives next Tuesday."

Some days ago Spalding of San Diego advised the members of the Legislature that inasmuch as under the primary law seventy-three of them had been instructed to vote for him for United States Senator he did not think it necessary to come to Sacramento and ask their votes.

SPALDING TO SHOW HIMSELF

Then the whisper went around that Spalding was afraid to come to Sacramento because he knew nothing about national issues and would be embarrassed if he was asked any sort of a question about the tariff, conservation or how he stood on the income tax or the referendum.

All these knocks were wired to Spalding. So last night the cheering news was received that Spalding would be in town Monday afternoon. Here is the telegraphic correspondence:

Sacramento, Cal., January 7.

A. G. Spalding, San Diego:

You are cordially invited by a majority of legislators to be at Hotel Sacramento Monday. All express desire to meet you before voting. You will not be expected to do any soliciting. Your presence is necessary to offset false statements concerning you and your position. Immediate answer respectfully asked.

GRANT CONRAD,
Chairman Spalding Committee.

San Diego, Jan. 7.

Mayor Grant Conard, Hotel Sacramento, Sacramento: Your telegram of this day just received. In response to your urgent request and in deference to an expressed wish by a large number of the legislators who have asked for an opportunity to see and confer with me, and because of the duty I now feel that I owe to the voters of the seventy-three districts of the state carried by me at the August primaries, I will gladly accept your invitation and, barring accidents, will be in Sacramento next Monday afternoon.

A. G. SPALDING.

JOHNSON SEES NO DEADLOCK

Apparently Governor Johnson does not believe there will be a deadlock on the senatorship, or that there will be even a [illegible] ballot. This afternoon he said that on Wednesday he would be ready to send to the legislature his views on railroad measures, indicating that the senatorial fight would be settled by that time.

On Monday the Democrats will go into caucus on the senatorial situation. No one believes that the twenty-one Democratic senators and assemblymen will get together, although Theodore Bell, while asking that they do not vote for him, advises that they get together on some one. So far the only Democrat who says that he intends to vote for a Democrat for senator is Sanford of Mendocino.

"If in the caucus," said Sanford, "some one of my party is selected for the compliment, why I will vote for the choice of the majority, but in the event of no agreement I intend to nominate and vote for John A. Raker of Modoc."

WOMEN TO LOBBY FOR EQUAL RIGHTS

Mrs. E. V. Spencer Will Lead Suffragist Delegation in Fight at Sacramento

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—When the amendment which the suffragists of the State are endeavoring to have passed comes up before the present Legislature in Sacramento, among the women who will be found in the struggle for equal suffrage for women will be Mrs. E. V. Spencer of Berkeley.

Mrs. Spencer will leave tomorrow for the State capital, where she will be joined by a large delegation of suffragists and their supporters. She is a member of the Berkeley Suffrage Club as well as the California Equal Suffrage Association and is known throughout Northern California for her work in the interest of the cause.

It was the late Judge Spencer who introduced the suffrage amendment in the California Legislature. The bill was first brought up in 18[illegible]. Since her husband's death Mrs. Spencer has been indefatigable in her work for political equality for women.

Mrs. Spencer is the mother-in-law of Judge Burroughs of Lassen county, and another daughter is the wife of Congressman-elect Raker of Modesto.

Mrs. William Keith, wife of the well-known California artist, is president of the Berkeley Suffrage Club. She has been an active worker in the interests of suffrage for the women of California. Mrs. Keith declares that the bill which Senator [illegible] will introduce providing for the right of suffrage for women who are taxpayers is an unjust discrimination.

"We want equal suffrage," she declared, "and to place property above manhood or womanhood is un-American."

POULTRY FANCIERS ELECT OFFICERS FOR YEAR

Prof. W. E. Gibson Is Chosen Head of Alameda County Association

MANY LARGE RANCHES PRODUCE FINE BIRDS

Campaign of Education Will Be Carried On During Winter.

Officers for the new year were elected by the Alameda County Poultry Association at their last meeting and the executive committee, which is composed of the active officers of the organization, past presidents and members appointed by the association. The new officers are as follows:

President—Professor W. E. Gibson.
Vice President—James S. Mansfield.
Treasurer—H. B. Scott.
Temporary Secretary—William T. Frost.
Superintendent—C. E. Ross.

The members elected to act on the executive committee in addition to the official members are W. H. Ingram, J. H. Crow, William T. Frost, H. N. Wilcutt.

This is the eighth year of activity for the organization, which now numbers about 75 members. A poultry show is given each year as a means of stimulating interest in the raising of good poultry and showing the results already achieved in that direction by the continued efforts of the poultry raisers of the county. The last show was held at Piedmont pavilion a month ago and was highly successful in attaining the desired results.

WILL EDUCATE

"The purpose of the association this year is education," said Professor W. E. Gibson, the new president. "We propose to educate the poultry raiser and fancier and the public as well in the benefits to be derived from poultry raising, when properly manipulated to secure the greatest showing of results, and we propose to show them how to do it. We will have lectures by prominent men in the poultry business on the important phases of chicken raising, such as incubation, brooding of chicks, feeding, housing and the general care of the fowls according to the best methods known at present. We will endeavor to interest people outside of the poultry raisers in the series of talks to be given during the winter on these subjects. The first meeting, which will be held on the last Wednesday evening in January, will have Incubation as its subject. The speaker of the occasion has not been selected yet by the program committee, which is composed of W. H. Ingram, Herbert Gregory and E. O. James.

INTEREST BEING SHOWN

"Increased interest is being manifested in such subjects as farming, dairying and poultry raising of late years, as is shown by the establishment of the agricultural department at the State University. Chicken raising has grown to be a science instead of a haphazard proceeding based on guesswork, and poultry raisers are glad to get information on the improved ways of conducting their business so as to get the maximum of results from it. We wish to impress on people the value of good stock and careful breeding in evolving the highest type of revenue producing poultry.

"The standard of perfection in each breed is set by the American Poultry Association and it is interesting to note that no one specimen has ever reached the standard in every requirement so far. We have given a show every year for some time and have had many fine chickens exhibited. There are many large poultry farms in the southern end of the county, both of fanciers and those who raise poultry for commercial purposes."

Among the more important ranches is that of H. C. Ingram at Irvington, who specializes in White Leghorns. W. H. Hirsch also has a large place at Irvington, as has Mrs. Carrington at Haywards. Professor Gibson has a place at Niles where he makes a specialty of Rhode Island Reds. One of the establishments which, although not extensive, is important to chicken raisers, is that of W. H. Ingram of Fruitvale, who is the representative of John Bell of England, one of the largest breeders of Orpingtons in the world.

The association holds a meeting on the last Wednesday evening of each month at which an address is given on the topics of interest to the poultry fanciers of Alameda county and the problems which are of vital interest to the [illegible] brought up for discussion.

THREE BROTHERS BORN JANUARY 3

Sixteen Years Intervene Between the Oldest and the Youngest.

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 7.—Peter [illegible], G. C. D. and J. H. Lyle [illegible] celebrated the anniversaries of their birth on January 3. Sixteen years intervene between the oldest and the youngest. [illegible] Lyle is the eldest, being born January 3, 1846. The second is [illegible] H. Lyle, born January 3, 18[illegible], while Robert G. Lyle, a wealthy farmer and stockman living near Pullman, Wash., first saw the light of day on January 3, 1863. The latter says that his family has a record seldom if ever equalled in any of the continent. His claims are verified by documentary proof in the shape of family and court records giving the date of births. As already noted, Robert G. Lyle has been a resident of Eastern Washington since Territorial days. He has made a study of breeding cattle and other stock as well as devoting much of his time to agriculture. His farm is one of the best in Whitman county, where the average wheat production is about 8[illegible] bushels a year.

300 Miles an Hour Can Be Attained

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—It is possible for an aeroplane to fly much swifter than any vehicle that has ever been built. Right at this moment its capabilities are far beyond the daring of any human being.

The foregoing statement was made by Wilbur Wright during his recent visit to this city.

"It is perfectly feasible to build an aeroplane which will fly 100, 200 or even 300 miles an hour," said Mr. Wright. "Possibly an aeroplane might attain even greater speed. In our propellers I believe we have the screw that can produce almost any speed. Going at the rate of 300 miles an hour a man who could stand the strain would make the trip between New York and Chicago in less than three hours."

Dr. Cook admits that he once sold apples.

President of Company, a Tennesseean, Kicked J. G. Robin Out of Directory

to the relief of the institution that bears his name, but in which he held no financial interest, that Mr. Carnegie virtually had agreed to render the desired aid, but insisted that he must be allowed to study the situation carefully until next Monday morning. It was said further that this representation had been made to Bank Superintendent Cheney, but that he refused to withhold action longer than this morning.

A dramatic feature of the efforts made by the bank officers to avert the impending doom was the virtually all night plea made by W. J. Cummins, the institution's heaviest individual stockholder and also at the head of it, to Mayor Gaynor to use his influence with powerful financial interests to come to its relief. Early in the evening of [illegible] Mr. Cummins, a personal friend of the mayor, went to the mayor's residence with [illegible] of the institution, together with a statement of its resources, and [illegible] spent efforts that he said [illegible] success to [illegible]. But [illegible] refused to interfere.

Joseph T. Howell, the president of the concern, was brought to New York only in October from the presidency of the Fourth National Bank of Nashville, Tenn. He succeeded J. B. Reichmann. Nashville is the native town of W. J. Cummins. He and Howell had been associated there in many enterprises. About two years ago Cummins bought heavily into the Carnegie Trust Company, [illegible] over a fourth of its 15,000 shares.

SOME TRAGIC HISTORY

The late [illegible] C. Dickinson, whose tragic death attracted national attention last spring, and who was the organizer and founder of the Carnegie Trust Company, induced the Tennesseean to enter the company first as [illegible] and then as a director. At that time J. G. Robin was a director.

It is related by persons familiar with the affairs of the Carnegie company that soon after Cummins was elected to the directorate and had installed himself in offices adjoining the banking room at the rear, Robin visited him one day and solicited a private interview. Robin is said to have told Cummins flatly and brutally that if he were not exceedingly cautious in protecting his interests he would be robbed by Dickinson and the latter's clique.

"If you are not a thief you are certainly an [illegible]," the southerner [illegible], "and [illegible] I don't want to deal with you in any capacity, and especially as a business associate. If you do not get out of my office immediately I will kick you out."

It was not long after this episode before Robin was forced out of the directors, so the narrative runs.

He was then said to have loans with the company exceeding $200,000. Settlement of these loans soon after was forced, according to statements of well informed persons today.

W. J. Sampson, loan clerk, added the positive assertion that Robin now has no loan with the Carnegie, nor has he had since his official connection with the institution was severed. In this connection it is recalled that the investigation of the Aetna Insurance Company, a Robin concern, by the State insurance department early in December revealed the fact that Robin had negotiated a characteristic transaction with the Carnegie Trust involving $43,000. To cover up this amount, which he had taken from the Aetna's funds, Robin got $43,000 from his Northern bank, giving the bank a draft for that amount on the Carnegie Trust Company, where he had no funds. At that time Robin was ill at home. He telephoned the Carnegie Company telling of the draft he had made and saying that to make this good he was sending to the bank a draft on the Atlantic National Bank of Providence, R. I., where he had a large amount on deposit. It turned out that Robin had no funds at the Providence bank, and he was required immediately to cover his loan with the Carnegie by depositing securities worth several times the amount of the $43,000. This was [illegible] by Carnegie officials.

discriminately all over the peninsula today. The man who was taking the salt water cure for his feet on the beach at the Cliff House or who was fishing under the shade of Point Bonita or peddling shoe laces at the Ferry building, or stoking coal on a ferry boat, had just as much of a thrill today as the gentleman who sat in the grand stand at Tanforan with binoculars glued to his eyes.

Toreadors of the Air

They were generous with their thrills today, those lean leathered toreadors of the air.

It was the first day, tuning up day, and the lust for records had not yet got into their blood. The judges, the senior judges and the junior judges, and all the little judges had little to do but walk around in their aviation clothes—wonderful things these aviation clothes, reminiscent of horse shows and Scotch golf courses—and wear their gay arm bands to the best effect. The morning had worn itself away before a real aviator had put on his leather trousers.

Military Encampment

The growing crowd had gazed itself eye weary at the neat little military encampment which Major O'Neil has planted in the heart of the aviation field. It had listened to the band to its heart's content. It had watched the khaki-clad soldiers trace pretty figures on the green sward until it could not quite remember whether it had come to a military show or a bird-men's carnival.

Valiant Amateur

It had watched the lumbering evolutions of a pterodactylic thing that one of the amateur airmen proudly called his airship. The announcer could not pronounce this airman's name, so the crowd was left in ignorance to watch his valiant efforts without suspecting his identity. He deserved a better fate, that amateur, for he was the only one of the fourteen amateurs scheduled to "fly" who had the temerity to try.

Trying was the best he could do. He tried and tried but it was no use; so he led his thing away to tell it his mind in the hangar.

That amateur's vain effort furnished a little comic relief that kept the morning hour from hanging heavy. If the management was wise it would scatter this comic relief through it the day to relieve a little the monotony of thrills. Less than an hour after the time the management had set aside for the patronage of the pale green oysters that blink at the sun from glass bowls and other provender stored behind the grand stand, the military camp, the soldiers, the band and the amateurs had been forgotten.

Willard Appears

Unexpectedly there was a rattle and a whiz off toward the hangars, and in another second real aviator Charles F. Willard was in the air scooting for the hills that rise above South San Francisco. Then in a few minutes English Jimmy Radley was heard to remark "Blimey, where is this 'ere Goat Island that Ely is talking about? I want to see it."

Radley Sails Away

And while the crowd was still "ahing" and "ohing" at Willard away went Mr. Radley. With a wave of his hand to the crowd on the stand the little Englishman, who is disloyal enough to ride a French machine, a Bleriot monoplane, was off on an air line to San Francisco.

Ass he flashed past the stand every heart that held a grain of aestheticism went out to his birdlike Bleriot, and every eye watched it grow smaller and smaller, until it was but a speck in the summist over the bay, and then disappear.

Then Came Announcer

Then came the announcer, who is strong on "ladies and gentlemen" but weak on French names—so weak that he would rather lose his job than call out "Marie Antoinette," no longer the name of a queen, but of an airship. Through his aeroplane he announced. "Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Radley has now started on a trip around the bay. I will announce his progress as we get reports."

He did. For the next twenty minutes that announcer was busy. Hadley had reached the bay. He was sailing over the bay. He was in sight of the city. He had been seen from the city. He was heading for Goat Island. He had passed over Goat Island. (No, he had not dropped any bombs.) He was now passing over the ferryboat Berkeley. (Great excitement.) He was now circling the battleships in the bay. (No, the judges were quite positive Mr. Radley had no bombs with him.)

Navy Is Safe

The navy is safe. Mr. Radley was now passing over shipping in the bay, now he was coming back.

And then a long suspense. In the meantime Walter Brookins, in a baby Wright, Philip Parmalee in his regular Wright, and Willard were in the air together, doing some high and lofty tumbling in the sky. Glenn H. Curtiss, the man who would not be surprised if he ran across a hole in the sky that let him take a peep at Paradise, did not get into the air, although, through an error of the announcers, most of the spectators thought they saw him.

Wonderful Sight

It was wonderful and thrilling. Most of us had never seen anything like it before, and it got headachy trying to take it all in. They were going up and down so fast now, circling around high and low, almost flicking the face of the grand stand at times, and at others making the soldiers run like a flock of scared rabbits, that it was almost impossible to take it all in. There must be such a thing as too much aviation, which is why, perhaps, they have been rushing around shouting, "High there, get your seltzer for that aviation headache."

There has got to be something to rivet the attention at an aviation meet, and now, out of the haze that overhung the South San Francisco hills, that thing came on the winds of the wind.

It was Radley coming back from his trip to the bay. Nothing else interested the crowd now.

Army Mules Alarmed

Brookins was cutting the loveliest kind of aerial capers in the shade of the mountains. Right out in front of the grand stand, scaring the wits out of the army mules that decorate Major O'Neil's camp, was that daredevil twister turning the circles that no other aviator can turn quite so well. This man Willard can turn those circles so fast that if he had a tail he could catch it, which is a hard thing for a fox terrier to do, and it can twist some.

Cheers for Radley

How they cheered Radley, those girls in the stand, when he returned. He was grinning like a kid when he leaped from his machine almost at the door of his own hangar. Radley had right to be proud. He was the first man who had ever looked down on the Bay of San Francisco from an airship. He was the first man who had ever looked down on the bravest city in the world from an airship, and the cheers of its stay-at-homes were still in his ears.

CAPERS LIKE SEA GULL.

San Francisco's aviation excitement had its climax today along the water front, when James Radley in his little Bleriot unexpectedly appeared amid the shipping and cut capers scarcely equaled by the sea gulls.

When a keen eyed urchin selling papers at the ferry building caught a glimpse of Radley he forgot all else. In a moment every person for blocks around rushed toward the docks. Men, women and children were soon massed upon the wharves, entranced at the sight of the intrepid Radley flying over the cruisers lying in Man-of-War Row.

SCRAMBLE ON DOCKS.

Hard-eyed bartenders along East street joined their late customers, all scrambling for places of vantage. In the eagerness to see, there were those that forgot to be gentle as they crowded into the multitude. Yet there was but one accident.

WOMAN FALLS INTO BAY.

Miss Belle Stroll of 30 Gough street was crowded off the Howard street wharf into the water. Before the fast flowing tide had carried her far R. Cranz, steward of the schooner Higgins, leaped after her and held her up until a rope had been thrown out.

Though unconscious when taken to the Harbor Emergency Hospital, she was soon revived by Dr. Edgeberg.

ON THE WARSHIPS.

The interest and excitement on shore were equaled on the United States cruisers West Virginia and Maryland.

Every person on board the ships from Rear-Admiral Barry down to the cooks and stokers was on deck.

The marines, pointing at the little craft of the air, wondered if they could have hit it.

ADMIRAL ON DECK.

The admiral came on the deck of the West Virginia with his marine glasses, but scarcely had he adjusted them than the "plane" swept by, while a thousand lusty bluejackets' shouts went up.

With a wave of his hand, Radley responded to the greeting and steered his machine toward the Maryland.

Rising and falling and turning circles with ease borne of confidence, the little Englishman continued to startle officers, sailors and commuters. Flying close to the ferryboat Berkeley he dipped so near the water that passengers could almost see the color of his eyes.

At last Radley directed his course for the return trip to Tanforan.

LATHAM'S GREAT FLIGHT.

The crowd dispersed, only to experience more sensations, when Latham came sweeping over the bay from the direction of the harbor entrance at an altitude of a thousand feet.

He passed in review before the thousands as he glided away over the South San Francisco hills.

FASCINATION OF PERIL.

Thrilled by the fascination of peril, tense with the excitement of a marvelous spectacle that showed the very limits of man's daring and ingenuity, all the world and his wife, including that portion of society spelled everywhere with a capital "S," formed a dense hedge about the three sides of aviation field this afternoon to see the initial events in the great international contest between the intrepid birdmen. It was a truly magnificent pageantry, comparable to nothing preceding it in San Francisco. From the first bugle call to the latter whirr of the gigantic skeleton birds overhead, there was that spirit of expectancy in the very air that imparted the beauty of keen admiration to the faces upturned to watch the wonderful flights.

It was an element that seemed to unite all the persons of original energy, for this was real sport and sport is always democratic.

SOMETHING ELEMENTAL.

Here was something new, something elemental in its bid to courage and daring. Its results moved master and man. In the thrill of its excitement beauty forgot her pose and haughty dignity was humbled before man's conquest of the elements.

While the crowd was thoroughly cosmopolitan in character it was to be quite truthful society which today gave its royal welcome to the men whose achievements have won the plaudits of the two continents.

LATHAM STARTS.

When Monsier Latham gallantly asked Mr. Radley how far he had gone and Mr. Radley had told him he had sailed over the city and bay and generally "raised thunder," Mons Latham was sad.

But never shall it be said that the Union Jack had gone where the tri-color feared to go. "Mais alors, regard moi," quoth the Frenchman, and he ordered out his graceful Marie Antoinette, the machine whose name the announcer dares not pronounce.

Away at the back of Latham's head was a great idea. Radley had sailed over the bay. Pouf! That was nothing! Had ever an airship sailed through the Golden Gate? Never. Then he, Hubert Latham, would do it.

And by the seven winds and all the holes in the Swiss cheese atmosphere of Los Angeles, Hubert Latham did fly in at the Golden Gate yesterday. This feat alone will send the city's first aviation meet ringing and singing and chortling down in history.

UP AND AWAY.

Radley had scarcely ceased shaking hands with admirers than Latham in his Marie Antoinette was up and away, whistling a vengeful tune through wire and motor as he whirred into the higher air. Judges and announcers and everyone else thought that Latham was merely going up to drop a few innocuous bombs at the squadron of wooden horses and men that Major O'Neil's soldiers had planted at the north end of the field.

But over these the Marie Antoinette sailed disdainfully. Straight oceanward it flew, straight as the dragon fly it so much resembles and droning in the distance like one, only more.

He was hovering over the Seal Rocks, yelled the announcer. He was still hovering. He couldn't see them. Ah, they had hidden in the crannies of the rocks. Now they had barked at the man-bird and Latham had flown on.

He had swung around into the Golden Gate.

Now he was over the grave of the Rio. Now the idlers at Land's End had seen him and yelled. Now he was over Fort Point.

SEES OUR FIRST DEFENSE.

He can tell his government what our first line of defense looks like. Now he has swung to the Marin side. He has waved a greeting to the caged soldiers on Alcatraz. He has darted over to startle placid Berkeley, and now he is flashing over the city's waterfront. He has almost scraped the pinnacle of the Ferry building. And now he is coming back.

Again, there is a tense lull among the thousands on the aviation field. Latham had been gone the best part of an hour. He carried the thrill of the day away with him and scattered it broadcast up and down the coast. He had made a celebration for the French colony, for he had beaten the feat of the Englishman Radley. The crowd waited impatiently to greet him, but knew not which way to look.

A program boy with an eagle eye was the first to pick up the speck of the Marie Antoinette cleaving its way out of the mist over the shoulder of the mountain that hides the bay from sight. That boy has wit as well as eagle vision. "There he comes, there he comes," he yelled. "Buy a program and get his number."

STRAIGHT TO HIS NEST.

And there he came plunging like a bat out of the deepening shade. Nearer and nearer until the triumphant roar of his motor was deafening, and he drove like a gull and as straight to the nest of his beautiful boat.

And all he said: "Well, I was the first man to fly in at your Golden Gate, anyway." Lacking a little in poetry, but enough, you must admit.

30,000 See Flights And Larger Crowds Are Expected Today

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Thirty thousand persons saw Latham, Radley and the other aviators fly at Tanforan today according to the estimates made by the transportation companies.

A much greater crowd is expected tomorrow, but with the facility with which the transportation companies handled the crowd today the aviation field will be just as easy of access.

Direct trains to the big field next to the Tanforan track were run by the Southern Pacific from 9:30 in the morning until 2:15 in the afternoon, and although a schedule was adhered to, there were trains in readiness at the Third and Townsend street station to leave at any moment the traffic demanded it.

San Mateo suburban cars left Fifth and Market streets every fifteen minutes after 8 o'clock in the morning. The Polk and Larkin and Mission street line had cars from Lombard street every five minutes after 10.30 in the morning, the Valencia street line every five minutes from the Ferry after 11 32 a. m., and the Cemeteries line every five minutes after 8 a. m.

The cars of the street railway lines were, of course, the most crowded, but every one who wanted to get to the aviation field got there.

After its experience of today the committee decided to enforce more stringent methods in policing the crowd tomorrow. The aviators complained today that too many persons were allowed to crowd around the hangars. This part of the ground will be kept clear tomorrow.

The aviation field itself was kept clear enough to suit the fliers, but one boy less than five years old had a very narrow escape from being bowled over by one of the machines in its descent. This boy simply became recalcitrant and ran away from his guardians on the field.

Lieutenant J. C. Walker of the Eighth infantry had the boy taken off the field after his escape, which gave the big crowd a very tense moment before he emerged from it.

English Aviator Flew High Above Warships in Bay

(By JAMES RADLEY.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—San Francisco from the air is a most interesting city to view.

I think I ought to know, for I flew over the city in my monoplane today and saw it as the birds see it.

When I left the aviation field after circling the ground three or four times I made direct for the bay. The air was markedly good for a flight, and the absence of strong currents made flying delightful.

When I got out on the bay and swung over toward Goat Island I began playing tag with the ferry boats. I followed three of them up and down for a distance of several hundred yards each. The sun was shining, there was little or no haze to speak of, and I could see the passengers in the boats waving and cheering at me. I was up too high, of course, to get anything but the faintest echoes of the cheering.

After soaring over the ferry boats I circled around the warships in the harbor. I could have dropped bombs on the decks of these vessels had I had them along with me.

I think more people saw me flying over the city than had seen any aviator who sailed here before, and I was naturally a bit pleased to know that I was the first air pilot to provide that form of exhibition in San Francisco.

If the same conditions of today prevail throughout the meeting I am of the opinion that new aviation records will be registered.

Aviator Radley Leaving the Tanforan Aviation Field On Start of Sensational Aerial Cruise Over the City and Bay of San Francisco

SEA-FIGHTER DOUBTS EFFICACY OF AIRSHIP

Rear-Admiral Barry Says That His Riflemen Could Riddle Monoplane

By REAR-ADMIRAL E. B. BARRY.
Commander of the Pacific Fleet.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—This is the first time I have ever had the opportunity to observe the wonderful accomplishment of the twentieth century, wherein man is permitted to fly overhead with the speed, ease and grace of a bird. The spectacle of Radley, the man bird, skimming over the waters of San Francisco bay, darting over the fairways of the ferry steamers and darting up and down, among the hundreds of sea fowl with an abandon never excelled by the birds themselves, is a sight to stir the blood of all men.

Though I knew that the aviators intended to visit the cruisers at some time during the meet I was totally unprepared to witness today's sight. I feel sure that my appreciation was as great as that of any of the hundreds of men under my command.

With the limited knowledge I possess of the science of aviation, it is difficult for me to venture an opinion as to the part the airship will take in future warfare, but to my mind, the furor exercised by many as to its effectiveness seems to be slightly overdrawn. As a means of obtaining maps and other data while flying from a great altitude—say over fortifications and land defenses, the airship will without doubt prove all that can be desired. But as a means of attack against the modern ship of war, it seems improbable that as much can be said.

If the weather conditions for flying were perfect and no hindrance were interposed to the movement of the aviator, it is probable that enough explosives could be dropped upon the most vulnerable portion of a battleship to put it out of commission.

In practice, however, the result would no doubt be different. It must be remembered that every warship has on board hundreds of marines, each of whom is well trained as a marksman. They are armed with rifles that have a muzzle velocity of about 2700 feet per second and it seems unreasonable to suppose that the bird man could get close enough to become effective before at least one of the fast traveling projectiles would render him helpless and cause man and machine to topple into the depths below.

If Radley had been a real enemy attempting an attack upon this ship today it would have been utterly impossible for him to pass over the deck as he did. There are hundreds of men on this ship that could have riddled Radley and his monoplane before he could have brought his machine within a thousand feet of the ship.

LATHAM IS THE HERO OF AVIATION MEET

First of Birdmen to Fly Through the Portal of the Bay of San Francisco

By W. W. NAUGHTON

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 7.—And when all was said and done who was the hero of the day? Well, thereby hangs a story.

James Radley, the English driver of the Bleriot monoplane, enjoyed the distinction for about forty minutes, but for the balance of the afternoon Hubert Latham, pilot of the long, low rakish Antoinette, of French extraction, was the pet of the populace.

It is a story of two flights over San Francisco bay and of the Frenchman going the Englishman one better by steering his bark around the Cliff House and soaring in through the Golden Gate.

It is a story which serves to show that the same rivalry exists among sky-climbers who take their lives in their hands every moment they are aloft, as among persons whose interests jostle in other walks of life.

The fun of it is that Radley might have had all the glory that attached to out-of-grounds exploration if a bantering match had not arisen between him and Latham.

The Englishman had just returned to the field after circling the bay and warships.

He had descended with the plaudits of 15,000 thoroughly thrilled spectators ringing in his ears. He was enjoying a cigarette at the door of his pylon or hangar, or whatever it is, when the Frenchman accosted him.

"But you did not go out through the Golden Gate," said Latham in a spirit of mischief.

TAKES THE DEFI.

"No, but I'll go now, if you'll accompany me," replied Radley, slapping Latham on the shoulder.

The Frenchman said nothing. He gave no intimation that the "dare" had suggested something to him. He made a mental note of the fact that the honor of being the first to bring an airship in through the Golden Gate of San Francisco was still to be won.

He watched his chance later and stole away from the field, giving no intimation of his intention beyond the course he steered.

He returned after an absence of fifty minutes, whereas Radley's tour bayward had only occupied thirty-five.

And before he lit on Mother Earth again it was known from judges' stand to soldiers' tents and from automobile park to main entrance that he had sailed through the Golden Gate.

What tumult there was when it was first announced that Radley would take his beetle-winged Bleriot over the roofs of San Francisco and out around the bay! At that time, of course, the Englishman had no thought of complications later.

With no more ground start than a newly-flushed quail requires he lifted his monoplane into the air and made the round of the air lane high above the track.

HEADED FOR SALT WATER.

Then he headed for salt water, and a dozen telephones warned interested parties in the city to be on the lookout for him.

The city folks got their first glimpse of him when he loomed above the Potrero hills. He dipped and sailed low as he came across the upper reaches of the bay—so low, indeed, that a cry went up that he had fallen into the water.

Presently he ascended again, and as he steered toward Goat Island the Bleriot buzzed along at an elevation of 150 feet.

By this time many thousands of pairs of eyes were focused on the Englishman and his craft.

He swept in graceful curves around the warship West Virginia, and then steered for the Maryland and paid her a similar compliment.

The whirl of his propellers could be heard distinctly by the men on the battleships, and the glint of the sun on the wires and other metallic portions of the plane made the spectacle doubly fascinating.

Radley went toward Goat Island again and then turned in the direction of the city.

SEEN FROM FERRYBOAT.

By this time the ferryboat Berkeley, crossing to the city from Oakland and literally crammed with passengers, had reached a position where those aboard her had a splendid view of the Bleriot's midair evolutions.

They cheered and waved handkerchiefs, and Radley, as a return compliment, swooped toward the Berkeley until he was a bare twenty-five feet from water.

The rush of the passengers from side to side as the Bleriot dipped and veered caused the big steamer to rock.

Radley flew around the Berkeley and then steered a course midway between the West Virginia and the Maryland, rising and descending and hovering just as the real, live bay birds do.

He dipped toward the West Virginia, and, it is said, barely lifted his craft sufficiently to clear her top hamper, such as it is.

It was then that Rear Admiral E. B. Barry, who was an interested watcher, and who from the nature of his calling and the possibilities claimed for aeroplanes probably has no love for such craft, remarked: "If necessary, I could have riddled it with 400 bullets."

By this time the congested condition of the [illegible] along the water front can be better imagined than described. The only wonder is that, in the struggle for positions of vantage several excited sightseers were not precipitated into the water.

AROUND GOAT ISLAND.

Once again Radley made the circuit of the warships and Goat Island and then pointed his prow for the aviation field.

San Francisco lost sight of him at Hunters' Point and 105 minutes later he descended almost at the identical spot from which he began his flight.

Then followed the verbal tilt with Latham and it is only a half hour later before the crowd had an inkling as to what was in the mind of the Frenchman.

He made an ascent this second, ostensibly to throw bombs and fire a revolver at wooden horses, but he went round and round in the upper air without [illegible] the work he was [illegible] to have in hand.

Suddenly he seemed to wave an adieu to the judges and turned a bee line for the [illegible] smoke rack that marked the general direction of the city and the sea.

The [illegible] that something [illegible] was [illegible] for Latham.

It [illegible] that it was somewhere over the Presidio reservation that the first glimpse of the Antoinette monoplane was had.

THROUGH GOLDEN GATE.

Word was flashed from the Cliff House that he was in sight.

Latham had but one purpose in view. He did not [illegible] the cream of kowtowing to ferryboats and warships. What the Frenchman wanted was to be the first to bring an airship through the Golden Gate.

He [illegible] Cliff House with a good [illegible] between himself and the shore and sailing high in the air, making [illegible] over Fort [illegible] and then [illegible] through the Gate.

He accomplished his purpose. He passed over Fort Point and steered for the aviation field again.

Like a Seagull Birdman Flew Over The Golden Gate

(By HUBERT LATHAM).

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 7.—Radley flew out over the bay of San Francisco today and when I heard he had done this I decided to fly through the Golden Gate.

"Where is the Golden Gate?" I asked them, and when they told me in which direction it lay I turned the prow of my Antoinette for it.

I am the first man, they tell me, to sail by the air through the Golden Gate.

I took a much different course from Radley, getting off the peninsula by the most direct course I could make and putting out over the ocean.

I kept over the ocean until I was well past the Heads. Then I turned around and sailed through the Gate just as a ship from over the sea would arrive. I could see the Seal Rocks and the Cliff House distinctly. The air was remarkably clear and my machine behaved nicely throughout the journey.

After sailing through the Gate I continued down the bay until I got well over the ferry tower, around which I circled at an altitude of about a thousand feet. I could see tiny specks in the streets of the city beneath, and I realized that probably more persons saw me when I was in the vicinity of the water front than saw me ascend from the aviation field.

When I returned to the field I fired with a revolver at wooden silhouettes in the center of the field for the observation of the military experts. I have shot a duck from my Antoinette before and I expect to shoot yet bigger game, but I was as interested in my trip through the Golden Gate as any feat I have performed since coming to this country.

The ride was a little cold at times when I was making for the Gate but all in all it was well worth the trouble.

OAKLAND TRACTION DIVIDENDS MAY BE SUSPENDED

Syndicate Trade Plan Devotes Earnings to Many Proposed Extennsions.

AUTHORIZED STATEMENT IS MADE BY DIRECTOR

Attitude of F. M. Smith Towards Holders of Stock Strongly Favorable to Them.

"In the issuance of this much-discussed letter by H M Webster to the holders of Oakland Traction preferred stock there is no ground for suspicion of ulterior motives The letter was issued at the suggestion of Frank M Smith and the offer to exchange Realty Syndicate certificates for traction preferred stock was made because Mr Smith wished to protect the interests of certain people who had been induced to purchase traction stocks because of his connection with the concern and who might be dependent on the earnings of this stock for their daily bread said Nat M Crossley manager of the Realty Syndicate yesterday

The publication in THE TRIBUNE of the rumor current in Oakland that the offer of exchange was but a scheme to unload Syndicate certificates and gather in Traction preferred stock caused a considerable flurry among the holders of such stock and the offices of the Syndicate and Traction company were besieged throughout the day by people anxious [illegible] an explanation of the offer contained in Webster's letter

EARNINGS FOR IMPROVEMENTS

"The directors of the Traction company have seriously considered the advisability of using all of the earnings of the road for much needed improvements said Crossley If they should do this it will mean that dividends will not be issued The dividends on preferred stock would accumulate of course but would not be forthcoming at present time

"When the stocks of the Traction company were first issued they were sold to the public generally and much money was subscribed by men of small means clerks school teachers and salespeople Many of these small holders of stocks are more or less dependent on the earnings of the stocks and the passing of dividends might cause them great inconvenience

"It is these people whom Smith wished to assist He wished to provide for them an investment for their money that would be equally safe and valuable and that would not deprive them of their quarterly or annual dividend so he suggested that the offer of exchange be made The letter was issued by Webster because he is in charge of that branch of our business not as a broker but as a salaried official of the company

RETIREMENT OF CERTIFICATES

"The preferred stock and the certificates are equally valuable but the 6 per cent interest on the certificates is certain to be paid and the certificates will be retired at certain times while the 6 per cent interest on the stock although it accumulates if not paid may be withheld for some time during which all of the earnings of the Traction company will be used for extensions I have advised all who asked [illegible] information to hold on to their Traction stock if they do not actually have to have the money earned by their investment

Thinks Business Outlook Poor

NEW YORK Jan 7—James J Hill was at the New York office of the Great Northern railroad today on his return from a trip to the Pacific coast His opinion of the business situation and outlook generally has not changed since he gave out pessimistic interviews here and in St Paul a few weeks ago

Wise caution is still in his estimation the attitude of businessmen throughout the country Trade he has not found any brisker than it was a year ago but he would not say that a depression need be feared Mr Hill holds that industrial and railway activity will wake up again

YEAR'S APPOINTEES ARE ANNOUNCED BY M'CARTHY

Mayor of San Francisco Retires Bannerman and Whelan From School Board.

SAN FRANCISCO Jan 7—The Mayor gave out his list of appointments for the new year today making no change in any one of the municipal boards or commissions except the Board of Education In this body James E Power commander of the League of the Cross Cadets has been appointed to succeed Thomas R Bannerman Taylor appointee whose term has expired while H C Vaughn photographer succeeds Richard I Whelan Mayor McCarthy's appointee of last January who has resigned with three years of his term yet to run

With the exception of Thomas V Cator of the Election Commission the other commissioners whose terms now expire are Mayor McCarthy's own appointees and all of them are given new terms Commissioner Cator whom Mayor McCarthy inherited from Mayor Taylor also retains his place

LIST OF APPOINTMENTS

Following is the complete list of the appointments and reappointments as announced today

Board of Education—James E Power four years vice Thomas R Bannerman term expired H C Vaughn three years vice Richard I Whelan resigned

Board of Public Works—C S Laumeister four years succeeding himself

Police Commission—[illegible] H Spiro four years succeeding himself

Election Commission—Thomas V Cator, four years succeeding himself

Civil Service Commission—B B Rosenthal four years succeeding himself

Fire Commission—W H Bemiss four years succeeding himself

All of the appointments and reappointments become effective under the law on January 8 today but the formal installation necessarily goes over until Monday

PLAYGROUND BOARD STANDS

Neither appointment nor reappointment was necessary in the Playground Commission since that body has not yet been in existence long enough for the term of any member to expire In any case Mayor McCarthy would not have made any change in the personnel of the board the present membership being apparently satisfactory to him

There will be one new ex-officio member however as soon as the board of education has reorganized since the charter provides that the president of the school board shall by virtue of his position as such become a member of the Playground Commission as does the Park superintendent also Until the expected fight over the board of education presidency has come off and been settled therefore it will not be known whether a Taylor holdover or a new McCarthy school director shall go on the Playground board

LIFE IN AMERICA IS SET AT FAR TOO HOT A PACE

Strenuous Gait, Worry and Fret Are Not Favorable to Longevity.

NEW YORK Jan 7—"We in America live too fast to live long" said Dr Samuel G Tracy, founder of the Health and Longevity Club in New York

"We work too hard play too hard drink too much, eat too much and worry and fret too incessantly

"However" he continued "we are much better off than many other countries in respect to length of life In Germany only one out of every 780 000 people is a centenarian In France the proportion is one in 156 000 And even in Great Britain but one out of 175 000 touches the century mark You see our chances are five times as good as John Bull's

NO SWISS CENTENARIAN

In all Switzerland, with a population of over 3 000 000 there is not one centenarian

Bulgaria says Dr Tracy, is a happy home for the aged because most of the population are farming folks who lead a simple natural life and because they are happy

It is infinitely easier to influence a legislature to appropriate money for the purpose of extinguishing hog cholera than it is to establish a research laboratory for the prevention of disease or to pass laws to compel corporations to adopt humane means for the prevention of violent accidents

America has a better chance than any of the great civilized nations to produce a strong race Dr Tracy asserted Climatic conditions are generally favorable Generally speaking outdoor occupations are more favorable to longevity Whatever work is done, there should be a sufficiency of sleep Between seven and eight hours is none too much for most people Amusement should be a definite factor in one's life as a humdrum existence is only too apt to end in suicide

When asked how old a person should live to be Dr Tracy said

"Nearly all members of the animal kingdom exist for at least five times the number of years it takes them to reach their prime Now the human being finds fullest development at the average age of twenty-five years Then following the analogy it would seem that human life under proper conditions, should last at least 125 years

BILL IS INTRODUCED AIMED AGAINST SHIP TRUST

Humphrey Wishes to Break Up Combine of Foreigners.

KNOWLAND ALSO HAS A SIMILAR MEASURE

His Proposition Would Prevent Common Carriers Owning Stock in Others.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Representative Humphrey of Washington introduced a bill today that provides for the exclusion from United States ports of every foreign vessel in combinations controlling rates. The Postmaster General is directed to cancel any existing contract with a steamship company or vessel owners connected with a combination or pool.

Almost at the same time Representative Knowland of California dropped into the legislative hopper a bill carrying heavy penalties against any railroad or common carrier that owns stock in or controls any water carrier with which it competes. The water carrier likewise is prohibited from owning stock of a railroad.

FOLLOW NEW YORK SUIT.

These measures come on the heels of the government suit begun in New York by District Attorney Wise for the dissolution of the Atlantic pool under the Sherman anti-trust law. The Department of Justice through Attorney General Wickersham, is directing the suit.

Mr. Humphrey, who is pressing vigorously for a subsidy for American ships, has been in close touch with Attorney General Wickersham during the preliminary investigation of the shipping pool. He urged the prosecution of the so-called Baltic pool, formed by foreign steamships trading at Atlantic ports and was disappointed when the government was powerless to help itself.

"Since the government has brought suit," said Mr. Humphrey, "the foreign ship combine admits every charge made against it. The only answer is that the United States has no jurisdiction and therefore it can continue as it pleases.

"The condition that exists as to passenger rates prevail also in the freight traffic. The rate on every pound of freight and every passenger carried between here and Europe and between here and South America is fixed by agreements made in advance by this foreign monopoly.

"There is not the slightest competition between the foreign steamships running from this county upon either ocean. Not only are rates fixed by agreement, but these foreign lines give rebates and other advantages to favored shippers. Special rates are given by them to the Standard Oil, to the steel trust and to the harvester combine to such an extent that competitors are absolutely excluded from competing with them in foreign countries.

PRACTICE EVERY METHOD.

"There is not a single method ever used by any of the great corporations of this country to destroy competition, increase prices and create monopoly that is not today practiced by the combination of foreign ships.

"This combination of foreign ships is the greatest trust in the world and the foreign trade of this country is absolutely at its mercy."

The bill provides that any vessel not of the United States, which is operated in combination to fix freight and passenger rates or gives rebates to favored shippers, is prohibited from entering or clearing from any port of the United States under penalty of $200 for each passenger and for forfeiture of cargo.

WOULD KNOW VOTE TO UNSEAT LORIMER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Whether it would require a two-thirds vote or only a majority of the senate to unseat Lorimer as a senator from Illinois is a question that has arisen in the contest about to be waged.

The answer rests upon whether the opposition to Lorimer seeks to connect him with any corrupt practices or merely attempts to show that he was the beneficiary of corruption for which he was not responsible.

Senators who have made close studies of election contest cases seem to agree that if the resolution to unseat Lorimer should contend that he was principally involved in the bribery charges that have been investigated, the only course would be to vote on the question of expulsion, to carry which two-thirds of the senate would have to be recorded in the affirmative.

Chinese Actress Has Made Hit in London Playhouse

MADAME CHUNG and her children, who are fascinating London audiences in "The Dragon of Wrath."

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Madame Chung is the fascinating little actress whose performance in "The Dragon of Wrath," attracts all London to Miss Gertrude Kingston's pretty little theater. The piece is charming and the stage picture one of the most beautiful ever seen in London. Madame Chung, who is China's premier actress is already proving herself an enormous favorite in London theatrical circles.

Her little children particularly the smaller one, acted with great spirit, especially at the meal, which forms one of the features of the play. They were received with great enthusiasm by the feminine portion of the audience on the first night.

Madame Chung's tiny feet also attract much attention as they are exactly three inches long.

CHIEF WOULD KNOW WHEN PRISONERS ARE FREED

Seymour Wants Notification When Men He Has Arrested Are Paroled.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Chief of Police Seymour today on learning of the system of paroling prisoners at the county jail by the district attorney and the sheriff, acting as a parole board, declared it his belief that the chief of police of a city or the sheriff of a county from which they may hail should be notified.

The representations regarding the disposition of the several prisoners were made to the chief following his statement of yesterday that the courts were responsible for the continuance of crime and today he declared that he would investigate the disposition made of prisoners after they left his hands.

Chief Seymour is anxious to be just to all parties connected with the suppression of crime, but wants to be sure of his ground, and to learn, if possible, why more of the men arrested are not punished for their offenses.

YACHT NARROWLY ESCAPED SHELLS

Non-Magnetic Carnegie in the Midst of Mutiny at Rio de Janeiro.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—With the story of how the non-magnetic yacht Carnegie narrowly escaped destruction in the harbor of Rio de Janeiro when the Brazilian navy mutinied and fired on the city, Joseph G. White, one of the crew of the Carnegie, arrived in this city today.

The Carnegie left Green Point, L. I., June 21. She was going around the world to correct the magnetic variations on the charts. She was built especially for the work and not a bit of steel or iron was used in her construction. She was made of aluminum and bronze.

"On the day of the mutiny of the sailors on the Brazilian battleships at Rio," said White, the Carnegie was lying at anchor between the war vessels and the city. The first intimation of any disturbance reached us when shells began to scream low over our heads into the city.

FELT WIND OF SHELLS.

"We could not understand what had happened, but we saw at once that we were in a position of peril. The big guns from the mutinous ships were sending their fire straight across us. At times the wind of a shell could be felt on our decks.

"Our engines were out of commission and we had no means of getting out of the path of the fire. There was no wind.

"Lying off shore from us was an English cruiser. We signaled her for aid, and she slipped her chains and came down toward us. We weighed anchor and got a line aboard of her and she towed us out of danger. Had one of those shells come a few feet lower the government might have found itself up against a serious situation with the Brazilian authorities.

BORROWER SUES MONEY LENDERS

Says He Gave $6000 Notes to Secure $1600; Wants Them Back.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Louis A. Lauenstein, one of the heirs of the late Caroline Lauenstein, filed suit in the superior court today against Herman Murphy and Henry S. Bridge, money lenders, to enjoin them from claiming his interests in the Lauenstein estate.

Lauenstein admits that on May 6 he borrowed $600 from Murphy & Bridge and at their demand assigned to them his claim in the Lauenstein estate as a guarantee of the debt. He admits that later he borrowed other sums from the two aggregating $1600.

Lauenstein now complains that the money lenders compelled him to sign promissory notes to the value of $6000, but that he received only a small portion of this amount in actual loans. He asks the court to determine exactly how much he owes Murphy & Bridge and for the cancellation of the surplus promissory notes and for an injunction against the defendants to compel them to desist from claiming his interest in the Caroline Lauenstein estate.

Lauenstein says the estate is worth more than $60,000 and his interest as an heir at law is one-seventh.

In a similar suit filed in conjunction with the one against Murphy & Bridge, Lauenstein makes similar charges against Murphy and F. Lafaix. In this suit he says the two defendants claim he owes them $3000 and that in reality he only borrowed $1000 from them.

Welcome to Thousands

Prescription for Indigestion That Has Done Wonders in Hospital Work.

This is the formula that has created a furore in the medical profession on account of its remarkable effectiveness in the treatment of stomach troubles. It acts differently from anything else ever tried for this widespread ailment, almost immediately relieving distress after eating, sour stomach, belching, dizziness and headaches. If used for sufficient time it will cure the worst case of dyspepsia: "Two ounces essence of pepsin; three ounces syrup of ginger; one ounce catandir compound. Mix and take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime." Catandir always comes put up in ounce sealed packages. Any druggist should have it in stock by this time or he will quickly get it from his wholesale house. For best results mix the pepsin and the ginger, then let stand about an hour before adding the catandir. It will be more convenient to get the ingredients from the druggist and mix them at home. Any one with stomach trouble should get this without delay.

FEDERATION WOODYARD AIDS MEN SEEKING EMPLOYMENT

Notable Charity Extends Generous Succor to Unemployed

A worthy and unique adjunct of the Church Federation of Oakland is that organization's Federation Woodyard, being operated at 360 Sixth street and giving to scores of homeless and penniless men employment that will enable them to care for themselves while seeking more remunerative and permanent work. It is the old tramp's woodpile systemized to keep the wayfarer out of jail, when otherwise he would be in danger to being arrested as a vagrant and sentenced to "do time" on the municipal chaingang. By four or five hours of labor each day these men earn a bed and two good meals, the remainder of their time being spent, if they are in earnest about wanting to secure employment, in searching for other work.

The Federation's Woodyard is a "beacon light on the stormy sea" for many a wanderer who in all probability otherwise would be taken "under the clock" in the police patrol wagon and the next morning find himself working as a municipal prisoner. There a man get a shower bath, his clothes fumigated and he gets a bed and enough substantial food to make him feel like a man again. In return for this he is required to cut kindling and stove wood, and to give some idea of what is being done at the woodyard in the way of taking care of persons who apply there for help it may be said that during December 2717 meals and 1075 lodgings were worked for. Since there are but fifty-four beds it can be seen at a glance how continuously they were occupied during the closing month of 1910.

This charity takes money and the revenue that sustains it is derived from the sale of kindling, stove wood and coal of the very best grades. To direct consumers the Federation Woodyard sells books, for $1 each containing ten coupons, each of which calls for any kind of fuel desired at a very moderate charge. Orders sent in by telephone—"Oakland 7285" or "A1442"—will receive prompt attention. But coupons are not essential to good treatment if a customer calls at the woodyard. In that event he will be waited on promptly and courteously.

The Federation Woodyard, however, prefers to sell coupon books. Each book guarantees a steady customer and can be had in any number for the asking. These books are on sale at the woodyard and at the Associated Charities, 808 Broadway.

HAYTIAN FINANCES STILL INVOLVE CONTROVERSY

Plan to Make American Interests of Secondary Moment Annoys Washington.

STATE DEPARTMENT INSISTS ON DEMANDS

European Capital Will Not Be Allowed to Control Republic's Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Another financial situation in Latin-America, which is seriously engaging the attention of the State Department, with a view to protecting American interests, is the confused monetary condition of Hayti.

It is proposed by Hayti to substitute for the Haytien national bank, a French corporation, which controls the financial dealings of the country, a similar banking concession to be granted to a group of German, French and American bankers, the German interests predominating.

Some time ago the United States protested against the proposed arrangement on the ground that American interests were not properly protected. Since then the Haytien government has made some modifications in its original plan, but the changes have not been sufficient, in the opinion of the State Department, to warrant the withdrawal of the American protest.

In connection with the national bank concession, Hayti is endeavoring to float a loan to fund its interior debt.

Electrolier System Project Is Indorsed

ALAMEDA, Jan. 7.—The North Side Improvement Club at its meeting last night approved the recommendation of a committee appointed to look into the matter of the installation of electroliers along Lincoln avenue, the property owners to pay 20 cents a front foot and the city to bear the balance of the expense.

The club also took up the matter of planting trees on both sides of Webster street in order to beautify that highway, it being the main entrance to the city from Oakland. M. H. Hunt, superintendent of the local parks, is experimenting with trees which would thrive in the soil on Webster street.

Ground Broken for New School Building

ALAMEDA, Jan. 7.—Ground was broken this morning at Santa Clara avenue and Eighth street for the new Washington school by the contractors, Kieck & Meller, and work will progress as rapidly as possible. An elaborate program will be arranged by the club and educators from the east bay cities will be invited to participate. The new school will be one of the finest and best equipped in the State and will cost $60,000.

Found Watch in His Pocket, Prisoner Says

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Henry Durand pleaded guilty to grand larceny today in Judge Cabaniss' court, and immediately afterward told the court that, while on the Barbary Coast with friends, Louis Segarani, then unknown to him, missed his watch. When Durand got out of the place he discovered the missing watch in his pocket, he was on his way back to give the loser his property, he said, when Segarani had him arrested. Judge Cabaniss gave Durand one year in San Quentin.

The defendant is 25 years of age and married. He has a good record, but the court refused to place him on probation.

UNITED STATES TO KEEP PEACE IN HONDURAS

Reciprocal Arrangement in the Treaty Will Have a Moral Obligation.

FORTY MILLION WILL BE LOANED, IS CLAIM

Financial Agent to Hold Conference with President and Secretary Knox.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The United States proposes to put into the form of a treaty with Honduras the reciprocal arrangement necessary to make that republic "the strong Honduras" to which the President referred in his message to Congress. The treaty will be a binding moral obligation on the United States to maintain peace in the buffer state.

Juan Paredes, the financial agent of Honduras, has not yet called at the state department since his arrival recently in Washington. His appointment has been postponed by reason of the occupation at the time of Secretary Knox and the President with the Canadian reciprocity commissioners. He will, however, call Monday, when the whole subject will be discussed with Secretary Knox.

AMOUNT NOT KNOWN.

It is impossible to obtain from official sources the exact amount of the loan which it is proposed to make to Honduras. It is understood that the $10,000,000 which was spoken of in recent dispatches refers only to the amount due to certain American private interests. This does not take into account the conversion of the debt of Honduras, which amounts to $120,000,000. It is stated on seemingly good authority that the total loan will amount to about $40,000,000, to be paid in periods of years which are now matters of negotiation.

The following was given out today at the state department:

REPORTS ALL QUIET.

"In addition to the telegram to Mr. Mecreary stating that there was no uprising in Honduras, Commander Hayes, in charge of the Yorktown at Amapala on the Pacific coast, states that notwithstanding rumors of possible trouble there is no disturbance reported and that all is quiet there. Consul Dawson and Commander Davis report the rumored occupation of Roatan island by the Bonilla forces."

Thirteen automobile drivers were fined yesterday afternoon by Judge Edgar.

He fell to the ground unconscious and was rushed to the Emergency Hospital in the police ambulance.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—When the Pacific liner Mongolia sails from pier No. 42 at 1 p. m. Monday she will not only have a big passenger list, but will carry one of the largest cargoes ever taken out of the port, 13,000 tons.

BANKERS URGING PRESIDENT FOR LEGISLATION

Changes in Currency Laws Are Needed, They Inform Mr. Taft.

PROMINENT FINANCIERS DINE AT WHITE HOUSE

Chief Executive Fears Session Is Too Short for Any Action.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Several well known bankers of the country today urged the President to see if he could not persuade Congress to do something on the monetary question at the present session. The subject was talked over informally at a White House dinner tonight to which the President invited the bankers when he learned they were in the city.

Those at the dinner were J. F. Forgan of Chicago, Daniel G. Wing of Boston, and C. S. Rowe of Cincinnati. J. Laurence Laughlin of the University of Chicago's department of political economy and Representatives Weeks and Vreeland of the House committee on banking and currency were the other guests.

The bankers believe action ought to be had on the money question immediately, but before they leave Washington they probably will understand that it will be impossible to consider this subject during the short session.

New Schooner Has Engines Installed

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—The steam schooner Fort Bragg just completed for the C. H. Higgins Company, has had her engines installed and was given a trial trip today.

The steamer Admiral Sampson, Captain Bartlett, sailed for Seattle today with a good sized passenger list. Many of the passengers came through from San Pedro on the Harvard. The Sampson sailed from the Pacific street wharf.

The British freighter Balmoral, Captain Johnson, completed loading a big cargo this morning and sailed for Astoria in the afternoon.

Made Fast Voyage, But Lost Her Mast

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—The 2500 tons of freight brought in by the Pacific Mail steamer Aztec late Friday night left New York only twenty days before. The Aztec made the run from Ancon in the fast time of twelve days and twenty hours.

The ship's foretopmast was carried away while the loading was being done at the Panama wharf, the big electric cargo crane striking it.

Captain Charles Austin, in command, brought the San Francisco and Portland steamer Bear to this port from the Atlantic. The chief officer of the Aztec is W. P. Lindley.

Steamers Are Racing Towards Golden Gate

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—A steamship race that began at Honolulu a little after noon last Wednesday will be decided early Tuesday morning, when the winner will come steaming through the Golden Gate. The steamers are the Oceanic Steamship Company's liner Sierra and the Matson Company's greyhound Wilhelmina.

The ships steamed out of the harbor at Honolulu almost together, and each have kept within a few miles of each other.

Up to yesterday morning the Sierra had a slight gain, which, if maintained, will bring her to her dock a few minutes before the arrival of the Wilhelmina. But Peter Johnson, commander of the latter, is known as a fighter, and it is possible that Captain Houdlette's lead may be overcome before sunrise today.

TAKES FULL CARGO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Over 250 tons of express freight were loaded on the Pacific Navigation steamer Harvard when she sailed for San Pedro this afternoon. When the Harvard and the Yale were first placed on the run the year carried but little cargo, but the advantage of four rapid shipments a week has appealed to the shippers, and it is said that the 800-ton capacity of each ship will soon be taxed.

The Harvard had 152 passengers coming north and 182 for the southern trip.

Town of Hayward Faces Big Deficit

HAYWARD, Jan. 7.—Mayor Charles Heyer has announced to the trustees that he has had the clerk prepare a statement of the financial conditions of the town, which shows that the trustees must practice the most rigid economy for the balance of the fiscal year if they would avoid a deficit. Mayor Heyer proposed to divide the revenues into a number of separate funds and when any of these funds is exhausted authorize no more payments. Town Attorney Peter Crosby states that such a procedure would be legal and the trustees instructed him to draft an ordinance to carry the mayor's idea into practice.

For twenty-five years Dr. Peters has been a conspicuous figure in American life. He was pastor of Bloomingdale church, New York, for twelve years, preaching to the largest congregations in that city, and through the press to the entire country. As a speaker he is very dramatic, witty and convincing. During the past year he has devoted himself to literary work.

HAYWARD, Jan. 7.—Planting of shade and ornamental trees along the entire length of the foothill boulevard, from Hayward to High street, will be the theme of discussion at the meeting of the Oro Loma Improvement Club, to be held Monday night at the club's rooms on the boulevard near Bridge street. It is proposed to take up the tree planting matter in earnest. The election of club officers will also be taken into consideration.

Caught Cold!

How often it hapepns that serious illness, and sometimes death, is directly traceable to neglect of a "common" cold. After it is too late what wouldn't we give to have checked the cold at the start, when it would quickly yield to simple home treatment.

A most effective remedy that will usually break up a cold over night and quickly relieve the most irritating cough is made by mixing 2 ounces of glycerine, ½ ounce of virgin oil of pine and 8 ounces of pure whisky. Shake well and take a teaspoonful four times a day. The ingredients for this mixture can be bought in any good drug store, and easily mixed together in a large bottle. This formula was used and recommended for many years by the late Dr. W. A. Leach, who founded the Leach Chemical Co. of Cincinnati, O., in whose laboratories the virgin oil of pine is compounded.

New Year's Festival at Hebrew Orphan Asylum

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—The children of the Pacific Hebrew Orphan asylum entered upon the New Year last Sunday night with a dinner, which was abundantly supplied with good things to eat, followed by a dance. The alumni, who had arranged the dinner and dance, participated with their wives and children in the festivities of the orphans.

The feasting and dancing continued for several hours and was interspersed with songs and music by several of the children and grown-ups.

An excellent orchestra, under the leadership of Philip H. Sapiro, provided music. Then entertainment was under the leadership of Milton Lazarus, president, and Albert Taussig, chairman, assisted by Mrs. H. Goldstein, Mr. and Mrs. H. Shannon, Joe Ludke and George Plato.

Cut This Out

Recipe That Breaks a Cold in a Day and Cures Any Curable Cough.

"Mix half ounce of Concentrated Pine Compound and two ounces of glycerine with half a pint of good whiskey; shake well and use in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time." Smaller doses to children according to age. Any one can mix this. But be sure to get only the genuine (Globe) Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If the druggist does not have it he will quickly get it. Many mixtures are of large quantity and cheaper, but it is risky to experiment. This formula comes from a reliable doctor and is certain.

The Work of the Dentist

What Alveolar Dentistry Does for You

When Alexander Pope wrote "The Proper Study of Mankind is Man," he gave to the world a readily perceived truism. In this scientific age it would seem the above assertion was hardly worth penning. All sciences lead up and down to man and to paraphrase Pope the proper study of the mouth is the study of its diseases. Tumors of the jaws and gums are more frequently traced to diseased teeth than any other cause. Crowded teeth and tartar may exert the same influence.

As before stated in these columns, the treatment of Pyorrhea Alveolaris should be directed not at the local manifestation alone, but must go to the root of the evil as well. The belief that Riggs Disease is incurable is so common that many people neglect to do anything for it and so lose tooth after tooth until all are gone. That all cases can be cured is strictly within the truth.

All cases of receding gums, engorged gums, from which pus exudes, and teeth which drop out are Pyorrhea. The extraction of teeth is not the highest art of dentistry.

To save teeth is the scientific aim and assuredly, no matter how loose your teeth may be in the Alveoli, providing there is sufficient process remaining, we will cure and tighten them so that you will never know they had been diseased. Besides, if you have but two teeth in either jaw we will furnish you a set of Alveolar teeth for your missing ones equal to your original teeth.

By our distinctive process of Alveolar Dentistry, originated and perfected solely by us, we tighten teeth, replace missing teeth without plates or bridge work, restore decayed, discolored, broken or chipped teeth to natural soundness and appearance, straighten crooked, twisted teeth, cure Pyorrhea (Riggs Disease) and all other serious affections of the teeth, mouth and gums.

We cure every disease and correct every difficulty by our exclusive methods. We say to you, be careful in choosing your dentist. When you put yourself in his hands his power is absolute.—He can either do great harm or great good, depending on the possession or lack of these attributes.

All callers at our office in addition to Free Consultation and Advice, can have a copy of the Rex Dental Co.'s book, "Alveolar Dentistry," describing the wonderful Alveolar Method.

Interested persons living at distance, can have also a copy. This book (which is FREE) will bring you to our offices if you need dentistry.

SMITH-TURNER ENGAGEMENT INTERESTS OAKLANDERS

MISS MURIEL CATHERYN TURNER and THOMAS B. SMITH, whose betrothal has been announced. —Habenicht, Photos.

One of the most pleasing announcements to recently interest Northern California society is that of the engagement of Miss Muriel Catherine Turner to Thomas Boarman Smith. While their immediate friends have been advised for more than two years of the understanding between this popular young couple, general announcement of the engagement has just been made.

The pretty little romance had its beginning on the University of California campus where Miss Turner, a member of the very exclusive Alpha Phi sorority and Smith, a Kappa Sigma fraternity man, first met in college social activities.

ONLY DAUGHTER.

Miss Turner is the only daughter of Henry G. Turner of Modesto, who is vice-president and manager of the Grange company in that city, and is also prominently connected with other large enterprises. The Turners are recognized social leaders in their part of the State.

Smith, who resides in San Francisco, is the oldest son of Thomas N. Smith, a mining engineer at present associated with the La Palma mines in Mexico.

Smith is also prominently known as one of the best athletes ever developed on the Pacific coast.

WON CHAMPIONSHIP.

In the years 1905 to 1907, inclusive, he, was a member of the Lowell high school team, held the inter-scholastic championship for the half mile. In 1906, while running for the Olympic club, he won the coast half mile championship, and in 1909 he won the mile inter-collegiate championship for the University of California.

While in the university Smith achieved many honors. Besides belonging to the Kappa Sigma he was also a member of the big "C" society and the Commerce club and was one of the founders and also the secretary of the Johnson-Wallace club of the U. C.

Rumor has it that the wedding will be about March 1.

Campaign Planned by W. C. T. U. Forces

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—At the quarterly executive meeting of the California Women's Christian Temperance Union, plans were taken up for work at Sacramento during the session of the legislature.

The question of uniting with other temperance unions in an effort to obtain state-wide prohibition, was discussed and a favorable resolution adopted. A bill to forbid the manufacture, importation and sale of cigarettes in California will receive special attention.

The action of the Berkeley Women's Christian Temperance Union in writing to President Wheeler of the University of California asking him to take steps to stop drinking on the university grounds was indorsed.

Revenue Cutter Is Docked for Repairs

VALLEJO, Jan. 7.—The revenue cutter Sequoia arrived here today to be docked for repairs. It is probable, the authorities say, that revenue cutters will be overhauled at the Mare Island navy yard in future instead of at private yards.

Captain Robert F. Lopez, senior member of the board of surveys, is expected to order extensive repairs made on the refrigerator ship Glacier. The Glacier is attached to the Pacific cruiser fleet and has made many long voyages since being placed in commission.

Small Fire in a Furniture Warehouse

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—The overheating of a stove and the burning of a can of wax on the sixth floor of the warehouse of the Harry Moore Furniture Company, in Savings Union Place, near Grant avenue and Stockton street, caused an alarm of fire to be turned in at 9:05 o'clock this morning. The Market street crowd quickly assembled, but the blaze was easily extinguished with but small damage.

MEXICANS MUST REGISTER NAMES

The Government Will Refuse to Recognize Claims Otherwise.

GALVESTON, Tex., Jan. 7.—The Mexican government has issued orders that from this time forward it will refuse to recognize claims of any nature filed by persons alleged to be Mexican citizens unless such persons are registered in some Mexican consulate.

The order also provides that every citizen of Mexico residing in the United States shall furnish the consul with notices of all births, deaths and marriages in his family.

PLAN REORGANIZATION OF TURKISH ARMY

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 7.—A local paper publishes particulars of the scheme of the reorganization of the Turkish army, which has been under consideration for some months past and which will shortly be improved by imperial irade. The whole system of national defense has been practically recast, the new military organization being better adapted to the peculiar conditions of the Ottoman empire.

BRILLIANT SHOWING OF NOVELTIES

Hale's Suit Department Is a Thing of Beauty.

The forthcoming styles for Spring are engaging feminine attention now, and Hale Bros.' Oakland store at Eleventh and Washington streets is in the forefront with advance showings.

This popular department store is showing in the windows and departments the new suits, with their shorter jackets, pretty Tyrolese hats, mostly in black and touched with brilliant hues, which seem destined for popularity, the new Spring 1911 white waists and other advanced styles.

Monday will see unusual activity in new 1911 laces and a great sale of "loomends" in domestics. In conformance with the policy of Hale's, all prices are popular and low, as the tremendous Hale five-store buying permits.

BILLTOWN RUN BY WOMEN ONLY

School District in Ohio Must Change Name Is Demand.

WEST UNION, Ohio, Jan. 7.—It is but fitting that there should be a prompt change in the name of Billtown school district, which is one of the educational divisions of Adams county, for Billtown, as an electoral quantity, has changed its gender.

Every male elector in the township has been disfranchised and only women are qualified to vote at the next election for school trustees and none but women will be eligible to hold the office of trustee.

Three women have already announced themselves as candidates for trusteeships next November.

BILL FOR FIRE BOAT.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 7.—Senator-Sheriff Tom Finn of San Francisco proposes to make the state pay one-half the expenses of the fire-boat service in use on the water front of San Francisco. He has a bill to this effect, which he will introduce in the senate. The cost of the fire-boat service is estimated at $100,000 a year.

BOLD CRIMINAL THROWN IN JAIL

Tony Tapia, Wanted in Oakland, Is Landed Behind the Bars.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE.)

STOCKTON, Jan. 7.—Tony Tapia, alias Louis Ray, who is believed by the authorities to be one of the boldest criminals of the state of California, was captured by the local authorities after an all night hunt conducted by a posse of police. He is charged with forgery, and it is understood that he is wanted in Oakland on a similar charge. The capture was effected after Tapia had secreted himself under a bridge, from which point of vantage he defied the officers for over an hour.

The man will be tried here for forging the name of J. F. McGhan, a local dairyman, to a check. According to reports from Oakland he is alleged to have represented himself as a relative who had $600 in a bank in that city and after convincing the officials of his identity, of having drawn the entire sum from the account. The owner of the money was at the time in Alaska.

That the Oakland police have no record of Tony Tapia here was stated by Captain of Detectives Walter J. Petersen yesterday morning. No complaint is on record here of swindling a local bank by forging the name of a depositor to draw $600, and Captain Petersen was unable to explain the report from Stockton.

Man Arrested On Grand Larceny Charge

While in the act of "dickering" to sell a stolen bicycle to the firm of Lande & Co. of 1553 Seventh street, a man giving the name of Joseph Gilman succeeded in stealing a $25 gold watch from the show case and getting away from the store with it. He was afterwards captured by Detectives Quigley and Drew and will be charged with grand larceny in all probability. An investigation is being made of his previous record.

This Prescription Knocks Rheumatism

The only logical treatment for rheumatism is through the blood. A prescription which has recently proved wonderfully effective in hospital work is the following: Any druggist has the ingredients or will quickly get them for you. Any one can buy them. "One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint first class whiskey." These to be mixed and used in tablespoonful doses before each meal and at bedtime. This cured thousands here last winter. It relieves immediately.

Incidentally there was wild consternation among the women in the house some climbing [illegible] and others going out windows and dropping to the ground a distance of ten feet. When the count was made it was found that six of the women had escaped the net of the police.

EX-GOVERNOR JAS. N. GILLETT IS GLAD TO GET DOWN TO BUSINESS

HIS WIFE WOULD NOT LET HIM RUN FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Former Governor James N. Gillett sat at his desk in this city on Friday and said he was glad to get to work. Chatting over his experiences at Sacramento, a friend said that the incoming Governor seemed afraid of the newspaper men and hesitated to get on terms of friendship with them. Then Gillett, out of office and in a position of entire independence, paid this tribute to the working correspondents that men in public life and out of it might do well to remember. Said he:

"I always had an open door for the newspaper men. I used to be glad to see and talk with the correspondents. I found their views at times of the greatest value. Always I gave them all the news I possibly could give them. Often, to keep them personally informed, so they would not get off wrong, I told them state secrets and asked them not to publish or spread what I told them. Never once in my entire four years of office did a newspaper man abuse my confidence in the slightest degree."

Now there is a eulogy of "the damned reporter" that is worth while. Gillett was the most accessible Governor the State has ever had. He did talk very freely and openly on matters of public policy with the workers of the press. And now at the close of his terms he says that never once was his confidence abused. There is a pointer in that for bumptious officials who think an interview is the most dangerous ordeal to which they can be put.

Hail to the New-Born King

I quote the following from a Sacramento paper as a part of its description of the inaugural ceremonies of Governor Johnson:

The incoming officers the meeting of the Legislature and the visitors about the Capitol received a pretty serenade in the Capitol from the Grass Valley carol singers. They sang several carols and were greeted with applause by more than 1000 persons. who crowded both the first and second floors. They sang from a station in front of the marble statue of Columbus and Queen Isabella.

"Hail, Hail to the New-Born King," was the first carol, and as the sweet music filled the building the crowds cheered, immediately seeing in the carol some relation to the new Governor who will take the reins of Government tomorrow or the next day.

Now that is all very beautiful, but Senator Eddie Wolfe tells me that when those choristers sang "Hail, Hail to the New-Born King" it was Meyer Lissner of Los Angeles, who gracefully lifted his hat in acknowledgment, admitting that he is the new-born political king of California

Where Did All the Money Go?

An expert has been on the books of the defunct San Francisco Sun trying to learn where all the money came from and particularly where all of it went to. But some funny disclosures have been made as to those who did put up and those who did not.

For instance, it was generally supposed James D. Phelan would come up handsomely because of his desire to do harm to the Examiner. But it seems the astute Jimmy didn't put up a cent beyond the amount of one year's subscription. Colonel Tim Spellacy, the Democratic nominee for Lieutenant-Governor, didn't even do that much. But Theodore Bell was tapped for desperate money several times during the last days of the campaign.

It seems that the big angel for the sheet was your old friend, Ed Delger, who inherited a fortune from his father, Fred Delger. It is told that Delger was stuck for about $17,500 in the collapse. Steve Costello, the lawyer, was pinched for quite a sum. Stewart, who used to be circulation manager on the Examiner, was made business manager of the Sun and put into it a large part of his private fortune. Bert Schlesinger, the lawyer, also dropped a wad, though you would think he'd be too wise for such a thing.

Some of Those Who Escaped

So far as can be ascertained, Senator A. Caminetti of Amador, who was the original proposer and promoter of the paper, didn't put up a cent; and now "Cam" says he is tired of being a Democrat and talks of joining the insurgent Republicans. United States Senator Newlands was often importuned to back the paper, but he kept away from it; and former State Senator E. O. Miller of Visalia only stuck himself for $100.

I have heard of one rather pitiful incident in connection with the failure. A young railroad man had saved through many years until he had accumulated a sum approximating $8000. It was his all, and he has a family to raise. Some evil genius lured him into that newspaper game, and, of course, he lost every cent. How men of affairs went into a thing that all newspaper men felt was foredoomed to failure from the start is hard for a sensible man to guess. Verily, there is a sucker born every minute.

My Wife Won't Let Me

In the present rapid and uninteresting contest for United States Senator there has been a great deal of wonder expressed that Southern California did not produce some candidate with more magnetism than John D. Works and more knowledge of the State than A. G. Spalding. One of the Southern Senators let me in on one feature of the question when he came in from the State Capitol last night. He said:

"When Johnson made his first campaign speech in Los Angeles the Lincoln-Roosevelt leaders there had not quite completed their part of the State ticket. They had at last picked out A. J. Wallace as their candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and at the Johnson meeting Wallace was introduced to the public for the first time as the League's candidate.

"As he rose to speak, Meyer Lissner stepped across the stage and handed him a paper on which was written some words. Wallace read what was written, crumpled up the paper and threw it down on the stage floor. After the meeting there were those who were curious to see what Lissner had communicated to Wallace. So they picked up the crumpled paper and read:

"'The wife of Lee Gates will not let him be our candidate for United States Senator, so do not say anything about his candidacy.'"

And so it was a woman who kept Gates out of a fight he would have won and put the somewhat frigid Works into it to be Senator from California.

Be True to the Man Who Made You

Adjutant-General J. B. Lauck was really very eager to hold his place at Sacramento under Governor Johnson, as he had held over from Pardee under Gillett. The place has gone to the gallant Colonel Forbes of Marysville, however, and I am reminded of a rebuke administered to Lauck by George A. Knight during the recent primary campaign.

Evidently like the famous Bishop of Bray, Lauck didn't much care who got to be Governor so long as he could hold on to his job. He knew that Knight hated Gillett and also that the Republican National Committeeman was stout in the cause of Charles F. Curry for Governor. So in the corridor of the Palace Hotel, the General sidled up to Knight and said insinuatingly:

"You know where my heart is in this fight. You know where I really stand!"

"I know where you really ought to stand!" snapped out Knight.

"Where?" inquired the General.

"You ought to stand with Gillett—he's the man who made you!"

With this Knight turned on his heel and walked away. He was not sorry when Forbes was so quickly installed in Lauck's place.

Picking Another United States Senator

"What do you suppose Teddy Roosevelt Jr. is doing out here in California?" asked a wise guy politician of another at the Palace as they sat at luncheon:

"Why, selling carpets, I suppose," was the reply given with a shrug of the shoulders.

"Oh, get on to yourself! Selling carpets, nothing. Can't you see that the insurgents have him in training to succeed Senator Perkins? Just you watch them him around. Did you notice how they were putting him to the front and introducing him around at the Union League banquet a week or two ago? Do you remember how he was featured at the Johnson meetings during the campaign? Get wise, I tell you. They'll trot out Teddy Jr. for United States Senator as sure as you are over a foot high and more than a year old."

Spider-Web Labyrinth Underground

If a man could have an X-ray eye and could look underground in our streets he would see a labyrinth that would puzzle him. No wonder the merchants are complaining about the tearing up, and tearing up, and tearing up again of our streets. No one who doesn't stop to think will have any idea of the number of pipes and conduits already down, to say nothing of the many schemes now under way or in contemplation.

The different service pipes are getting so thick that they begin to be dangerous. And all this was called to my mind by the fact that the other day one of the laborers engaged in digging a trench for our new fire-fighting water system hit his pick into the ground and suddenly blew off two manholes two blocks apart and in populous centers. No one was hurt, but the accident might easily have been serious.

It seems the laborer had struck some kind of a spark from one of the electric conduits and the spark had set off some accumulated gas in a main or a sewer. So we are walking on imminent explosions all the time.

Works Sure Winner

The contest for United States Senator, unless all outward signs are misleading, was all over a week ago. At that time Meyer Lissner, who is now called "Boss," counted noses and tallied approximately a majority for Works on the first joint ballot. The noses appear to be all there still, with a few additional ones. Lissner had his political reputation all staked on this fight, and to lose the Senatorship meant to him the loss of all the political prestige he has acquired. The election makes the new aspirant for bosship either a Warwick or a political failure. He will either have made a United States Senator or have been relegated to private life.

Conditions, if not inclination, have made Governor Johnson the ally of Lissner in this contest. Every piece of available political patronage has been used to make Works Senator, and a failure would mean the breaking down of the new State machine in the very outset of its journey

When the balloting is had this week Works, according to the present outlook, will practically be without an opponent. Spalding will get some of the "district advisory" vote on the first ballot, but Works has had at least seventy signed for an engagement with him for a week or more. Nothing but a cyclone can change this conditionn, and such a disturbance has not been forecast by experts in political weather. Spalding's fight has been neglected, he relying wholly on his advisory vote. Southern members would prefer a younger man—Frank Flint, Willis Booth, Joe Scott--but none of these are on the ground, either in person or by proxy. It therefore looks as though Works would be elected by Meyer Lissner and default.

This condition being apparent, there has been a scramble to get aboard the band-wagon. Not alone Republicans who have nothing in common with the Works' candidacy, but a hungry and disorganized Democratic minority, that in this State seems to be fast approaching the status of the mule—without pride of ancestry or hope of posterity.

Liquor Question in Evidence

The liquor question is very much in evidence at the present session of the Legislature. No less than eight bills to prohibit or regulating the sale of liquor have been heard from to date. There is an anti-treating act, which prohibits all invitations to "join me" under penalty of prosecution. There are Sunday closing and local option bills in all their variety. The liquor men have but a small and undemonstrative representation in the lobby at this stage of the session, it being their purpose to avoid ostentatious opposition lest it excite their enemies to greater lengths than they otherwise might go.

The brewers, wine men and liquor dealers generally rely upon Governor Johnson to protect their interests. They supported him during his campaign and now say, "He is all right." Nevertheless there is a demand among the legislators for some legislation regulating, if not prohibiting, the sale of liquor, and that some measures of such character will result is conceded by the liquor men themselves.

Lissner and the Governor

The politicians in the know at Sacramento are waiting for the falling out of Governor Hiram Johnson and Meyer Lissner, the new insurgent boss from Southern California. The wise ones predict that the rupture must come, and that before long, for the men are too much alike in ambitions and other characteristics to long remain in harmony.

Already stories are told of the infelicity of the pair of insurgent leaders that point to future possibilities of friction. It was with an amused interest that the efforts of Lissner, who presided at the recent legislative conference held in San Francisco, sought to induce Johnson to take a seat beside him on the platform, were followed by the spectators. But this he was unable to accomplish, as Johnson failed to respond to his maneuvering.

Lissner as a political boss requires patronage to sustain himself in that position, and that patronage must come, if at all, from Johnson. But the latter is inclined to be the whole thing himself and not abdicate one iota of his power to another. Bets are being offered on who will win in the contest for party control, Lissner having not a few backers by reason of his patience and persistency.

At the San Francisco conference Lissner read an address which he had submitted to Johnson. The latter on reading it is said to have remarked, with a shade of sarcasm which the Los Angeles boss either did not perceive or believed it best to overlook,

"It reads very much like an inaugural."

As a rule Lissner is inclined to be supercilious with those he meets, but to Johnson he is obsequious. He knows that his relations with the Governor are being discussed, as they furnish entertainment for the onlookers. Yet the new boss, who once was a lieutenant to Walter Parker, the railroad political man of Los Angeles, and whom he superseded, having become stronger than his master, knows that the trial of strength is on, but declines to discuss it.

Lissner is a very close-mouthed man, and while he is of course aware of the contention in which he is engaged, the nearest approach to an answer given by him when asked as to the outcome of the scrimmage for control was, "We'll see."

Johnson is said to have even gone so far as to criticise Lissner's much vaunted campaign card system and to have suggested that the new boss from the south played the cards all wrong. And so the combat for tophand in political control progresses.

The Major and Tarantulas

At the Army and Navy Club there is being told a tale of a practical joke played by some of the members upon a certain army man during the gladsome holiday times when he was looking fondly and frequently in the glass that cheers and inebriates. We will call him Major Smith for short. If there is one thing in this world the major fears in both his waking and sleeping hours it is a tarantula. Several years ago he came near being bitten by one of these dreaded insects. The shock he then received because of his narrow escape impressed itself so peculiarly on his mind that even at this late day when indulging in an hospitable glass he imagines at times that he sees a tarantula making at him at full speed. The other evening a small bunch of horse hair, wrapped around at each end and in the middle with small rubber bands of the same color as the hair was placed on a table where he sat with several cronies quaffing his favorite beverage. The hour was late and Smith's intellect was not at its normal clearness. It was some time before he moved his hand on the table to where the poor imitation of a tarantula had been placed. All were in eager suspense watching to see what would happen when the major's hand should touch the object. The moment his hand touched the bunch of prickly hairs Smith stopped his voluble talk, gave one look at it and then with a yell jumped up and fled the room. The major has not taken a drink since and none who knows of the affair has the temerity to ask him why he broke off drinking in the midst of the holiday season.

Tetrazzini Throng

Tetrazzini's fine concerts in this city and Oakland yielded gross receipts of about $40,000. I am told the noted Italian songstress is worth a quarter of a million today and expects to clean up on her present concert tour of the United States $500,000. She has certainly made a good start. The success of her tour also means much money for her manager, W. H. Leahy, and his financial backer in the enterprise, Adolph Ottinger, the man who made half a million dollars as a ticket scalper before the United States Supreme Court a couple of years ago put that business on the toboggan. By the way there has been much difference of opinion as to the size of the crowd which greeted the famous diva when she sang for the multitude on Market street Christmas eve. Chief of Police John Seymour, who has had much experience with crowds, says there were fully 200,000 people in that vast throng, and he also says it is a significant fact that not one case of pocket picking or purse snatching was reported at police headquarters from the crowd that night. General Tasker H. Bliss, U. S. A., in command on this coast, thinks 100,000 is a fair estimate of the crowd. Major Carroll D. Buck, U. S. A., states that 125,000 people were in the throng. Several captains and lieutenants under Chief Seymour are inclined to think Major Buck's figures are the more correct.

Few Billiard Players

The game of billiards has taken a new lease of life in this city and there are two or three billiard parlors which are said to be as fine as any in the land. Yet one of their managers tells me there are less billiard players per capita in San Francisco than in any other large city of the United States. Climatic conditions explain this state of affairs. In the East from November to May the inclement weather forces people to remain indoors much of the time, especially at night. So during those months the Eastern billiard parlors are always crowded. Out on this coast the pleasant out-of-doors weather most of the time strongly detracts from the billiard parlor as a place of attraction. The same weather conditions explain the large number of automobiles in proportion to population that San Francisco and Los Angeles possess. In the East there is a very large percentage of professional men who always find a game of billiards a pleasant relaxation. It is noticed in this city how few professional men indulge in this pastime, either on tables in their own homes or in regular billiard parlors.

Stanford's Great Fortune

John D. Rockefeller's latest gift to the University of Chicago, which makes a total of $34,692,282 in cash and good securities he has given that institution, calls attention once more to the great fortune Senator

THE KNAVE

Leland Stanford gave to Stanford University. Next to the Chicago institution, Stanford University has received the largest endowment from a single individual of any university in this country. As near as can be ascertained, the fortune Stanford gave is worth today $25,000,000. It was not worth that much when he died in 1893. Much of it is constantly increasing in value. A part of this fortune includes 56,000 acres of land, much of which is under cultivation, and all of which is year by year increasing in value. When Stanford died his estate held 200,000 shares of Southern Pacific Company stock, which had a market value of about $26 a share. When Mrs. Jane Stanford sold the stock about seven years later to C. P. Huntington and the bankers, Speyer & Co., she is said to have received $52 a share. Much of the fortune today is invested in good income bonds. No one else has as yet given Stanford University a large gift of money or property. Harvard has 30,000 graduates, many of whom are wealthy and who contribute whenever they are asked to do so. Yale has many rich alumni who do the same thing. Columbia has property in New York City, which it was at one time advised to sell for seven and a half millions, and which is now valued at $25,000,000. It, too, has many rich graduates who are generous contributors.

Affinity Goes With Chauffeur

A successful young business man has been suffering from nervous prostration because his affinity has run off with his chauffeur. A neglected wife over in Alameda county is laughing sarcastically over this discomfiture of her erring spouse, happy to lay her anger aside for the moment to enjoy the chagrin of a man who thought his money, auto and good looks made him irresistible with the fair sex. Why the wife has not secured a divorce by this time is her own business. She certainly has had sufficient grounds. The husband has been very open in his association with the petite, dashing brunette until ten days ago, when she skipped with just as handsome and young a fellow, but one less imposing financially. The rub to the feelings of the married man was more severe from the fact that his own machine was used for the elopement. After five days in bed, with a male nurse guarding the door so he could not escape from the hospital and go in search of his fleeing charmer, the married man is finally able to frequent his old haunts. Sensible in other things, his friends are astonished at his persistence in trying to locate the runaway and fickle young woman and the manner in which he has flaunted the social conventions with her. They hope she will never come back, and marvel that the couple never got into the limelight with their many reckless joy rides and exploitation of the pleasures of the primrose path.

Will Meet Royalty

Mrs. John Ward, the daughter of Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and cousin of Miss Jennie and Templeton Crocker, is, with her parents, to entertain the two latter San Franciscans next May in London at the time of the coronation of King George. Long before that time Templeton Crocker will have married his fiancee, Miss Helene Irwin. While in London the Reids and their daughter, whose husband is an Englishman who moves in the royal set, will arrange for the presentation at court of Miss Crocker and her brother and his then bride. The Reids and Mrs. Ward will be here shortly to spend a winter vacation at Millbrae, a fine country home just south of this city, in which Mrs. Reid, as a daughter of the late D. O. Mills, is interested as one of the owners. It is said Mrs. Reid and her daughter may remain to attend the Crocker-Irwin nuptials. Ambassador Reid, while here, will attend the meetings of the trustees of Stanford University, he being a member of the board since its inception. It is only on his occasional visits to the coast that Reid can attend these meetings. He would have resigned long ago on this account but for the repeated requests of Senator and Mrs. Stanford during their lifetimes that he remain a trustee as long as he was in active life.

Goodwin Still Holds Property

Apropos of the reports that Actor Nat Goodwin and his fourth wife, the former Edna Goodrich, are about to resort to the divorce courts, the former appears to have held on to a lot of valuable San Francisco real estate, both improved and unimproved, instead of deeding it to his pretty spouse, as has been believed by some of his Eastern friends. That Goodwin has lavished much money on his wife and that she has been extravagant with his means, there is no question. It is also said he has given her choice securities and some Eastern real estate. The records in the city and county recorder's office here disclose no change in the ownership of the Goodwin properties north and south of Golden Gate Park and such fine improved properties as the Lafayette Apartments in the fashionable section of the Western Addition. Goodwin purchased these properties several years before the fire as an investment and they have materially increased in value since then. To what extent, if any, the actor's fortune was impaired in Nevada mining ventures I have no means of knowing. Goodwin tried to float some of his Nevada mining shares in Paris about two years ago and failed. A man who saw him and his wife in the French metropolis at the time says that she surprised even the blase "seen-it-alls" by the lavishness of her gowns and the wonderful and varied jewels she wore. When she entered restaurants there was always an ominous hush as if something awful was going to happen. She appeared to enjoy the sensation she caused at such times. But Nat fumed. His red face heightened in color and he appeared to want to fight somebody.

Spotlight On Lovers

The operator of the searchlight on the roof of the St. Francis Hotel at its northeast edge New Year's Eve caused consternation among the loving couples in Union Square Park. There was a host of them there on the benches and seated on the lawns, to whom the flood of electric light was anything but a pleasure and a joy. The sentimentally inclined maiden and her hugging companion sought in vain to escape this limelight. So to speak, the operator pelted them with rays of light in such a quantity as to reveal them to hundreds round about, causing them to scamper off in confusion as laughter and loud guffaws followed in their wake. I do not think this operator was either a cynic or a moralist in forcing his searchlight as a third party where only two can or ever will be company. No doubt he and his machine were out for a good jolly time like everybody and everything else. Maybe, too, he was a bit lonesome way up there and just a little envious of the lovesick couples amid the shrubbery and the flowers down below. Whoever he was and whatever his motive, he was a dandy marksman with his searchlight, and all the while there floated down from the roof snatches of a ditty:

> "I would like to have her near me,
>   I would like to hug her, too,
> I would like to draw her near me
>   An' jus' whisper: 'I love you.'"

He went over every bit of ground in Union Square time and again and got his quarry almost every time. So there are some young folks in town who will hereafter never like this decorative and intruding feature of Manager Woods' caravansary during times of festivity.

The Dog and the Lady's Hat

The engagement of Miss Marian Lally, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thornton Lally, to Louis Durkee, formerly of London but now in business here, recalls how that pretty maiden of the blonde type several months ago, while a guest at the Mill Valley home of Mrs. Jack Dempsey, had a costly hat, a fine creation of the milliner's art, torn to tatters and bits by the Dempsey dog, a fox terrier of approved pedigree. There were threats of a lawsuit for damages, the Lally household being reported to have gone so far in their anger as to engage an attorney to collect from the host and hostess the full value of the Parisian piece of headgear. No suit was instituted, but whether the Dempseys paid for the destruction wrought by their pet canine is something the public has never been advised about. The incident was interesting at the time because it raised a discussion as to the obligations of the hostess under the circumstances. Should she make a cash settlement? If so, should not a host or hostess exact cash settlements from guests who accidentally break some costly bric-a-brac? Or is it not preferable, in either case, to make compensation more delicately by the giving of presents on some appropriate occasion? But enough of that. The father of the young lady is known to fame in business circles as the man who resigned a $20,000 a year position rather than push a time indicator bell to show what hour he arrived at and left the store, as all the people under him were required to do. This was several years before the fire, when he was the resident agent for a big Chicago steel concern. Now he is prospering with a steel and iron agency of his own.

Women to Fight for Ballot

The women suffragists of California, who have planned to storm the present Legislature at Sacramento for a proper recognition of the franchise for women on a parity with the male voter, are in receipt of much advice and assistance from outside sources. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the "big boss" of the cause in the East, is in constant communication with the local cohorts. Women in Idaho, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and Washington have the right to vote and want California to fall into the line. Next Saturday at Tacoma a committee of five, one from each of those States, is to meet to form a national association of suffragists and to consider the status of the fight in California and Oregon. It is said this convention, or committee of five, has the hearty approval of the Governors of those States because they each selected one delegate to the convention. From what some of the San Francisco women, who are in this franchise fight for good and all, tell me the members of the Tacoma convention are to send here shortly for use at Sacramento reliable facts concerning woman's suffrage in their respective enfranchised States so as to give the lie to the innumerable false statements which are continually current. It is likely that a member of the convention will visit Sacramento later on to give aid and comfort to her California sisters.

Journalist's Career and the News

Joseph N. H. Irwin, the veteran newspaperman, member of the editorial staff of the Examiner and one of the founders of the Bohemian Club, who died some days ago, had a romance about twenty-five years ago which is interesting to recall. Had the Pope granted a special dispensation, Irwin would have been the stepfather of the present Mrs. Herman Oelrichs and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Jr. It is a part of the history of the city of why and how Mrs. Theresa Fair divorced her multimillionaire husband, the late Senator James G. Fair. Several years later Mrs. Fair and Irwin were recognized amnog their friends as devoted lovers and it was understood they were to be married if the Vatican gave consent. Mrs. Fair was a devout Catholic and her chivalrous lover heartily agreed with her that their union would be impossible without such permission. Consent was asked and urged from the Holy See, but it was refused in a firm but polite way. So their marriage was impossible. In spite of that fact, Irwin and she were the best of friends until her death. People are still living who knew how disinterested and correct was his judgment on the frequent occasions she appealed to him for advice on behalf of her young daughters and her large property interests when beset with the machinations of her former husband's friends. Like all newspaper men who are an honor to their profession, Irwin knew much of the current history of the town during the past thirty-five years and said but little. He was one of the few men who knew all of the reasons why C. P. Huntington quarreled with Senator Stanford when the latter was first made United States Senator in the middle eighties in place of A. A. Sargent, who expected the honor as the culmination of his career.

PASTOR'S FATHER DIES IN SOUTH

Rev. George W. White Called to Pomona by Message Bearing News.

In a telegraphic message received from Pomona yesterday by Rev. George W. White, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, news of the death of his father, David W. White, who died last evening was announced. The death occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George E. Merain where he had resided for the past eight years.

The late Mr. White had been ill a short time and hope for his recovery was held out up to the last moment by the members of the immediate family. Although 89 years of age, he made his influence felt in the community in which he lived, and in his old age his counsel was sought by his many friends. He was beloved by all and his devotion to his family and friends was one of his characteristics.

The deceased came to California in 1892 from Iowa, where he received his early education and adopted the life of a farmer, and during his residence in Pomona he did much to promote the farming interests in that district.

Rev. George W. White left last evening to attend the funeral which will be held in Pomona tomorrow afternoon. In his absence Rev. William C. Poole will conduct the services in the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Betrothal Declared to Be Untrue

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. John F. Cleary today declared that the announcement that their daughter, Miss Virginia Cleary, a singer, was engaged to Dr. Robert Stillwell Cornicus of Chicago, was untrue.

"The announcement was the work of an irresponsible person with a strange sense of humor, or else was given out maliciously," said Mrs. Cleary.

"My daughter spent a week in Chicago in December, but she is not even acquainted with the man named."

TARIFF ON FOODS MAY BE REDUCED

Fifteen Bills Entered in House by Representative From Illinois.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—This is what the House did today:

Humphrey of Washington introduced a bill prohibiting ships in trans-Atlantic shipping combine from entering or clearing from United States ports under penalty of $200 for each passenger and the forfeiture of merchandise brought to such ports.

Mann of Illinois introduced fifteen bills, removing tariff on a large number of articles of food. Bills referred to ways and means committee.

Old Dobbin Is Again Outclassed by Auto

Old Dobbin again has been outclassed by an automobile in an economy test in Danville, Ill., corroborating the result of a similar test in Greater New York last October. The horse and the automobile were pitted against each other on a fair basis to determine their relative maintenance cost under actual conditions of service. The result of the test showed that the Maxwell automobile incurred a passenger mile cost of one and eighty-eight one-hundredth cents, while the cost of the horse and buggy was two and four-tenths cents per passenger mile. These figures do not vary from the New York figures more than one-tenth of a cent per passenger mile in either case. They showed that while the service was far different from that of the New York test the Maxwell automobile was consistent in its reliability as well as in its upkeep cost.

Rock Island Road to Open Sacramento Office

Owing to the increased traffic which is being handled by the Rock Island through its affiliation with the Western Pacific, the company has decided to reopen its Sacramento offices which were closed at the time of the financial depression in 1907.

Official announcement has not yet been made but with the appointment of W. E. Gibbs to take charge of the office, it was learned that it would be opened as soon as arrangements for suitable accommodations could be effected.

TURNED NECKLACE INTO READY CASH

Son of Late President of France in Trouble in Paris Courts.

PARIS, Jan. 7.—Claude Casimir-Perier, son of the late president of the republic, is in the courts in a rather vulgar and mercenary dispute with jewelers over a collar of pearls worth $30,000. It is alleged he bought the collar on credit and immediately borrowed $12,000 on it from another jeweler.

Casimir-Perier admits this and proceeds to explain:

A friend named Levy asked him for a loan. Casimir-Perier had little ready money, so at Levy's suggestion he went to Janisch, a jeweler, who let him have the pearl collar. Janisch understood perfectly that the necklace was to be hypothecated for immediate cash, so Casimir-Perier took it to another jeweler and borrowed $12,000 on it, promising to redeem it in a fortnight.

DID NOT SEND NOTICE.

This he failed to do because, he declared, the jeweler did not send him notice that the fortnight had expired, as he agreed to, but promptly sold the pearls for $12,000. Then Janisch pressed payment of the $30,000. Casimir-Periar vows he declined to pay only because he suspected collusion between Janisch and the other jeweler.

As Mme. Semone le Bargy, wife of the famous leading man of the Comedie Francaise, Casimir-Perier's wife was in the foremost rank of French actresses.

ENORMOUS LOSSES CAUSED BY FIRE

Property Vlaued at $284,470,750 Destroyed in United States and Canada in 1910

CHICAGO, Jan. 7. — Statistics made public here show that losses by fire in the United States and Canada in 1910 amounted to $284,470,750 or over $20,000,000 more than the losses in 1909. December losses were exceptionally heavy, aggregating $21,528,000.

There were 36 fires during the year which caused a damage of $500,000 or more and in 10 the loss exceeded $1,000,000 each. In only two preceding years have the fire losses been heavier than in 1910, one being the year of the Chicago fire, the other of the San Francisco.

Federal and state officials agree that the majority of these losses are preventable. In spite of the increasing loss it is stated that the average rate of fire insurance shows a reduction in 191

The Political Outlook for 1912.

Should Congress pass the Crumpacker apportionment bill and Arizona and New Mexico be finally admitted as States there will be 583 votes in the Electoral College of 1912, necessitating 267 votes to elect the President. Every section of the Union will gain in representation. New England with three additional Congressmen, will show the smallest gain. The six down east States will have a total of forty-four votes in the college. New York alone will have forty-five and Pennsylvania thirty-eight. The gains are apportioned as follows: Alabama, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah and West Virginia, one each; Illinois, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Texas and Washington two each; California and Oklahoma, three each; Pennsylvania and New York, six each.

It will be seen that the gains in the States west of the Missouri river are large. Counting Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, this western group of States will have twenty more votes in the lower House of Congress and an equal number in the Electoral College. Excluding Texas and Oklahoma, the gain will total fourteen, which will vastly increase the political power of the Far West. The three Pacific States will have six more Congressmen and six more electoral votes—fifty per cent more than the gain of all New England.

Including Missouri, West Virginia and Okalhoma, the southern group will have 172 electoral votes, 95 short of a majority of the Electoral College. New York, New Jersey and Indiana can furnish 94 more. But the score will then be still one short of enough to elect. The deficiency can be supplied by either Arizona, Montana, Colorado, Nebraska or Nevada. With Harmon as the nominee the Democrats would have a chance of winning the twenty-four votes of Ohio, in which case they could do without Indiana and the west. But everything depends upon New York. Without the vote of that State the Democrats cannot hope to win the Presidential election. They can carry New York and still lose by a big margin, for Missouri, Kentucky and Oklahoma are doubtful and West Virginia more than doubtful.

Notwithstanding the victory they gained last November, our Bourbon friends are far from having the better of the prospect for national election two years hence. They will have to keep their noses clean and put in their best licks to be in the running at all.

The talk about "kicking the Southern Pacific out of politics" is assuming a very definite meaning. It means simply that every man now holding office in this State who can be reached shall be turned out that the acolytes of the new dispensation may get the offices. When a man's job is wanted for another fellow it is only necessary to charge him with being friendly to the Southern Pacific to find an excuse for decapitating him, no matter how capable he may be or how worthily he has performed his official duties. Every Republican who has not affiliated with the Rowell-Lissner movement or acknowledged the right of Lissner and Rowell to control him rests under this charge. The fact that a man holds a place in the public service now is assumed to prove the truth of the charge. Every man whose job is wanted is tried and convicted without a hearing by the men who are hungry for his place. Under the plea that the people must rule, the new bosses are planning to make a clean sweep of the State employes that places may be made for their satellites and henchmen. The excuse for this wholesale spoils raid is the rankest humbug.

An Appreciation of the Late T. L. Barker.

Death has been pitiless to Oakland. The foremost rank of our men of enterprise has lost Samuel Alexander, Isaac Requa, Palmanteer, Butters and a long list of men valued in our community life. The list lengthens in the passing of Timothy L. Barker. He was a real pioneer, an argonaut who cast his lot with California three score and one years ago, when this was a virgin land. By his energy and enterprise his fortunes rose with the progress of the State, and all that he gathered and gained was not at the expense of another. All his long business record is as stainless as a star. His personal characteristics were especially charming. He was a man of clean mouth and exemplary speech. Considerate and thoughtful of others, he had a refinement of manners and that good taste that is called the conscience of the mind, too often lacking in business men. He was widely informed, a seeker after knowledge and a student of men and affairs with decided political views. As a partisan he was open-minded and generous, and was quick to note and unselfishly proclaim the good points in an opponent. It will be seen then that he filled entirely the place of a good citizen and a good man. A city of such men would be indeed the city beautiful in the private and public character of its people. He passed away in the fullness of age, but the example of his well ordered life will never grow old.

The foolish and frenzied Enquirer appears to be losing the scanty stock of wits it once possessed. It pretends to regard this paragraph in THE TRIBUNE as a fling at all our Jewish fellow citizens:

"As Meyer Lissner now has charge of California politics and legislation, the people will expect long-delayed laws for the regulation of pawnshops."

The Enquirer says this is "a dirty slur" on all Hebrews. The Enquirer has a very poor opinion of the intelligence of the Jewish people or it would not profess to regard a reference to the former calling of a political boss as an insult to their race. Meyer Lissner is not exempt from criticism because he is a Jew, and the Jewish people are no more responsible for his acts than the American people were responsible for the treason of Benedict Arnold. Lissner, at least, does not think his coreligionists are fools, as the editor of Enquirer evidently does. However, it is a waste of lather to shave an ass who insults a whole people by setting up a defense of them that is an affront to their pride and intelligence.

As to Lafayette Square.

The Park Commissioners were quite right in refusing to turn Lafayette Square into a playground for the high school students. Not that playgrounds for the students are not useful and desirable, but that considerations of public policy as well as legal authority forbid diverting Lafayette Square from the purpose to which it was dedicated. It was dedicated as a public park, and as a public park it should remain. The Park Commissioners have no right to give it to the high school as a playground for pupils. That would be to deprive the general public of the use of the square, which is not the property of the Park Commission to give away to anybody. Lafayette Square is a beauty spot and a resting place near the business heart of the city. It is where children play on the grass and the aged and friendless sit in the sun amid flowers and shrubbery; where shop girls eat their midday lunch on garden seats. All these would be driven away if the park were turned into a high school playground. The beauty of the place would be destroyed, and one of the city's choicest breathing spots closed to its owners, the general public. All the schools should have ample playgrounds, but it is not necessary that the wants of the school children should be supplied by robbing others of a pleasure and a possession that is rightfully theirs. If there is insufficient room on the high school lot for playgrounds let more ground be bought, but ground dedicated and improved as a public park should not be confiscated for the purpose. Let Lafayette Square be. It is a gem as it is. If the Park Commission should give it to the high school, it would not be long before the park adjacent to the Lincoln school would be demanded as a playground.

No sooner had the public revolted against the hobble skirt than the newly-elected Governor of Oklahoma rushed into the sartorial arena with the "jimswinger coat." This garment appears to have been an inspiration of jimswinger politics. It ought to be popular in Sacramento just now.

OUR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Some years ago Great Britain got into a blue funk over the problem of national defenselessness.

The nation had an acute panic from which it has not yet recovered.

Ultimately, one of those royal commissions of which the British government is so fond, headed by Lord Somebody or other, was sent to Switzerland to find out how the Swiss managed it.

There are only about 5,000,000 of them, landlocked and surrounded by great powers.

From the days of Caesar they have been compelled to fight from time to time for their independence, and they still have it. How?

That was what the royal commission set out to learn and it made a report on the Swiss military organization which some frightened American statesman could read with profit at this time.

Applying as far as possible the Swiss method to the situation of the United States, as Secretary Dickinson's sensational report has laid that situation before the public, it is evident that an adequate defense can be maintained without ruining the country.

The success of the plan lies in the national militia—the national guard.

Virtually every man in Switzerland capable of bearing arms is trained sufficiently to make him an effective soldier if his services may be needed.

The country could put 500,000 men in the field, and all of them would know how to shoot straight and how to maneuver.

Excellent officers are trained to handle any force that may be called out.

Everybody is proud of his part in the scheme of national defense.

The American national guard offers the basis of such an organization as this country needs.

It is ten times more efficient and useful today than before the Spanish war, and it is getting better every year.

It could be extended and expanded to provide easily a basis of 500,000 men out of which to mould an army in time of need.

The important thing is to have guns and ammunition and equipment always ready for the time of need.

A strong navy—strong enough for defense in any emergency—is necessary.

A huge standing army is not.

The militia, rightly organized, will provide just what it does for little potential strength to keep other powers in peaceful mood.—Philadelphia Times.

Decline in Drinking

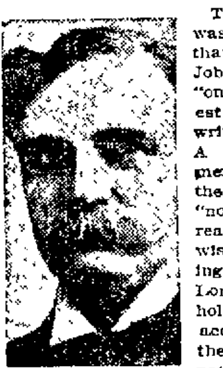
Eighty-eight consolidated rate "summonses were dealt with at the Guildhall recently, the defendants including a number of license holders and hotelkeepers whose appearance was regarded in some quarters as a sign of decadence of the publican's trade in the city.

"City publicans," said the manager of one of the oldest licensed houses on the square mile yesterday, "besides being burdened by higher license duties, are feeling the effects of the great decline in drinking among business men. Drinking is rapidly going out of fashion in the city.

"Business is no longer done over a whiskey and soda. Men now come to the city at 10 in the morning, rush through their work and leave about 5 or 6 in the evening. The result is that the public house is neglected.—London Mail.

A Sermon in Praise of the Average Man

By REV. WM. DAY SIMMONDS, Pastor First Unitarian Church.



REV. W. D. SIMONDS.

Thomas Carlyle was of the opinion that the Book of Job may be called "one of the grandest things ever written with pen. A "Noble book; all men's book." At the close of this "noble book" we read that Job, made wise by his suffering, answered the Lord and said, "Behold, I am of small account." Perhaps these words would not have been unbecoming, or untrue, if they had been spoken by the greatest man that ever lived. Sometimes it seems that the whole human race is of small account. If in some grand catastrophe, such as science deems possible, our little world were dashed to pieces it would scarcely be missed in the ongoings of the mighty universe.

Now, if such reflections are true of the race as a whole, and of the greatest and best of men, how much more may the average man, the honest, plodding man, reflect upon the vanity of his life, the futility of his work, and the fatal lack of meaning which attaches to his whole existence.

Yes, so it would appear. But let the common man straightway comfort himself with this axiomatic truth, that the common is everywhere the indispensable. Even in nature this is true. Our goodly earth could get on very well without the monster mountains that pierce the sky, but the average mountain range forming the backbone of a continent is indispensable. We could better spare the majestic river than the countless streams that through all the states find their way to the sea. The eye is gladdened on every side by the "modest, crimson tipped flower," and life is sustained by the average yield of orchard and farm. Again, I say, always and everywhere it is the common, the average, that is indispensable. For upon average strength, and average excellence is based the superior attainments and achievements of civilization. If the Deity were to destroy all of the human race, saving only the brilliant, the sagacious, the superman, then it would be wise to conclude the work—there would be so few left—and these would probably be unable to pass their greatness on to posterity. According to ancient legend the almighty once destroyed all mankind with the exception of Noah and his family. The superman was saved, but alas! when the flood subsided the patriarch took to drink and the race was no better than before. The experiment was a failure for the world is not saved by the deeds of the exceptional man—though these have great place and worth—but by the slow and faithful progress of the common people toward truth, and right, and liberty.

God bless the common laborer. He goes forth in early morning to his task, with no high hopes of wealth or fame. He will do his duty and make a home for wife and babe. We could get on without the great financier, but not without the humble son of toil. He is the common soldier in the army of industry, and with his good right arm wins all our victories.

God bless the average farmer. His name does not appear in our agricultural reports, but our prosperity is based upon his hand-to-hand struggle with nature.

God bless the average toiler in all ranks of life, in school, and state, and church. The common man and his wife, their graves may be marked, "Unknown," but ever and forever Schiller's lines hold true:

"What shall I do to be forever known?
Thy duty ever;
This did full many who sleep unknown;
Oh, never, never;
Think'st thou perchance that they remain unknown
Whom thou knowest not?
By angel trumps in heaven their praise is blown—
Divine their lot."

"DOLLAR DIPLOMACY"

The triumphs of "dollar diplomacy" have about silenced the snap-judgment critics, who laughed it to scorn before Secretary Knox had a chance to vindicate that course for the advancement of our commercial interests abroad. The secretary has used the resources of the Department of State to such good effect that the results in the aggregate are well-nigh monumental. A new meaning is given to American diplomacy and a new impulse imparted to American commerce. Barriers which in the past have kept us from participating in foreign finance and development enterprises have been broken down, and the door of opportunity permanently opened. The new policy has come to stay, for there yet remains much to be done which cannot be accomplished through any other agency. A statement in detail of what has been done up to date has been given out by Assistant Secretary Huntington Wilson, as follows:

"Through the efforts of the State Department we have secured for American shipbuilders contracts for two large battleships for the Argentine navy, which will bring here $22,000,000 to go to American workmen and be applied to the purchase of American material. We also got contracts for railway equipment in Argentina amounting to $2,400,000; contracts for the building of two ships for Cuba, to cost about $900,000; contracts for furnishing armor and armament for the Argentine navy, amounting to $1,000,000; contracts for furnishing paper to a large Latin-American newspaper, amounting to about $200,000 per annum; the opening up of the Hukuang loan agreement in China so as to permit Americans to have an equal share with the citizens of foreign governments in financing and supplying materials for a railroad in Central China to cost upward of $30,000,000; a contract for the construction of a railway to be financed with American capital and supplied in part with American material, together with harbor works and other industrial improvements in Manchuria, representing an investment of about $40,000,000. We are also assured of succeeding in concluding a loan to China of $50,000,000, which will greatly improve business conditions in China, and, therefore, aid American commerce."—Indianapolis Star.

COMMERCE IN 1910

Assuming a fair volume of business for the present month, the foreign commerce of the United States for 1910 will equal, and may by a few thousands of dollars exceed, that of any earlier year. The imports thus far indicate a total for the year of nearly $1,550,000,000, an increase of $75,000,000 over the purchases of 1909 and of 50 per cent over those of 1904, when imports for the first time crossed the million-dollar line. It is probable that exports will exceed $1,800,000,000, falling short of the 1907 record mark by about $100,000,000. Three years ago exports of breadstuffs, meat and dairy products and food animals amounted to $413,000,000. Shipments in 1910 will be about one-half that. The failure to make an export record this year is attributable to that fact. Cotton prices have been a strong factor in bringing the export total to so high a point this year. In 1907 our bills against the rest of the world for raw cotton show the sale of 8,121,844 bales, valued at $468,972,924. The bills for the first eleven months of 1910 show 5,728,943 bales sold for $427,135,154. The bills for the full year will in all probability materially exceed $500,000,000.

Shipments of breadstuffs for the eleven months ended November, this year, show a value of $84,000,000. The average of the same months of the four preceding years was $156,000,000. Meat and dairy products show a drop to $97,589,000 from an average of $150,000,000, and cattle, sheep and hogs a drop to $7,603,000 from an average of $25,000,000. Mineral oil shipments, at $81,000,000, are about $4,500,000 below the average. Shipments of copper have been normal, and sales of other metals and of metal products show wholesome increase. The gain in leather and leather goods exported has been considerable, and there have been satisfactory increases in the sales of agricultural implements, automobiles, coal, fruits and nuts, furs and fur skins, rubber, electrical appliances, naval stores, wood and manufactures of wood, and a long list of minor commodities. Manufactured cottons make their usual shabby exhibition.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS

The inauguration of a postal savings-bank system in this country on January 3 will be on a small scale, the appropriation limiting the number of postoffices ready on that date to one second-class office in each state. But the important thing is the beginning here of a plan for the promotion of public thrift which in other countries long ago passed beyond the experimental stage.

Postal savings banks now exist in more countries, including Russia, where they were established in 1889. They have been in operation in England since 1861, with a success that is attested by the increase in the number of depositors from 7,239,761 in 1897 to 10,690,555 in 1907. There is due British postal savings-bank depositors $787,500,385, or approximately three times the amount on deposit at trustee savings banks; though it is not much more than half the deposits of the savings banks of New York State.

Postal depositors here will receive interest at the rate of per cent as against 2½ in England. All deposits are withdrawable on demand, with interest, and are exchangeable in sums of from $20 to $500 for United States bonds of like denomination, drawing interest at 2½ per cent. In cities possessing well-established savings banks under State supervision, depositors will naturally show a preference for these, as paying a higher rate. But in rural districts and communities devoid of such facilities, postoffice banks should furnish an added incentive to save.—New York World.

WESTERN LAND MOVEMENT

It is one of the notable changes in the condition of the West that the small bank has become a large factor in financial affairs. For many years the farmer was the one individual to whom the West looked for its prosperity and for management of its business. Upon him everything seemed to depend, but as the small bank developed it placed in a prominent position in Western finance thousands of men whose attention was given entirely to the handling of the farmers' savings. In consequence they have become to a large extent the balance wheel that maintains a steady condition for the financial situation. It was the banker who called a halt on the land speculation. The farmer himself had no idea in that direction. He was ambitious to extend his properties and acquire new holdings without considering what might be the effect upon business or the supply of money.

On the whole, the land movement has assumed a much more substantial and sane basis and one which gives less concern to the banking interests, though it has not yet returned to the complete normal condition that bankers desire. The good prices for crops of all kinds if maintained will rapidly accomplish this, and if the banking interests and the loan companies maintain their present plan of conservative action and discourage speculation in every form there ought soon to be a modification of present financial conditions.—North American Review.

RELIEF SOCIETY IN PROSPEROUS CONDITION

Charity Workers Get Report of Recording Secretary for Year.

FORTY YEARS SPENT IN WORK IN OAKLAND

Many Helpless Children and Infirm Persons Are Given Helping Hand.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Relief Society of Oakland, Cal, held on January 5, the following report of the recording secretary was read

'The Ladies' Relief Society has reached the fourth decade of its existence, another milestone, where we may pause and review the forty years spent in ministering to the wants of helpless children and infirm old age. How many of both have found comfort within our sheltering walls!

"We may reckon the year just passed as a fortunate one for among the children a condition of good health has been unusually prevalent, while the old people have been fairly blest also, though the accompaniment of age was often hard to bear with the utmost alleviation that can be devised

TWENTY-EIGHT CARED FOR.

"The number whom we have cared for during the year has been twenty-eight, of whom very few are invalids One gentle spirit passed away from the family circle last spring and was followed by another during the recent holidays

"The children have numbered one hundred and twenty-five, divided between the children's home and the nursery In the latter building twenty-nine babies have been tenderly cared for These range from a few weeks old to four years as many as seven at a time being tiny infants requiring unremitting attention on the part of the matron and her assistants A third baby boy has greatly improved in health since his treatment by Dr Thomas, but no hopes are held out for his sight Abandoned by his parents the little one seems indeed to have a dark future before him but the halo of human kindness shall be shed around him as long as he is a charge of this society.

STANDING GOOD

"The standing of the older children in school is good, especially that of the girls The services of an efficient kindergarten teacher have been secured by the generosity of Mrs William Henshaw thus relieving us of considerable expense and furnishing a great educational advantage to the little ones composing the class

Christmas day was made a very happy time for all The entertainment, with a tree held at the children's home, was delightful and many gifts were bestowed on old and young Both money and toys had been donated generously for the festivities The children were invited later to the entertainment at St Mark's church Berkeley where they received gifts and had much enjoyment

$500 LEGACY

Through the will of the late M[illegible], a legacy of $500 was bequeathed to the Ladies Relief Society for which we are most grateful The sum of $100 from Mr Charles Baker $25 from a friend, to be used on the nursery playground and $25 from a friend of Mrs Martinez $5 for the nursery were among the cash donations

Other donations have consisted of clothing cake candy and eggs from Mrs Albert Miller dolls and aprons from the girls in Miss O'Neill's class books clothing glasses etc from Mrs Requa fruit from Mr J Howard Smith a communion service from the Presbyterian church Ukiah (through Miss Reeves) clothing for the nursery skirts, dresses pinning blankets buggy robe etc from Mrs Bennett apples and peanuts from Mrs J Wright clothing from Miss Sanderson Mrs Hardy and the needle work guild and subscriptions to magazines and papers from Mrs Phelps and Mrs Beach

DONATIONS TO FETE

Donations to the May fete held in Mosswood last spring amounted $116 The sum of $[illegible] 95 was realized on that occasion by sales and admission

At a sale of fancy articles held by Trinity Guild of Trinity church Oakland one third of the profits was generously turned over to the Ladies Relief Society

The Rev Rev Dr Bakewell, to whom we are indebted for repeated kindnesses was instrumental in having our city taxes reduced materially

We are under great obligations to Dr [illegible], Dr Thomas and Dr L[illegible] for their valuable services and to the different clergymen who have so kindly officiated at our Sunday services, as well as on other occasions

We also thank the press for its generous consideration and courtesy

THANKSGIVING HAPPY.

"Thanksgiving day was made a very happy one for all on the premises The dinners in the two homes were delicious Turkeys were donated by Rev Dr Bakewell Miss Shepard Mrs Murray Johnson Mrs Walter Morgan Mrs William Henshaw, Miss Crellin and Miss Brown candy from Miss Ransome's school Miss [illegible] class and others and dried peaches from Mr [illegible] among other good things

The young ladies of Miss Ransome's school invited six of our older girls to a Hallowe'en party which was a [illegible] treat for them

We would ask the public to remember us during the coming year hoping that the number of monthly subscribers may increase whose generosity means so much to the development of our work which involves keeping up the good condition of the premises, making many necessary repairs and last but by no means least insuring the degree of comfort and wellbeing for our old people and the improvement of our children which has always been the aim of the Ladies Relief Society.

Respectfully submitted,
LUCY C BROWNE
Recording Secretary

OMAHA Jan 7—In response to a demand from Western Governors, immigration officials and commercial associations for an association which shall devote its energies to turning the tide of immigration into the Western States, a call is being sent out from Omaha this week for a meeting to be held in that city between January 16 and 28 for the purpose of organizing the Western Development Association As the meeting is called on the advice of some powerful State and private interests, the organization promises to become potential in stopping the tide of people going from the Missouri and Mississippi valleys into Canada

SUGGESTION GOOD

George L McDonagh Colonization Agent Union Pacific Railroad "The suggestion is a good one as it will enlist and secure the co-operation in each and every one of the States mentioned

SUFFRAGE LEADER APPROVES OF DIVORCES

Mrs Carrie Catt Says it Keeps Married People True to Vows.

NEW YORK Jan 7—Mrs Carrie Chapman Catt head of the Woman's Party in the battle for equal suffrage thoroughly agrees with Judge W F [illegible] of Cleveland Ohio that what makes divorce frequent in this country is the fact that women now find it easy to be financially independent of their husbands

"There can be no question as to the correctness of this view" said Mrs Catt today when asked for her opinion of the statement "Forty two years ago according to John Stuart Mill but three women had ever applied for divorce in England That was because the wife's property belonged absolutely to the husband after marriage and if she left him for no matter what cause of ill treatment or infidelity she could take nothing with her She could not take her clothes Naturally under such conditions women endured everything

CAUSES FOR DIVORCE

"Today the great majority of divorces are granted to women and the cause for divorce is infidelity Women have urged their greater financial independence to insist upon a higher standard of family life That is why divorce is an optimistic symptom of our times It rights a wrong done to an individual woman and sets a higher standard of conduct for our husbands and wives in the community It insists upon the husband's fidelity

Mrs Catt is of the opinion that virtue is the essential decency of men and that the type of man that does not adhere to this is comparatively few outside possibly a great city

"I think" she said "there are a great many men who observe their marriage vows as faithfully as women I should say that in the small communities of this country more than 9[illegible] per cent of the people lead absolutely legal lives"

PREFER NEW WOMAN

Man cares more for the new woman than he ever cared for the old Here and there perhaps there is some one who clings to the old idea of an adorable doll but the ideal is passing

Mrs Catt is of the opinion the dolls themselves are very unhappy and are fast passing

"You see" she continued "their lives are so empty so more useless than they were a generation ago when embroidery was an art which every woman of leisure cultivated when sewing was done in the home and the mothers and daughters of the rich made their own fine underwear Now little sewing is done by women of leisure—and they have just so much more idleness to enjoy"

ARBITRAL COURT IS MEANS OF PEACE, HE SAYS

Andrew Carnegie Talks at Big Luncheon of New York Republicans

NEW YORK Jan 7—Andrew Carnegie who recently gave $10 000 000 toward a fund to help establish universal peace was a speaker today at the Republican Club The club is holding a series of meetings every Saturday and the subject today was Universal Peace Through an International Court of Arbitral Justice Previous to the speechmaking there was a luncheon

Carnegie described the new international court of arbitral justice He said "Such a court would bring universal peace to this world within a year or I would give it an option of a second year It is easy for a man to make predictions without setting dates but it is possible in my mind to bring the establishment of this court about in a day What nation would dare to refuse it?"

LIKES CRITICISM.

"I love a healthy criticism" continued Carnegie "and whenever I see my name in the papers I cut it out and lay it away Many have criticised me for my having made money in the manufacture of armor plate Benjamin F Tracy knew why I went into armor It was because of a telegram from him that I did it. I was at that time in Scotland and he wired me as follows

'The President says it is your duty to make armor [illegible] to save the [illegible] I tried it [illegible] the manufacture of pig iron [illegible] President [illegible] and I [illegible] the word of a President is the voice of God and it is my duty to obey

TAKE THINGS EASY

Referring again to the court of arbitration Carnegie said "I want to make a prediction [illegible] if the Senate of the United States would approve of such a court and would pass upon it and ratify it within a year you will see such a treaty in operation among the nations of the world and the object of those who have been working for the international peace will have been accomplished Take things easy and all will come out right"

OAKLAND, CITY OF ENERGY, IS SECOND TO NONE

STATE BOOSTERS SHOUT PRAISES OF CITIZENS

Wonderful Development Displayed Here Inspires Many Delegates to Counties Committee

The delegates to the convention of the counties committee of the State Development Board, which has just closed, are most enthusiastic in their estimates of the results achieved by the convention, and declare that the consequences will be of far-reaching benefit to the state. Praises of Oakland's hospitality and commendations of her progress are heard on every side, and all are returning to their homes imbued with the idea that as a city of energy and importance Oakland takes second place to none on the coast.

SHOUT FOR OAKLAND.

"Oakland is the only place in the state—of course, outside of Santa Cruz," said Colin H. McIsaac, secretary of the Santa Cruz Chamber of Commerce. "It was the best meeting I have ever attended and I have seen many. The Chamber of Commerce has done itself proud, and as we were all boosters who attended the convention we will give a shout for Oakland, whenever we see an opportunity, when we get home."

"Oakland is entitled to a great deal of credit for the way in which it has handled the convention," said Francis Hope of San Francisco. "We are more than pleased with Oakland hospitality, and the revelation of what Oakland is doing in the way of development of her waterfront, as told by Mayor Mott at the banquet Friday night, is certain to be of great value to the whole state."

DELEGATES INVIGORATED.

J. A. Filcher of Sacramento was no less certain of the good which will be accomplished by the convention. "It was the most successful ever held," said he. "When a great number of intelligent and progressive men get together and talk out their problems they cannot help going home invigorated with new ideas which are sure to be of great benefit to the community in which they live."

"The convention brought together the highest degree of ability and public spirit," said Robert Newton Lynch of San Francisco. "The interest shown in the speeches made at the meeting and the strong character of the men who were there speaks volumes for the progress of the work in the near future, and the State Development Board is glad to have been the means of bringing them together on an occasion of so much import."

William Robertson of Fresno said: "It was the meatiest convention I have ever attended, and it is my tenth annual meeting. The speeches were of high order, and in point of results I am sure this years' meeting will not be wanting."

TREATED ROYALLY.

The secretary of the Watsonville Commercial League, C. Gentry Rodman, said: "The convention could not have been better. The banquet and the speeches made on that occasion were as good as I have ever known. We have been treated royally, and we go away with a very friendly feeling for Oakland."

"Any convention of this kind is necessarily of vast interest to the state, and I am very well satisfied with the results of this one. It is bound to be of great benefit to the community and the state," said Edwin Stearns of Oakland, former secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

"It will have important results for Oakland," said Secretary A. A. Denison of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce. "It will bring about the closer co-operation of the Chambers of Commerce and the commercial bodies throughout the state and it is a good thing for the people to see the wonderful growth and development of Oakland in the past few years. An important matter was the appointment of the standing committee to undertake the work of forwarding the promotion policies of the various Chambers of Commerce, one of the most important of which is the endorsement of the project to build and bridge across the Carquinez straits."

OAKLAND'S REAL SPIRIT.

H. H. Marcus, secretary and publicity manager of the Marin county Promotion League, said: "It is honestly the best city on the coast next to her sister metropolis across the bay. Los Angeles is the best boosted city on the coast, but her citizens are too clammy. Oakland shows the real Western spirit."

Ed Simpson, the secretary of the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce, said: "I have been delighted with the entertainment afforded us by the Chamber of Commerce of Oakland, and have been highly interested in the perfect addresses which we have heard from the various members of the Oakland chamber and of the members of the chambers from the other counties. The convention has been the best that has ever been held in this state."

"Others have expressed my sentiments when they praised the state convention and the members of the local Chamber of Commerce and I think that nothing rests for me to say, other than to extend my most profound thanks for the good time I received at the hands of your good business men," stated A. Johnson of Turlock."

BEST ADVERTISING.

J. P. Kelley of Sebastopol said: "A convention of this kind at this time, when this state is making such a strong fight for the great exposition, is in the nature of one of the best methods of advertising that I can think of. My predecessors have stated my views to a tee on behalf of the way I feel about the way the members of the local Chamber of Commerce have treated us."

T. F. Burke, a Bakersfield booster, said: "The way that I feel about the growth of this fair city of yours could have been drawn better than expressed as I first stepped off the train at the Sixteenth street depot and took the car for uptown. This is the first time that I have been here in ten years and I can say that I am more than surprised with the rapid growth of the city and the large buildings that have been erected since my last visit here."

Craigie Sharpe of San Francisco, the first secretary of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce nine years ago when it was known as the Oakland Board of Trade, said: "This convention is by far the best that has ever been held on this side of the bay and, yes, on this coast, and you can picture my surprise when I first was shown the number of delegates who had traveled far and wide from the remote corners of the state to attend it. Being the first member of the Chamber of Commerce I can see truthfully the rapid strides Oakland has made in building so rapidly."

EXCELLENT TREATMENT.

Judge C. Talbot of Springville said: "I am the oldest man here. I came over the plains when I was 14 years of age and settled first in the Sonoma valley. I have now been forty years in the San Joaquin valley and I can say as to the growth of nearly every town and city in the state. I have seen cities rise and fall; so many, in fact, that I feel like the 'Rip Van Winkle' which I used to read in my school primer. The growth of this city of Oakland is a marvel and I cannot get over the treatment that has been accorded to us by the members of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce.

"The banquet which I attended at the Key Route Inn last evening was the best that I have ever had the pleasure of sitting at and all of the addresses were timely and to the point."

The delegates from the south bay counties held a meeting Friday evening, after the banquet, at which a temporary organization was formed for the purpose of expediting the formation of the counties south of the bay into a federation under the name of the Peninsular League of the south bay counties. S. M. Cuthbertson, secretary of the Santa Clara County Promotion Association, was elected temporary secretary, and was directed to send letters to the counties which will be interested in the proposed consolidation, urging them to appoint delegates to hold a meeting for the purpose of forming a permanent organization.

SEEK CO-OPERATION.

The advantages of organization have been so conspicuously shown at the convention that the south bay counties delegates are eager to obtain the same increase of strength and efficiency by means of co-operation. Among the delegates present were: Colin H. McIsaac of Santa Cruz, C. Gentry Redman of Watsonville, S. M. Cuthbertson of Mayfield, Ed Simpson, Pacific Grove; Charles C. Bell, Saratoga; William Sandholt, Monterey, and others.

OAKLAND GREAT CITY.

The following self-explanatory letter has been received:

Editor, THE TRIBUNE, Oakland: As delegate to the fourteenth semi-annual meeting of the California Development Board we beg to thank the people of Oakland, through the medium of your esteemed publication, for the grand reception they have accorded us on this occasion. To say that we are charmed with the hospitality shown us by the people of Oakland, and particularly your chamber of commerce, would be putting it mildly, and we can only say that, representing as we do the various organized commercial organizations of California's counties, we are proud to say that we are in the same State with Oakland.

You have in Oakland everything that goes to make a city second in rank only to the largest centers of culture and commerce in the United States; your city displays unusual building activity and that enterprise and hustle which was ever characteristic of western municipal development.

Very faithfully yours.

Deserter From Army Is Held As Witness

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—A subpoena was served on Private James T. Nesbit, a deserter from the Twenty-ninth company coast artillery corps, who is undergoing treatment at the General hospital, Presidio of San Francisco, this morning. Nesbit will be brought before department six of the superior court Monday morning as the complaining witness against William G. Grant, who is to be tried on a charge of holding up and robbing Nesbit some time ago.

At the time of the robbery Grant was arrested by Policeman Neil Brosnan, who took Nesbit along to the police station as the complaining witness. At police headquarters it was discovered that Nesbit was a deserter from the army and he was turned over to the military authorities.

LIEUTENANT ASSIGNED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Captain James E. Wilson, coast artillery corps, recently promoted from the rank of first lieutenant, has been assigned to the One Hundred and Forty-third company.

Grand Jury Orders County Stables Razed

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—The grand jury forwarded to the board of health today a communication calling attention to the generally bad condition of the stables at the county jail and demanding that the board take action looking to their destruction and the erection of a new and adequate building.

It is mentioned that the premises in question have been similarly condemned by other grand juries for a number of years, without any result, and it is urged that something should be done without further delay.

At the health office it was stated that there was no reason to dispute the need of the suggested improvement and that the only difficulty in the way of the carrying it out before now has been that no appropriation has ever been made in the budget to cover the expense.

MANY MINERS KILLED.

HUELVA, Spain, Jan. 7.—The roof of a tunnel in a copper mine in Rio Tinto fell today, burying many of the worker. Five bodies were recovered and five injured men were taken out.

$75,000 IN STOCK TAKEN BY THIEVES

Negotiable Certificates Shipped From Alaska Bound for Seattle.

SEATTLE, Jan 7.—Express thieves between Seattle and Alaska have gotten away with $75,000 worth of negotiable stock certificates of the Owl Mining company, a package of valuable gold ore specimens, a bundle of currency and several other parcels of considerable value shipped to Seattle by the Alaska Pacific Company from Cordova.

Although the officials of the company are reticent in regard to the matter, they are keeping the wires hot between Seattle and Cordova and other places along the coast in an effort to locate the missing plunder.

The valuable parcel of stock certificates, which are negotiable anywhere, and particularly in some of the coast towns of Alaska, where the mining stocks are accepted as currency, was shipped from Cordova on the [illegible] December [illegible] to Herbert Thurston of Chicago, a guest at the Seattle hotel.

Thurston had sold $[illegible],000 worth of stocks to a small party of Seattle capitalists and Alaska mining men, it being agreed that the money should be used to install a quartz mill and develop the property.

The non-arrival of the stocks on the steamship Alameda today led to the discovery that the express trunk had been rifled at some point enroute.

WANT ACTION TO PREVENT ANARCHY

Londoners Anxious to Have International Campaign Against Pests

LONDON, Jan 7.—International action to stamp out anarchy will, it is predicted here, be a development of the near future. If the average Londoner in this city is excited over Tuesday's sensational fight in Sidney street, the suggestion is welcome. He is convinced that something more is needed than ordinary police measures and the conventional criminal codes of modern states.

Expression is given today to the spreading sentiment by a forceful but dispassionate writer, who asks whether all sensible men will not agree with him in thinking that altogether too little attention is paid by the great powers of Europe, America and Asia to the need and feasibility of concerted action to stamp out enemies of order.

ACTION IS NEEDED

If the powers cannot arrange for concerted action, he argues, they must bring about simultaneous individual action to efface the whole miserable brood of London Peter the Painters and Tokio Kotokus and Barcelona bomb hurlers and Rome Mafia men and New York and Chicago Black Hand pests.

German opinion is almost as emphatic. A Berlin publicist wonders why, even if it be too early to talk of national disarmament, it is not high time to form some practical scheme to disarm forever the only enemies of all nations, governments and civilized society.

In quarters where the prevailing view is that the duty of leadership in a campaign for international action against anarchy rests with France and the United States, because of their republican character, the point is made that the mere existence of The Hague tribunal paves the way for indefinite multiplication of mutual defense measures.

TRAIL BLAZERS CROSS COUNTRY

Find Automobile Road From Atlantic to Pacific Through Southern States

LOS ANGELES, Jan 7.—G. W. Finney, E. I. Ferguson, Fred D. Clark and Charles B. Thatcher, members of the Ohio Good Road party, sent from New York under the auspices of the American Auto Association to blaze a trail for automobile touring from New York through the Southern States to California, arrived in this city late this afternoon. The party arrived in Redlands last night and spent the night at Casa Loma. Today, after a trip through Riverside, they continued to Los Angeles, planning to remain several days here and then complete their trip.

The men left New York in their Ohio machine November 2[illegible] and made the trip leisurely. They went from New York direct to Atlanta, thence to Birmingham, then through Tennessee, Arkansas and Texas, thence to Deming, N. M., Tucson and Phoenix, Ariz., the run to Redlands being direct from the Arizona capital.

BRITISH PEER ON HOOK OF MRS. STIRLING

PRINCE TROUBETSKOY COMING TO AMERICA

Will Teach Us Art and Vegetarianism; Holds Views of Tolstoi

(By CHESTER D. OVERTON.)

LONDON, Jan 8.—The Marquis de Cholmondeley and his family are in a terrible state of mind; their second son, Lord Cholmondeley, aged 23, seems determined to marry Mrs John Alexander Stirling, formerly Miss Clara Taylor of Washington, a chorus girl. Friends of the family even fear that a marriage has already occurred.

Every kind of pressure has been brought to bear upon Lord George as well as on Mrs Stirling, whose divorce in March 1909 made such a stir. It will be remembered that she brought suit against her husband, Captain Stirling, an ex-officer of the Scots Guards, on the ground of intimacy with the beautiful divorcee Mrs Atherton. Captain Stirling brought a counter petition against his wife, naming Lord Northland, the heir of the Earl of Ranfurly, with the result that Mrs Stirling lost her case while Captain Stirling was granted a divorce.

Soon afterward Mrs Stirling returned to the stage and appeared at the Gaiety in the chorus.

FAVORITE SON

Lord George is the favorite son of Marquis Cholmondeley, who is one of the hereditary lord great chamberlains of England. His heir, the Earl of Rocksavage, played polo in America last year.

The will of the late Sir Clifton Robinson, the tram car king, who by a strange fate died in a street car in New York, is expected to be made public at any moment. His friends declare that he left his entire fortune to his widow and nothing whatever to his young son Clifton, who has been going the pace alarmingly.

Lady Robinson is not young Clifton's mother. The boy is merely an adopted son, who was worshipped by his father. This fact of adoption was not generally known and the news has caused a surprise. Sir Clifton paid the boy's debts over and over again, but now the London tradesmen who gave Clifton unlimited credit are clamoring for payment. One of the most trivial bills is for $7[illegible]0 to a hairdresser, but his other debts are on a huge scale.

NOT DISTINGUISHED

The youth has nothing to distinguish himself except a more than usual series of entanglements with chorus girls. His only claim to fame was made about a year ago, when he was speeding through Kent; his motor car killed two hop pickers. He was charged with manslaughter, but managed to escape the trial. He spent a few hectic days in New York, where he became known as a fly-by-night.

Mrs Oscar Lewisohn (Edna May) is just now busily rehearsing her old part in "The Belle of New York," which she will play for a week at the Savoy Theater for the Prince Francis of Teck charity fund, which has been established as a memorial to Queen Mary's late brother.

Mrs John W. Mackay, whose various bereavements have kept her away from London for a long time, has just made her plans for the future, and the American colony is glad to hear that this lavish hostess will hold sway in her wonderful house in Carlton House Terrace next May, to take part in the coronation season.

LIVING IN PARIS

At present Mrs Mackay is living in Paris and later will go to Cannes on the Riviera, where she will be joined by her daughter, the Princess Colonna di Stigliano. She will afterward visit Tunis and Algiers. Mrs Mackay will go to America in April purely on business matters.

Lady Cheylesmore, who was Miss French, will figure prominently in society next season. She has just purchased a beautiful country house known as Coppers Hill, near Windsor. It was built by a financier who called himself Baron Grant. Lady Cheylesmore is now stopping at her villa on the Riviera and later expects a visit from her sister, Mrs [illegible] Vanderbilt.

Shipping Affected by Many Changes

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan 7.—Important changes which will seriously affect shipping in the Alaskan trade are being made by the London underwriters, according to advices received today by local agents. A warranty is being added [illegible] in insurance, providing that all vessels shall not proceed to any port in Siberia, Bering Sea or Alaska.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Men—Free

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr A. F. Robinson, 40[illegible] Luck building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. GOOD DEED REWARDED

Mrs. H. N. Cunning Adopts a Boy and Thereby Wins a Home.

MR. AND MRS. H N. CUNNING.

There is an old saying that one good deed deserves another and it certainly came true with Mrs. H. N. Cunning, of 7–5 42rd street, Oakland.

While visiting the California Foundling Society's Home with a neighbor last July she was particularly attracted to a young boy whom Mr Dennison had just brought from Nevada.

After a few minutes' talk with the manly little fellow her mother instinct went out to him and a mutual attachment sprung up between them on the spot.

To think was to act and when Mrs. Cunning left for home she took the boy with her to adopt him as her own. Not having the required furnishings for the new member of her family she called the next day at Oakland's big furniture store, accompanied by the boy, and purchased him several articles, including a bed.

When passing out of the store they were handed a slip of paper telling about a Bungalow and were told to put the coupon part in a box near the door. They went home and the incident passed from their memory owing to the affectionate attachment that had sprung up between new-mother and new-son.

On New Year's eve a large crowd of customers gathered at the furniture store to see who would receive the valuable home which they were to give away at 9 o'clock. When the number was drawn no one answered and the number was advertised in the papers. Four days passed and it looked as though the holder of the duplicate number would never come to claim their valuable present.

Mrs. Cunning had entirely forgotten the two coupons she laid away until a neighbor, Mrs Stiles, asked her if she had looked at her numbers. After diligent search they were brought forth and one of them was 90 502, the number that entitled the bearer to the 5-room Bungalow.

In speaking of the matter, Mrs. Cunning said: "I couldn't believe my eyes, and was doubtful of it being true until I called at the store and found the deed already for me and my husband to sign."

She says it is an act of Providence that gives her the home—a home for her act of motherly love, in return for the home she gave a homeless orphan boy—for this deed she has received a deed to a $1000 Bungalow in Alton Park, which proves that one good deed deserves another.

ATLANTIC FLEET FAILS IN ATTACK

The Defending Fleet Locates the Ships as They Sneak On Coast.

BOSTON, Jan. 7 — The naval demonstration against the Atlantic coast by the returning naval Atlantic squadron under command of Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder has been defeated by the defending fleet commanded by Rear Admiral S. A. Stanton, in the opinion of naval authorities, who learned today that the "enemy" had been discovered and located off the coast.

Wireless telegraphy was eliminated during the game and it was necessary to locate the "enemy" under the old conditions.

It is understood that the attacking fleet continued on its way to the West Indies after being discovered.

Narrowly Avert Run On Fairbanks Bank

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 7.—The First National and the American banks were prepared yesterday for a run as a result of the suspension of the Washington-Alaska bank, but the course of business ran smoothly, a display of the gold resources on hand reassuring depositors.

Depositors of the closed bank at a mass meeting passed a resolution asking the federal court to appoint E. H. Mack, formerly clerk of that court, as co-receiver with E. W. Hawkins, formerly acting manager of the bank.

The United States court today ordered the receiver to refund Tuesday's deposits, $27,006.

THE FIGURE

How Too Much Fat May Be Safely Reduced at Home.

"Oh that this too too solid flesh would melt!" cry the ladies nowadays as they try to squirm into a princess frock. How much would the too generous proportioned dame not give up for four inches less in the waistline as she compares herself with the more fortunate one hundred and twenty five pound sister. Various devices are suggested to arrest the flesh producing tendency and keep the figure trim, including exercising, walking and dieting as well as numerous patented remedies but there are objections to all of these. Exercising is hard work and takes up precious time, dieting is distasteful and a real punishment and some of the patent remedies are dangerous to health.

The very best thing for the over-fat, whether male or female, is a simple home recipe of [illegible] of Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 3½ oz. Peppermint Water, which can be obtained of any druggist at small cost. This should be taken a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, and results will be both speedy and certain. This is a harmless mixture that cannot bring on any stomach troubles nor cause the drawn up wrinkled appearance of those who starve or take patent reducers to get thin. On the contrary, although it often takes the fat off at the rate of a pound a day, it is really very beneficial to the system, cleansing the blood and causing the complexion to become fair and beautiful. The cost of the three ingredients is a mere trifle, and one may, if they prefer, get them separately and mix them together at home.

This meeting promises to be one of much interest as the new officers are planning many new features for the coming year. Christopher Ruess, probation officer for the city of Oakland, is to speak on his work among the boys and as he has had experience with this phase of city life his talk should be exceedingly interesting. The Appomattox Glee Club will render several selections, Mrs. Almeda Palm will contribute piano solos and Alverette H. Niber, a leader in elocution and oratory, will render two numbers, "The Price of a Man" and "The Farmer and the Wheel." Death Promised Her Once Every Week

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—To have your husband intoxicated the greater part of the time, to be threatened regularly once a week with death, and to have yourself choked on an average of two or three times a month, cannot but add spice and variety to marital existence, and, according to Mrs. Nonev Cordes, who brought suit for divorce this morning against Richard Cordes, this was the regular routine of her life.

Mrs. Cordes was married to Richard Cordes January 7, 1907, and in her complaint she sets forth that her spouse was "intoxicated the greater part of the time." Aside from threatening her life and choking her, she declares he amused himself by smashing her personal effects.

LIE SAVES ALFONSO FROM WIFELY LECTURE

King George of Greece Takes It On Himself to Straighten Out Tangle.

GABY DESLYS ROUSES JEALOUSY OF QUEEN

Story Circulated That Monarch Introduced Her to Manuel.

MADRID, Jan. 7.—A charming story is current here that proves that the gentle art of lying like a gentleman, did not die with King Edward of England.

It has been known for some time that there have been some very unpleasant hours at the royal palaces. The queen and the king have been decidedly "at outs." So much so, indeed, that more than once court circles have whispered that her majesty intended "going home to her mother," not so much for the purpose of paying her English parents a visit, as to show her displeasures with her Spanish spouse.

This friction dates back to the publication of a report that it was King Alfonso who introduced the then King Manuel to the fascinating French actress whose fascination over the fallen monarch seems still to be of the liveliest order.

PRINTED AT MADRID.

The story was guardedly printed here, but the English papers which reach the palace, published it in extenso and when the queen read it there was a scene. Her majesty demanded an explanation and although the king denied the incident, the royal relations became strained.

In his extremity and distress, for Alfonso is really devotedly attached to the queen, the king appealed to that prince of good fellows, the King of Greece. The latter monarch, who, although of Lutheran leanings and 6– years old, is a "gallant man" in the French sense of the term. His visits to Paris are always joyous events and his acquaintance with the prettiest of the pretty acresses is of the widest.

PROMISES TO HELP.

King George at once promised to straighten out the tangle and in a day or two there appeared a despatch from Paris that stated that Gaby Deslys had been exhibiting to her friends a letter from His Hellenic majesty which ran in part:

"Why have you been so indiscreet as to add to the misfortunes of the royal house of Portugal by boasting of your capture of King Manuel. Had I known that any act of mine would lead to the false step on your part, I certainly should not have done you the great and most undeserved honor of aallowing you to kiss his majesty's hand. That I should have in a moment of indiscretion as great as yours, have introduced his majesty is a matter that I most sincerely regret."

Needless to say, means were adopted by which Queen Ena saw the letter and now the relations of the Spanish royal family are again of the most affectionate character.

URGES ARIZONA TO ADOPT NEW LAWS

U. S. Senator Bourne Advises People to Ignore President's Opinion.

GLOBE, Az., Jan. 7. — United States Senator Jonathan Bourne of Oregon, in a letter addressed to President Hunt of the Constitutional convention urges the people of the Territory to adopt the constitution promulgated at Phoenix and says they would be unfit for statehood if they failed to do so.

Senator Bourne's letter, in part, says:

"At the outset, let me say that the question of whether the President will or will not approve the Arizona constitution should be wholly immaterial. The people of Arizona had better lose statehood than yield the control of their own State government. What mockery it is to start the constitution with a preamble declaring, 'we the people of Arizona, grateful to Almighty God for our liberties' then to harbor for an instant the thought of surrendering or limiting that God given liberty at the instance of any man, who happens to occupy temporarily the office of President.

PROTESTS DICTATION.

"Dictation from one man in Washington should be as distasteful to the people of Arizona as dictation from London was to the American Colonists. If the people are so craven in sprit, so doubtful of their own intelligence, of their own ability to govern themselves, as to consider the elimination of the popular government features of the new constitution, then shall be doubtful of their fitness for statehood."

Continuing, Senator Bourne says he has no idea of what action President Taft will take regarding the constitution, but believes that "no president will set up his judgment against the judgment of the entire people of a commonwealth, especially when the people have decided that they wish to retain control of legislation."

Hospital Service in New Uniforms

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—The local emergency hospital service was equipped this morning with brand-new uniforms of a regulation pattern which will be worn by stewards and drivers throughout the city. Since the fire there has been no uniform for the hospital employes but recently the board of health decided to re-establish the old rule of having the employes especially designated by a regulation outfit.

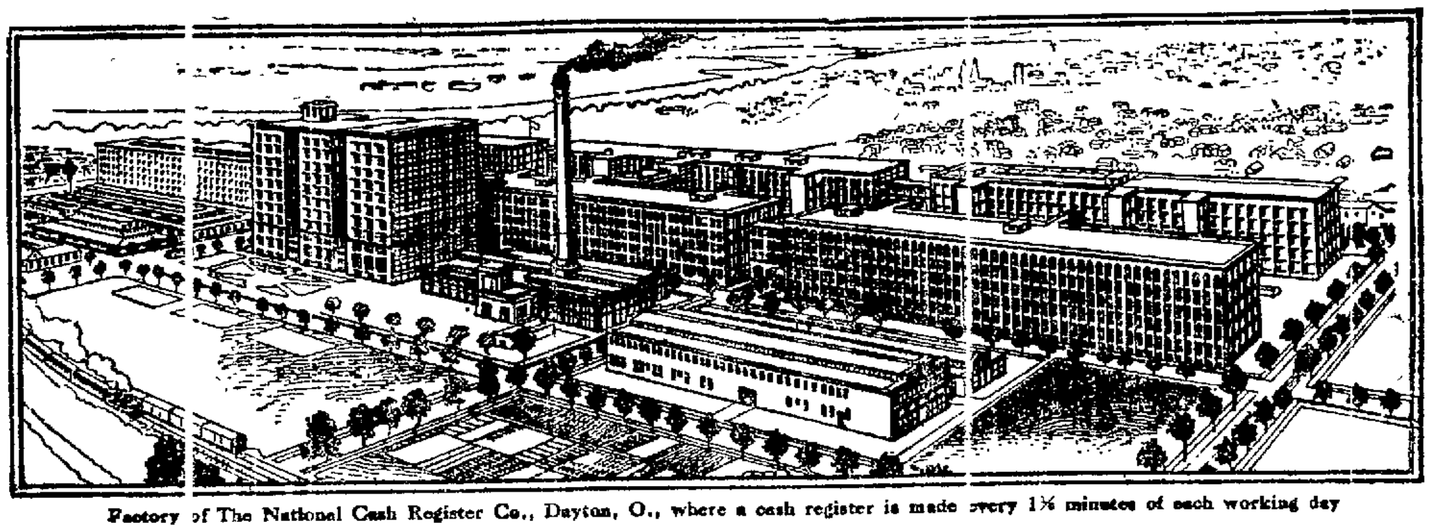
Today two doctors, two nurses, two stewards and Chief Steward Bucher, with an ambulance, were sent to the aviation field for duty during the entire ten days of the meet.

MASKED MEN KILL MAN AND WOUND WIFE

RENO, Nev., Jan. 7.—Three masked men entered the saloon of Gene Quillet last night at Imlay, the division point of the Oregon Short Line, 35 miles southwest of Winnemucca, and, failing to get money on demand, shot the proprietor dead and probably fatally wounded his wife with a bullet in the back.

Storekeepers' Convention On At Dayton.

Representatives of The National Cash Register Company Attend Annual Gathering of Salesmen at the Factory



Factory of The National Cash Register Co., Dayton, O., where a cash register is made every 1⅙ minutes of each working day

Representatives of the National Cash Register Company, to the number of 180, from points all over the United States and Canada are meeting this week at the Dayton factory. There they are studying the latest and best store systems and methods of handling transactions between customers and clerks.

A little later other groups of salesmen, including our local representative, will attend similar conventions at Dayton. For this is the annual convention season when we bring together our salesmen, so that each may get the benefit of the ideas and experience of all.

The National Cash Register Company's representatives are more than salesmen; they are experts on Store System.

In 1910, by installing improved methods of handling sales, they increased the profits of 129,154 retail storekeepers. Over $50,000,000 a day are handled by National Cash Registers.

In their annual conventions at Dayton our salesmen interchange ideas and study the newest, most improved business methods. They suggest improvements in registers to meet storekeepers' needs; for all of the important practical improvements are made in direct response to the suggestions or demands of storekeepers.

Our representatives also attend "post graduate courses" at the company's School for Salesmen. Here they are taught by the leading store system experts of America the best ways of handling cash and credit sales and all other transactions that take place in a store.

L. A. HEARIN.

The school idea is carried throughout the entire factory with its 5763 employes. Each one is taught the best way of doing his work. As a result the N. C. R. has built up a force of skilled workers which could not be duplicated anywhere.

That is why this company can guarantee to furnish the best cash register for the storekeeper's needs at the lowest price. That is why the output of the factory has been doubled in the last four years with only 9 per cent more employes. The storekeeper gets the benefit of these economies.

The monthly output of the factory is over 10,000 registers, ranging in price from $5 to $765—a cash register for every kind of retail store, large or small.

Monthly sales average $1,800,000. October sales broke all records, totaling $2,300,000, the orders coming from 19 countries all over the civilized world.

129,154 storekeepers bought National Cash Registers in 1910, an increase in sales of 20 per cent. over 1909. And the demand is increasing so fast that new machinery is now being installed in the factory to prepare for an output of 155,000 registers in 1911.

Mr. L. A. Hearin, our local representative, has had the benefit of the annual conventions and the N. C. R. School in the past. He will go to the factory shortly for our 1911 convention. His increased knowledge of up-to-date business systems and methods of handling transactions between clerks and customers, gained through contact with other system experts, will be freely tendered to any storekeeper. Send for him and let him suggest ways to increase your profits for 1911.

PORTUGAL ALLOWS MANUEL FUNDS

British Government Intercedes Successfully in Behalf of Ruler.

LISBON, Jan 7. — The British government has intervened successfully with Portugal on behalf of the depleted purse of the deposed King Manuel.

TO GROW HAIR ON A BALD HEAD

BY A SPECIALIST.

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless, the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out, and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 6 ounces; Lavona de Composee, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish it perfumed, add half to one teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Do not apply to the face or where hair is not desired.

NEWS OF SCHOOLS = BOYS AND GIRLS = AMATEUR ATHLETICS

12,000 ENTERED IN THE SCHOOLS OF THIS CITY

Institutions Crowded and Plans for Term Just Commenced Are Laid.

Over 12,000 students have registered in the public schools of this city, according to the statement made by Superintendent of Schools McClymonds last evening. In the Oakland high school the enrollment reached 1040, which is in excess of that of last year. The three high schools of this city are crowded.

In all the schools of Oakland studies commenced last Tuesday after a vacation of three weeks, and the boys and girls who were refreshed during that time began their work in the different schools.

The majority of the boys and girls who graduated from the grammar schools have enrolled in the high schools.

One of the important features of the school activities will be the athletics in the high school as well as in the grammar schools, which will be under the direction of the board of education.

The athletic carnival, which will be held in the spring, will be one of the attractive events of the school year. Many of the leading athletes of the schools of the bay cities will compete for honors at the meet.

DEWEY SCHOOL AT FRUITVALE HAS FAST TEAM

New Players Prove of Value and Nine Will Seek Championship.

The Dewey grammar school of Fruitvale has tried out its fast baseball squad and has selected ten players for the team for the coming season. The boys are practicing every day and make a promising showing. The school has a better team than last season. They are trained faithfully and some of the players such as Dake, Dean, Stratters, Bountan and Whittier are doing fine work. Harry Dean has been chosen manager of the new team, William Bountan captain and Ralph Stratter treasurer.

Manager Dean has looked around and by his careful selection has secured three fast players. Ralph Stratter, who is from Fruitvale school No. 1, is to take charge of the twirling and it is expected he will prove a valuable player to the team. K. Whittier comes from Fruitvale No. 1. Dake is a slugger and a fast player for third base. Whittier will occupy first base.

CLAREMONT WINS FROM BUSHRODS

Football Teams Play a Hard-Fought Game and Struggle for Points.

The Claremont football team defeated the Bushrod All-Stars yesterday afternoon by the score of 5 to 0 in one of the hardest-fought football games of the season. The forward pass was used often with much success by both teams. During the first half the ball traveled up and down the field, with both teams unable to score. Several times during the game different players were laid out, but did not have to retire. The first half ended with no score for either team, but with Bushrod on Claremont's 10 yard line. The second half opened with the ball in Claremont's possession. Claremont resorted to a steady bucking game and came dangerously near Bushrod's goal.

Bushrod secured the ball on a fumble and gained on Claremont. At this juncture Vic Phlager, who had been playing a star game for the Claremont eleven, secured the ball and by a brilliant run scored a touchdown.

At the end of the third quarter Bushrod was on Claremont's 15 yard line, and in the last quarter was right underneath the goal posts, with four yards to gain. Four attempts to score were unsuccessful, and, through a fumble, Claremont received the ball. A long kick from behind the goal posts brought the ball into the middle of the field, and saved Claremont from a score.

Of the players "Red" Haney of the Oakland High team played a fine game, making many good distance kicks. Blackwell and W. Reynolds played a good game. Phlager and Hartwell starred for Claremont, Phlager scoring the only touchdown, and Hartwell was good at falling on the ball.

The same teams will play again January 21.

BASKETBALL IN CITY PARKS DELIGHTS HUNDREDS OF GIRLS

Girls of Bushrod Park Playground who are engaged in a game of basketball. This is a mid-winter scene in Oakland, where sunshine rules the year around.

Since the introduction of basketball as a game for girls, it has been one of the most popular pastimes in the playgrounds of this city, where hundreds of girls have learned the points in the game. Under the direction of Miss Johanne Johnson, who is in charge of the girls' department of Bushrod park, and Miss Campbell of de Fremery park, they have become graceful athletes.

Several hundred girls enjoy the sport during the afternoon and representatives from all the schools of Oakland take part in the recreation, which is proving a physical benefit.

Numerous forms of amusement occupy the time of the children who attend these pleasure places daily. From the moment the doors of the playgrounds are open the boys and girls seek admission and take advantage of the outdoor gymnasium.

The gymnastic apparatus which was recently installed in de Fremery park has been used steadily and the children are showing their appreciation to the playground commission by endeavoring to obey the laws of the grounds, which have been prepared by the directors.

Borax King Gives Donkey to Boy Who Admired It

F. M. Smith's gift of a donkey to Kimmy Calley, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil J. Calley of 466 East Seventeenth street, has caused excitement among his sisters and brothers as well as his playmates in East Oakland, where Kimmy is a general favorite.

Since the donkey was received the youngsters of the neighborhood have been riding over the hills and are taking advantage of the contribution made by the magnate.

Kimmy is proud of the animal and spends the greater part of the day with it. He admired the beast when it was being fed by the superintendent of Arbor Villa and wrote a letter to the borax king. In reply Smith sent the animal.

In expressing a desire for the donkey Kimmy said that he wished it to drive the food wagon of the Boy Scouts of East Oakland, of which he was the captain. The donkey is fulfilling its mission.

Many Games Planned On Local Playgrounds

The Alta Club basketball team defeated the Bushrods by the score of 20 to 18 yesterday on the Piedmont courts. A return game will be played next Saturday.

The lightweight basketball teams representing Bushrod and Lincoln Park, Alameda, will play a game of basketball next Saturday morning at Bushrod. Next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 the Phoenix football team of Alameda will play the Bushrod All-Stars. Both teams are fast and a good game should result. The Phoenix team defeated the fast Ashbys by the score of 23 to 0, and, as the Bushrod team also won from the Ashbys by a good score, the two teams appear to be on a par.

A number of players from the Alameda High team play with the Phoenix team. Elbert Vail will referee.

ITALY'S KING TO WORK ON APRIL EXHIBITION

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The exhibition at Turin which will be opened by the King of Italy on April 29 next, will be situated on the outskirts of the city on both sides of the River Po at a point where it flows through a narrow valley. As the river here is very shallow it has been deepened by dredging and the level of the water raised by means of dams, so that a service of motor boats may be established and nautical displays take place. There being only one permanent bridge at this point, others are being constructed, of which the largest will have two surfaces, one for moving platforms and one for pedestrians. The exhibition will be one of the largest yet held, its area being about 1,000,000 square metres, of which 280,000 square metres will be covered.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR WINTER WEAR

Bradstreet's Reports On Conditions of Trade Throughout the Country.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Bradstreet's says:

Country side cold weather, especially severe west and south, was stimulated demand for heavy winter wearing apparel and combined with unusual clearance sales, has made for a better than average final distribution of seasonable goods.

In the wholesale lines holiday inventories have been completed and salesmen are again on the road. Reports from jobbers are of a quite optimistic feeling as to spring trade, and good sales of goods adapted to retail clearance sales are reported.

METALS DULL.

Iron and steel are dull and pig iron stocks are accumulating. Cold weather has helped coal consumption and sales of bituminous coal in the west and of anthracite in the east are active. No shortage of supply is reported.

Leather trades are quiet and reports of widespread stoppage of work in tanneries give firmness to stock of finished materials. Cotton goods are quiet in primary markets, and year end reviews of the 1910 results are disappointing as a whole.

Theer aer rather more optimistic reports as to lumber trade conditions on the north Pacific coast and a feeling that the depression in that line in 1910 is giving way to a more favorable situation.

FAILURES INCREASE.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending January 5 were 281 against 251 last week, 271 in the like week of 1910; 329 in 1909, 430 in 1908 and 282 in 1907.

Business failures in Canada for the week number 27, which compares with 38 last week and 33 in the like week of 1910.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending January 5 (Portland, Ore. advices not received) aggregate 2,566,914 bushels, against 2,175,929 last week and 3,153,140 this week last year.

Corn exports for the week are 2,294,379 bushels against 1,149,411 last week and 1,766,584 bushels in 1910.

CHANGE IN THE STYLE OF ARREST

Misdemeanor Offenders Will Not Ride in the Chicago Police Patrol Wagon.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7. — The municipal court judges of Chicago have demanded a change in the form of arrest for a misdemeanor. At a special meeting yesterday they signed an order that in the future all arrests for minor violations of a city ordinance shall be made by summons instead of by warrant.

When this police reform is instituted, as it will be as soon as the necessary blanks and books are printed, the humiliation of being arrested for some trivial offense will be removed. It means that a majority of persons who will be arrested in the city this year will escape the embarrassment of a patrol ride.

Automobile speeders who are caught, instead of being taken to the station and forced to put up an appearance bond, will be handed a summons to appear in court the next day and allowed to go their way.

"More than 70,000 persons were arrested in Chicago last year for misdemeanors," asserted Chief Justice Harry Olson. "If our ruling had been in effect in 1910, fully 50,000 of these would have escaped being taken to the police station when they were arrested."

40 TO 1 SHOT GATHERS IN FINAL SCRAMBLE AT TRACK

TRIBUNE'S DOUBLE PAGE OF SPECTACULAR FINISHES MARK RACE CARD

BASEBALL BEGINS AT COLLEGE

St. Mary's to Open Season This Afternoon

St. Mary's college Phoenix baseball nine will start off the 1911 season this afternoon on the Oakland college campus against Cliff Blankenship's all-star aggregation. Blankenship's line-up will include "Lefty" Cordtz, the lad who will be given a tryout by Vernon this year, and Harold Swanton and William Orr in the infield positions. Jim Driscoll will most probably do the pitching and Blankenship will be on the receiving end.

Opposed to Blankenship's team, St. Mary's will present practically a veteran line-up. The team has been out for daily practice since the beginning of the semester last week, and is fast getting into shape. St. Mary's will have seven veterans of last year's champion team in the field again, and, with eight likely looking candidates for the positions yet unfilled, every indication points to a banner year for the Phoenix. Wilcox and Bonnetti are the only players St. Mary's has lost from last year's team.

SCHEDULE ARRANGED.

The schedule of the team will include games with the University of Southern California, University of California, Stanford university, Reno, and Santa Clara college. The first intercollegiate game will be played against Stanford on Saturday, February 4, at Oakland. St. Mary's is scheduled to line up against Stanford in a series of six games, the schedule for which is as follows:

Saturday, February 4, at Oakland.
Wednesday, February 15, at Stanford.
Wednesday, February 22, at Oakland.
Wednesday, March 1, at Oakland.
Saturday, March 11, at Oakland.
Wednesday, April 5, at Stanford.

TRACK PRACTICE.

Track practice will start at St. Mary's tomorrow and Captain Martin has a squad of 30 candidates to try out for the various positions. Martin is endeavoring to arrange a series of dual track meets with the University of California and Stanford freshman teams, and the local and up-country schools. Included in these will be meets with Modesto high school, San Luis Obispo high and San Jose high.

Pride of Lismore Winning the Fourth Race Yesterday in a Fast Finish After Having Led From the Start.

PRIDE OF LISMORE CAPTURES FEATURE IN A CLOSE FINISH

'Daggie' Smith's Crack Oakland Won the Colt Event Yesterday in Hollow Fashion

Despite the featureless card and counter attractions, more than the usual big half-holiday crowd was on hand at the Oakland race track when the bugle called the horses to the barrier in the opening race yesterday afternoon. The hundreds of racing enthusiasts, who filled the spacious grandstand, surrounding lawns and other points of vantage at the popular and beautiful course, were amply rewarded for their pilgrimage to the Oakland race track, for the program developed sport of the most thrilling variety and furnished many surprises for the "occasional" visitor as well as for the "case hardened" regular.

The main item of the card was the fourth race, at five and one-half furlongs, which brought together as speedy a bunch of sprinters as could be gathered together, and resulted in one of the biggest upsets of the afternoon. The talent sent checks in on Arionette and Fernando, apparently overlooking Pride of Lismore, which went to the post a receding third choice at 5 to 1. Archibald got the Galveston gelding away sailing clear and running right back to his smart race of Monday, with twenty-one pounds added weight, took the track as soon as they were released from the starter's tap and made every post a winning one.

In the final furlongs, however, the rider had to shake him up to stall off the determined bid of Daddy Gip, which he held safe by a length as they dashed under the wire. Fernando, which also closed with a terrific stretch run, nosed out the fast-tiring Arionette for the small end of the purse. The latter had early speed, chasing the pacemaker all the way to the paddock, and then doubled up like a jack-knife. C. P. Lamar's mare ran a disappointing race, as she appeared to have no excuses, other than she has had enough racing for a time.

OAKLAND SCORES AGAIN.

Next in public interest to the fourth race was the second, which was a three-furlong scramble for babies. A smart field faced the starter in this event, and Bianchi & McConnell's crack colt, Oakland, ran right back to race of Monday, and disposed of the field of youngsters which paraded in the second race, at will. Shouldering 117 pounds, which was 5 pounds more than on the day he scored his sensational victory, and 9 pounds more than any of the other starters, he shot to front as soon as the barrier was released and simply romped home. Vanir, from the string of G. W. Berry, ran a smashing good race, closing very fast and outgaming Lem Dale, the second choice, by a head.

Jockey J. McIntyre signalized his first appearance here this season by riding Bambro, his first mount, to victory in the curtain raiser. C. P. Lamar's gelding was class the best of his field, however, and it required little horsemanship to guide him safely under the wire. McIntyre sent him to the front early and just breezed home by two lengths, quoted at 5 to 1, which was a generous price against his chances. Darelngton closed with a terrific rush, disposing of Hannah Louise by half a length for the place.

BILLY MYER SURPRISES.

Billy Myer ran one of his good races and at the juicy odds of 10 to 1 easily took the measure of the big field of "has beens" which sported silk in the second sprint. Kirschbaum urged the son of Fresno to the front gradually, acquiring the lead in the stretch, and from there on won with consummate ease. In a fierce drive Father Stafford took place money from Platoon by a scant head.

"Star Pilot" J. McIntyre brought home his third mount of the card and his second odds-on choice when he landed Michael Angelo safely under the wire in the fifth race. C. P. Lamar's horse was backed for thousands to win this affair, and assuming command at the start tip-toed his field all the way, grabbing the purse by three-fourths of a length at the end. Royal River outgamed Sir Angus for the place.

The big jolt of the day came in the final race, when Melton Street, at the juicy odds of 40 to 1, came tearing through the stretch like a Kansas cyclone and grabbed the decision by a nose. Maxdlce, the second choice, easily took the place by four lengths from Starry Night. Welakao, the heavily backed favorite, ran a dismal race.

Bambro and Michael Angelo, two of the favorites to make good for the talent, which raced in the colors of C. P. Lamar, were boosted and claimed after their respective races. The former was led away by A. L. Denny, while Michael Angelo was taken under the wing of Ed Whyte.

CRIPPLING THE INDUSTRY.

How seriously the enactment of the laws inimical to the racing sessions by the New York legislature has affected the thorough breeding interests of America is reflected by the records of the New York Jockey club's registration department. W. H. Rowe, who is in charge of the department of the jockey club, has given out a tabulation showing the registration of foals for six years, beginning with 1905 and ending with 1910, as follows:

Year.	Reg. Foals.	Year.	Reg. Foals.
1905	4413	1908	3706
1906	4202	1909	3102
1907	3888	1910	2364

The registration of the present year, compared with that of 1905, shows a decrease of 2040, over 46 per cent.

100,000-Point Game of Pool Won by Police

The game was won by Barrett by 164 points. It was probably the longest game in history.

CLIFF IRELAND OUT WITH HIS LINE-UP

Cliff Ireland, the early morning glory manager of the baseball world, is now ready to break into the limelight for his annual six weeks' session. The Independents will be composed of the following players this year: Dick Egan, Heinie Heilmuller, Doc Moskiman, Jimmy Byrnes, Charlie Swain, Nick Williams, Duffy Lewis, E. C. Golusky, Len Kennedy, "Bill" Perine, Lefty Stoltz and Mr. Ireland.

DUCKS ARE PUZZLING HUNTERS

Lack of Rain One of Scarcity Causes

Duck hunting during the past week has been somewhat of a puzzle to the regular hunters. The protracted period of dry weather has left but little fresh water throughout the state and the ducks are picking it out better than the hunters. Down in the Los Banos country there are limit bags to be had every day. On the Suisun marshes some of the ponds are well filled with visitors, while others are absolutely deserted.

The irrigation districts in the southern districts are attracting many birds, while the head waters of the San Joaquin, which have not hitherto been visited much by the ducks are now drawing them in large numbers.

SHOOTING STREAKY.

With the ducks looking for the best fresh water places the shooting has been streaky in most of the preserves. Clubs that have laid out fine ponds are finding that with the continued dry weather the ducks are finding places far from the ordinary line of flight, where they can rest on fresh water and feed on the food they like, and many of these oases in the desert of a duck's flight are located far from the places accessible to the hunters of the big cities.

Phil Bekeart has a place near Mowry's in Alameda county, and on Tuesday last he took Harry Golcher and Harvey McMurchie with him for a shoot over the fresh water ponds which have been laid out on the Bekeart place. Phil knew that he had the only sweet water hunting ponds in the vicinity, but up to last Tuesday he was the only one who knew it. Now McMurchie, Golcher and a lot of ducks are in on the secret. Out of the big gathering of the birds that alighted in Bekeart's ponds on Tuesday the three nimrods picked out three limits.

QUAIL HUNTING DULL.

Quail shooting is dull near the city. There are no places where the hunters can go on a day's shoot and the closing of the season in Marin county by the ordinance passed by the supervisors deprives the quail hunters of one of their most prolific fields.

In Fresno county the birds are plentiful. W. W. Terrill was down in the Fresno foothills for two weeks and had six shoots. On each occasion he was accompanied by George Shipp and they managed to get the limit five times. Terrill bagged 13 on his other attempt. Walter Wood, Fred Willett and Ray Sherwood had a one-day's shoot in the same vicinity and each hunter got the limit of birds.

Louis Rink has also been pointing his gun at quail in Fresno county and he bagged several limits. And Louis didn't shoot in the same place every day.

BASKETBALL ENTRIES WILL CLOSE TUESDAY

Entries for the annual championship basketball tournament of the Catholic Schools Athletic League will close next Tuesday with the Rev. Brother Timothy, secretary of the league. There will be, from present indications, sixteen teams registered, in two divisions—a regular class, which will include players weighing 110 pounds or less and which will correspond to the league series of last year, and a special class, which will include players weighing 120 pounds. There will be valuable trophies for the winning teams.

The regular division will attract teams from six local and four trans-bay schools. Among the San Francisco institutions that will be represented will be Sacred Heart Grammar, St. Ignatius' Grammar, St. Peter's winner of the local division of last year's tourney; St. James' Star of the Sea and St. Joseph's. The Oakland teams will include Sacred Heart, North Oakland, St. Anthony's, East Oakland; St. Joseph's Institute, West Oakland, and St. Joseph's Academy, Berkeley.

Live All Your Years a Perfect Man

The human body is most wonderfully and perfectly constructed. Each part built equal to its task. Unless overburdened or attacked by disease, no organ falters. Nature intended that every man should live all his years a perfect man. Few men do. Most men can. All men make mistakes. Some make mistakes in youth. Others make mistakes after they have grown to be men. Still others are merely unfortunate. Practically all diseases and disorders are the result of mistakes or misfortunes. The problem of living a perfect man is simple. Undo the injury that mistakes or misfortunes have wrought. Then avoid both—live as nature built you to live.

Undoing the Injury

I do not know how many thousands of men I have treated. I have been a specialist in men's diseases for ten years. During most of these years my practice has been the largest of its kind upon the Pacific Coast. During the several years just past it has been fully double that of any other specialist in the West treating men's diseases.

I have met with but few incurable cases. I have failed to cure still fewer cases. In recent years I have failed in none. This is because I attempted to cure only those cases that I feel confident I can cure, and as my experience has grown I have become able to determine curable and incurable cases with certainty. It is also because my skill in curing has grown and my methods of treatment have been perfected.

The following mention of ailments that come through mistakes and misfortunes is necessarily brief. I will gladly explain them further and tell of my original, scientific and certain methods of treating them to all who will call or write.

DR. PALMER, The Master Specialist.

I Am Always Willing to Wait for My Fee Until a Cure Is Effected

WEAKNESS

No matter in what form these functional derangements commonly called "weakness" may appear, the causative conditions are, in fully 95 per cent of the cases, very similar. I have given the closest possible study to this remarkably prevalent ailment and find that in practically every case there exists at some vital point in the pelvic system a state of chronic tenderness, inflammation or congestion. My first step is a thorough examination to ascertain the exact location and nature of the disorder, after which, by a system of carefully directed local treatment, I restore the affected part to its normal condition which promptly results in full and complete return to power. In perhaps less than 5 per cent of the cases do I find general impoverishments, lack of nervous energy or any other condition or complication requiring constitutional treatment. Therefore, I may safely assert that not more than one case in fifty can be permanently benefited by the use of tonics, stimulants, electrical or mechanical appliances and that fully forty-nine cases in fifty will be aggravated by such methods of treatment.

My cures are positive, complete, thorough and permanent because by my method the real and only cause of the functional weakness is totally removed. The knowledge gained by close study and observation in thousands of cases enables me to recognize the exact requirements and treat accordingly, and in years I have not failed in a single instance to accomplish the desired results.

VARICOCELE

I cure varicocele without pain and without detaining the patient from business. My treatment is original and has been developed through ten years of practical experience. It restores the lost tone and elasticity to the weakened and dilated blood vessels, which results in normal condition and re-establishes the natural processes of waste and repair throughout the vital system

My special practice also includes Hydrocele, Stricture, Contracted Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, Nervous Debility, Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Piles and all Reflex Ailments.

Advice and Consultation Free

Come and have a private talk with me concerning your ailment. Even if you are not prepared to undergo treatment at this time, I can always give helpful suggestions to men who are diseased or weak. If you cannot come to Oakland, write for particulars of my system of home treatment. Interesting literature and colored charts free if you will call.

SPORTS: EDITED BY EDDIE SMITH

EASTERNERS PREDICT THREE RING EXPERTS WILL LOSE

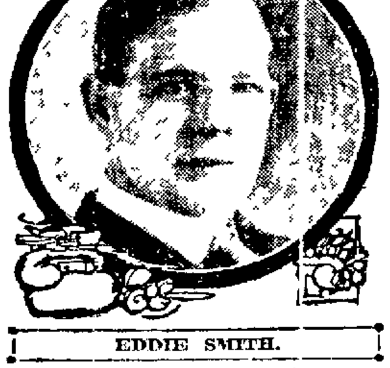
TERRIBLE FATES ARE PREDICTED FOR THE THREE CHAMPIONS

EASTERN CRITICS SAY STAR BOXERS WILL FALL IN 1911

Johnson, Wolgast and Attell Are Slated, but the Facts Do Not Bear It Out

By EDDIE SMITH

Throughout the Eastern cities the critics on boxing are making predictions for the coming year. They always do, and generally with the same result—that none of them come true. The predictions of the esteemed critics who earn a livelihood on the other side of the Rockies by writing boxing news are nine times out of ten like the fakers' fortune telling. If the one in ten comes their way they forget all the mistakes they have made in their guessing and point to the one as sure proof that they are always right. This year we find that the Mr. Wise Men are predicting the overthrowing of three kings of the Queensberry game. Abe Attell, monarch of all he surveys in the featherweight division, Adolph Wolgast, big chief of the lightweights, and Jack Johnson, king of the heavyweights, are the lads whose heads are to drop in the basket this year.



EDDIE SMITH.

The reasons for the Attell overthrow is that he has now been in the game going on eleven years and has been very active since first entering it. The fact that Abe must sooner or later take the count or be beaten decisively is not denied and there is a chance of this coming about.

If you was to ask your humble servant to pick the man who will do it, however, I would have to refer you to Sweeney of the [illegible] book fame. Abe is not the man he was a few years back, that's true, but he is as foxy as ever and if he thinks there is the slightest chance of his being stung he will not go near the bee hive.

Champions are always beaten by men whom they have ever confidence of beating, though, and Abe may fall for a hard nut after all. With twenty-seven years on this battleground full of ups and downs, however, it would seem to me that Abe has an excellent chance to hang on a little longer.

Ad Wolgast is slated for the has-been class on account of his broken arm and forced idleness during the time it has been mending. There is much logic in this also and there is always that bare possibility that the little German may have lost his cunning during the time he has been out of the game or that his arm will never mend to the extent of allowing him to take desperate chances with it.

Freddie Welsh is the only bona fide lightweight at present in the game whom I believe can beat Wolgast at this time just the same, and if he is not matched with Fred he will have a good chance to hold on. Owen Moran will be the first of the top notchers to get a chance at Wolgast and he may prove that he is the better man. Owen has not been working in a style that would impress me that he could beat the German. If he finds that he is as good as he was the day he beat Nelson, and while I may be mistaken, it will take more than conversation to convince me that I am wrong. At that, I believe that Ad's championship is in more danger than any of the other champs.

JOHNSON TOO GOOD

The reasons advanced for the Johnson defeat is that he is living too fast to be benefited by his supposed rest from the game and the statement issued by the colored champion to the effect that he is not in the best of health has added confidence to this prediction. Madam Good Time is certainly a gay siren and she seems to have the big colored man tightly grasped in her treacherous arms. In looking over the pugilistic horizon we fail to find one man whom we believe would be able to wrest the title from Jack if he was only 50 per cent the man he has been, however, so we are a bit dubious as to his being rushed off to the pugilistic grave of has-beens.

It is impossible for me to believe that Johnson could completely wreck that wonderful physical development the champion displayed while waltzing with Mr. Jeffries at Reno. Jack may, and no doubt has, broken down some of that wonderful constitution, but we fear that he has not done so sufficiently to allow for the wresting of his title by the present generation of big boobies in the heavyweight division.

ENGLAND ALL ATHLETICS.

Over in England we find that athletics have taken such a place in the hearts of the people of the tight little isle that they are to play a big part in the celebration of the coronation of King George next June. At the time of the coronation it is proposed that there shall be championships held in every branch of athletics between the athletes of England and her colonies. The games are to take place at none other than the palace of the King and the citizens are to have free access to the sports. Over in England they recognize the value of athletic endeavor better than in any other country on the face of the globe and the fact that an immense amount of the money to be spent on the celebration will go to this end is proof of the [illegible].

Lord Desborough has the arrangements in charge and is already planning the games. It is said that every line of amateur athletic event will have its place, from swimming to boxing and from physical culture to tests of a tug of strength by teams of the various colonies. This condition of affairs has no doubt been helped along through the fact that many of the members of parliament are old-time athletes. At the last election there were more members elected as members of that body who are enthusiasts on athletics. Good for the Britishers.

AWFUL CALAMITY

It is said that there are several people among the newly elected legislators of California who are at Sacramento framing laws that you and I must abide by, who are anxious that a seventh day law should be passed which would close all the [illegible] of amusement and put an end to all sports of all [illegible] on that day. It is really hard for me to believe that there are men in this world who have such notions and believe they are doing right. Just imagine California without baseball games, its theaters and various other places of amusement.

Gee, but this would be a dead place. But to get right down to cases, I wonder if the fellow who wants such laws passed ever thinks of the poor creature who has to work six out of the seven days and only has the one in which to enjoy his liberty. I well remember when I was a kid the boy who lived across the street always had to stay in doors on Sunday and many was the day that little fellow stood at the front window with his little face pressed against the glass and longed to be with us.

MADE UP FOR LOST TIME

After a time I had the opportunity of seeing the result and you can take it from me that boy made up for lost time when he was his own boss. If the same people who want the law passed will go back a few years to their boyhood days they will realize what it means for a youngster to have his liberty taken away from him. If people are going to raise children whom they can't feel safe in allowing out of doors on the seventh day they had better stick to the amusements, or it is a well known fact that idleness breeds discontent and discontent often leads to other things that are worse.

Sam Langford and Joe Jeannette are to have another meeting in Boston in the near future. Joe and Sam have met no less than six times and each time the battle has been reported to be one worth witnessing. This is rather an unusual thing, for, as a general rule, when men have met more than twice they become so well versed in the style of the other that the contests are slow and tiresome. Referee Charlie White, who officiated the last time these men met, said after the scrap that it was one of the best he had ever seen. And the funny part of all this is that whenever it is mentioned that the two negroes are to battle some fool cribs it's frame up.

TIP WANTS RAIN

Tip O'Neil was asked the other day for the latest news about the Boston Red Sox team which is to visit the coast this season. "Just say for me," said the genial Tip, "that the latest is that Mr. O'Neil is calling on every luck piece he owns and every day is rubbing his left shoulder with a horse shoe, pulling for it to rain like—well, I was just going to mention a place where they have no rain—but we want it to rain now so that when the team lands here we will be able to see the men in action frequently.

I think the games between the coasters and Red Sox this spring will be the best that has yet been played on the coast, for President John I. Taylor is one of the sort who are always pulling for victory whether it is practice or real games." Tip may be right and we hope he is.

COMMITTEE NAMES FOOTBALL LINE-UPS

The selection committee of the California Association Football League has selected the teams which will represent Ireland and America in the match to be played at the Presidio grounds on January 22d. The sides appear to be evenly matched and a good game should be the result of the meeting. The following are the men named:

Ireland—Goal, Crowley; backs, McGann and Monaghan; halfbacks, Grant, Fred Lynch and McIntyre; forwards, Maloney, Carragher, T. Lydon, Cooper and J. McIntyre. Reserves, Kyle, Hyland and Harrigan.

America—Goal, Stewart; backs, Dyke and King; halfbacks, McCaskle, Reynolds and Ayers; forwards, Thoburn, Phillips, Fung, Rutzler and Cross. Reserves, Schwadert, Slater and Hamilton.

Referee, Craig Wallace; linemen, Wardlaw and Farmer.

BAKERSFIELD WILL HAVE FIELD TRIALS

The annual field trials of the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club will be held this year on the grounds near Bakersfield, where so many successful competitions have been carried out by the same organization. The trials will start on January 2[illegible] and will last four and possibly five days.

The entries already received by Secretary T. Courtney Ford indicate that a high class of dogs will be seen in the various contests. The Derby entries include a number of dogs bred from the finest hunting stock in America, and Judge C. N. Post, who will again give the awards, is likely to have many close hearts to decide.

The Derby will be decided on the first two days of the meeting. On the third day the all aged stake will be run off and on the remaining days the champion stake and the members' stake will be contested.

Congressman Tawney of Minnesota will retire to private life on March 4 next, after eighteen years in public service.

Championships In Universities Evenly Divided

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The athletic honors for 1910 were pretty evenly distributed, though when one considers the actual number of championships won Yale is found to top the list in three sports and a division of honors in a fourth. Cornell and Columbia rank second, each having won a championship in three sports. Pennsylvania comes next, while Princeton follows with two. Harvard, Haverford and West Point bringing up the rear with one championship each.

FISH IN TIDE WATERS

There are myriads of fish in the tide waters of Piper Mill creek. They have been there for several weeks waiting for the freshet that will open up to them the way to the spawning beds, but nothing the anglers can offer in the way of a lure seems to have any attraction for the patient waiters.

The majority of the anglers are in favor of modifying the present law regarding fishing for steelhead in tide waters. During February and March the season is closed. During these months the fish go up the streams to the spawning beds and then return to the tide waters, but the anglers claim that the number of fish taken in the waters with hook and line would be only a drop in the bucket on account of the innumerable fish that make the journey up the streams. The primitive methods of the country people who would just as soon hook the fish out with a pitchfork or a tub when the run is dense enough account for the disappearance of more fish in one day than the anglers take in a season with the rod and line.

OLDFIELD REDUCES RECORD FOR A MILE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—Mortal man never went faster over a mile dirt track than did Barney Oldfield this afternoon on the Ascot Park track, when he clipped one-fifth of a second off the former Pacific Coast record for a mile and negotiated the distance in 51 1-5 seconds with his Blitzen Benz car.

The meet was held without the pale of the American Automobile Association.

Jimmy Ryall, the famous Vanderbilt driver, did sensational work in a nox car and at the same time became a full fledged outlaw. Ryal defeated Ben Kerscher in the five-mile event in 5:05 1-5. The free-for-all five-mile race was won by Kerscher in 5:59.

GREAT BRITAIN IS PERKING UP OVER BOXING VICTORIES

Owen Moran Jumped to the Front When He Trailed Nelson in Dust of Defeat

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

What with Owen Moran's victory over Battling Nelson, Bill Lang's defeat of Jack Burns and Dave Smith's triumph over Bill Papke, old England and her colonies will begin to perk themselves on the newly acquired prestige of their boxers.

W. W. NAUGHTON

It matters little that one of the men vanquished was [illegible] champion who had tried a come-back [illegible] too often, that another was never very much of a [illegible] and that the third of the British conquests was a victory on a foul.

The fact remains that three Americans were defeated by three of John Bull's men. It surely affords the [illegible] of King George [illegible] to boast that the country they belong to is once more asserting itself as a producer of worthy pugilists.

What effect will the ring happenings referred to have on the fighting [illegible] future? ENTRIES TO CLOSE IN A WEEK

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Entries for the coming basketball tournament of the Pacific Athletic Association will close next Sunday, January [illegible]. From present indications the tournament promises to be the most successful ever held on this coast. There will be five divisions, including 110, 120, 130, 145 pound classes and an unlimited [illegible]. Each team will be allowed to enter [illegible] players in the line up and the weight of the team will be determined by the weight of each player and not on an average, as was the case in the series which was conducted by the league last year.

This ruling will undoubtedly play havoc with the line-ups of a large number of teams that captured championships in last year's tournament and chances are that new champion aggregations will be developed in nearly every division. The association committee in charge of the running off of the tourney has decided to play the games on the court of the Tamalpais Athletic Club, in which a large number of improvements have been made in anticipation of the event.

SCHOOLS ENTERING

Among the local institutions that will be represented in the tournament will be St. Ignatius college and grammar school. St. Ignatius will have a team in every division of the tournament with the possible exception of the unlimited pound class. Sacred Heart college and grammar school will also have several teams entered and [illegible] school and [illegible] college will each have teams represented in two divisions of the play.

Games will also be played in outside cities of the state, including Oakland, Santa Cruz and Sacramento.

The finals and semi-finals of the tournament will, however, be played on the local court. Entry blanks for the competition may be secured from the league headquarters or from A. G. Spalding's.

MOTORDROME OPEN FOR TRYOUT TODAY

January 28 and 29 Are Dates Selected for Opening; Entry List Big.

The motorist will for the first time be able to spin around the new half-mile saucer speedway of the Oakland Motordrome today. The track is completed and the only work remaining uncompleted is the grand stand.

This work will be completed within ten days allowing ample time for preliminary trials for the army of drivers who will soon bend their way toward Oakland and northern California.

Invitations have been sent out to the automobile and motorcycle dealers of Oakland, San Francisco, San Jose and the neighboring towns.

January 28th and 29th are the final dates which have been set by the manager, Mr. Prince for his opening meet. It was originally his intention to open on the 21st. The aviation meet now in San Francisco precludes the advisability of holding the opening races on the last day named.

The National team of cars has already been shipped and the Case team will follow this week. The Pope-Hartford will be here also within the next week. Upon its arrival, Fleming will commence preparations toward getting into shape for tryouts

The Black Crow Company may send out their racing car and driver Stimson. The Black Crow has performed splendidly in the races in which it has been entered during the year just closed. In the Elgin trophy race it covered 198 miles in 186 minutes, the fastest time ever recorded for a stock car listing at $1500

The Stoddard-Dayton company are preparing three different models of their cars for racing. The only drawback toward their entry here will be inability to get them out in time. Work is being rushed with all possible speed and everything is being done to assure their appearance at the motordrome opening.

At the present time the following are the likely entries in the free-for-all race. the three Nationals, Nazarro's Fiat, De Palma in his Simplex, Hanshue in the Apperson Jack Rabbit, Soules in the Isotta, Fleming in the Pope Hartford, Dingley also in a Pope-Hartford Strang in his Case and Tetlaff in the Santa Monica Lozier.

In the small car race, there will be a Hupmobile Flanders, Model Q Maxwell, Ford and a Krit.

Negotiations are under way with Glen Curtiss for the appearance of his crew of aviators and machines as a special feature on Saturday the 28th, and Sunday the 29th Definite arrangements with Curtiss, Manager Prince states, he will make during the coming week.

The motorcycle riders will start to arrive this week Among the first to come are De Rossier, Balke, Seymour Graves, and Theo Samuelson. Each of these boys riding different machines as they do are bound to use every endeavor to outdo each other.

The amateur riders have been tuning up their machines for some time and a number of them will be seen now on the track.

Preparations have meen made to handle the big crowd of motor enthusiasts which are expected out today. The runway leading up to the track is finished and the track itself has been cleared for action. Due precaution is to be taken to prevent accident and every effort will be made to safeguard the speedway.

BERKELEY TO HAVE VAUDEVILLE HOUSE

Theater to Cost $30,000 to Be Erected Before Midsummer in College Town.

BERKELEY, Jan 7.—Plans are being drawn for a vaudeville theater building on the northeast corner of Haste street and Shattuck avenue. V. E. Morrill of Santa Rosa, father of Policeman Clarence Morrill of the local force, is to erect the theater and Kidder & McCullough are the contractors. The theater will cost $30,000 and will be placed on one of the big vaudeville circuits.

The building will be three stories in height. The seating capacity will be over 1000 and the stage will be one of the largest of any theater in the bay district.

C E King, architect for the building, has not decided on any particular type of structure as yet, but is considering a mission effect. He plans an elaborate playhouse with several boxes and perhaps a balcony and dress circle. It is expected that the theater will open for business around the first of August.

WHOOPING UP FOR EL CAMINO SIERRA

Magnificent Highway Trails in the Shadow of Mt. Whitney.

Stretched out peacefully in the shadow of California's majestic peak, Mount Whitney, and trailing along through the counties of Mono and Inyo, is a highway, known by the beautifully expressive name, El Camino Sierra, which far surpasses anything in California from point of scenic beauty and attractiveness to the motorist. Literally translated, El Camino Sierra means "highroad range of mountains," but, a more free translation of this combination of musical words means "mountain highway."

Late in the fall of 1910 El Camino Sierra became an ambitious project, for the residents of the counties of Inyo and Mono got together in a spirited manner, invited former Governor Gillett and Harbor Commissioner Dennison and some of their influential friends down there and with a whoop that resounded from Inyo to the Pacific, formally dedicated this magnificent highway Now these enthusiasts of the eastern Sierras are at it again, backed up by a decidedly "live" organization know nas the Inyo Good Road Club, and are hot on the trail of everybody that wields the slightest influence, the object being to succeed in getting a good share of the $18,000,000 bond issue diverted to El Camino Sierra for its improvement.

HAVE MANY BOOSTERS.

Their argument is a most sound one and this is evidenced by the fact that already they have secured as their allies many of the local motor enthusiasts who have been waging for many moons the battle cry for good roads. Among these is Chester N Weaver, general manager of the Studebaker Brothers Company of California, distributors of the Studebaker E-M-F and Flanders automobiles.

Weaver, who is quite an explorer when it comes to discovering new tours for motorists, recently paid Inyo and Mono counties a visit at the solicitation of W. W. Watterson, one of the directors of the Inyo County Bank and a prominent business man of that portion of the State Weaver was absent for several days and since his return has fairly bristled with enthusiasm over the project of El Camino Sierra. Discussing the issue a few days ago he said

A BIG UNDERTAKING.

"El Camino Sierra is an ambitious proposition and deserves the support that the residents of Inyo and Mono counties are asking for it. Roughly outlined, the road will extend from Bridgeport Mono county, to Independence Inyo county, thence to Bakersfield by way of Mojave It will connect with both the Sonora pass and the Tioga pass roads. Thus it will form a direct connection with three county seats, harmonizing with the general scheme of the $18,000,000 bond issue for a State highway system.

"It is absolutely impossible to describe the grandeur of the eastern Sierras where this road lies I have never seen such magnificent scenery in any portion of California It passes even the awe-inspiring scenery of the famous Lake Tahoe road between Strawberry and the Summit. El Camino Sierra trails along in the shadow of Mt Whitney and the average altitude of the mountain range along there is from 10,000 to 15 000 feet

"The completion of El Camino Sierra would bring annually 10,000 motorists over the road. It would gain worldwide prominence in a short time and would carry with it other benefits that would require a volume to recount"

Aviation Opens New Field for the Dealer

According to George P Moore, Pacific coast representative of Monogram oils, aeronautics as developed by the aeroplane is already opening up a particularly lucrative field to the motor accessory dealer. "This is noticeably so in the motor lubricant trade' said he "Proper oiling is essential to the best results from any motor engine and the hazards of flying make especially necessary those best results for aeroplane work We are on this account particularly well pleased with the fact that a large number of prominent aviators are using Monogram oil."

Motor Car Sales Are Better Than Ever

Speaking recently of the motor car trade situation, Harry A. Welhe of the Consolidated Motor Car Company, said. "In spite of all the prophesies of a quiet season the automobile business was never better than right now. As far as we are concerned this is well evidenced by the fact that we are marketing our Pope-Hartford cars right along in advance of shipments, and the factory to aid us in keeping somewhere near abreast of orders is sending more cars to San Francisco than ever before.

"Among our deliveries of 1911 cars are limousines to Mrs. Judge F. Henshaw, Dr T Bailey and Duncan McDuffie of Berkeley seven-passenger touring cars to Mrs Worth, A. Kinkelin, C. B Wells and police department of the city of Oakland, five-passenger fore-door cars to S L. Abbott, R. S. Moore, Baruch & Co., and W. E. Lovdal of Sacramento and a pony tonneau to Dr. S. H. White of Visalia."

EAGLES ARE TO DANCE.

ALAMEDA, Jan. 7.—The Eagles' drum corps will give a dance Tuesday night, January 10, in Encinal Hall, when Sender's orchestra will furnish the music. The Eagles intend to make this dance one of their best and will start the new year's social work in the right manner.

NEW BLACK CROW MODELS RECEIVED

Racy Roadster Attracts Attention Because of Odd Finish.

The new models of the Black Crow cars were received during the past week by the Oakland Carriage and Implement Company during the past week. The style and finish of this particular model makes it one of the most attractive little cars of its type which have been seen in this section. The body is long and rakish, the gasoline tank, which is attached to the rear of the seats, is oval shaped and is set in a tilting position The seats also are tilted. The combination of these two features, together with the general lines, makes the car very racy looking.

The body finish is orange color, striped with black, an odd and at the same time a pleasing color.

F. A. Howe, who for some time has been superintendent and master mechanic of the Black Crow factory, is now associated with Mr. Snyder of the Oakland Carriage and Implement Company. Howe is an old-time automobile expert and has acted in important capacities with the Shoemaker Automobile Company of Freeport, Ill., later with the Elkhart Motor Car Company of Elkhart, Ind., and still later with the Black Crow Company

SAN FRANCISCO AUTO SHOW.

With many of the feature exhibits of the New York automobile show promised as displays for the coming San Francisco show, scheduled for February 4 to 11, the San Francisco Motor Club, under whose auspices the show is to be given, promises that the event will mark a unique place in local motor car history To expedite their endeavors in getting these displays to San Francisco, as well as many additional Eastern exhibits the show committee realize that the special train provided by the Santa Fe will be of valuable assistance.

President H. M. Owens of the San Francisco Motor Club, in discussing prospects for the exposition, remarked: "We are going to pull off a show San Francisco will be proud of—with gasoline cars, electrics, steam cars, commercial vehicles and the biggest display of auto accessories ever seen at any show in San Francisco. The commercial end will also be bigger than at any previous local show. The club is planning to make Monday, February 6, Red Cross night, a memorable one in local automobile history. Thousands of tickets will be disposed of in advance for this occasion."

AUTO SPEEDERS MUST BEWARE

Marshal of Hayward Publishes a Notice That He Will Arrest Offenders.

HAYWARD, Jan. 7.—Under pressure of public opinion as expressed by members of the Hill and Valley Women's Club, town officials and many other citizens, Town Marshal Charles Schilling has, over his own signature, promised to arrest all automobile speeders who are found in Hayward violating the speed limit. His deputy, George Hooson, has begun a crusade against violators of the bicycle ordinance and the last few days has taken fifteen persons into custody for riding wheels on the sidewalks of the town. Marshal Schilling has caused the following warning to be printed and spread abroad for the edification and information of all who may be interested:

"From now on I give notice that all automobile drivers violating the speed limit and all bicycle and motorcyclists riding on the sidewalks of the town of Hayward will be arrested. No exception will be made. So take notice.

C. A. Westenberg Retorts That Alleged Victim Is Doing the "Baby Act."

SAYS HE ENTHUSED OVER SCHEME AT FIRST

Girvin Declares He Is Poor Man With Nine Children to Care For.

BERKELEY, Jan. 7.—That stockholders, including many trusting friends of Rev. C. A. Westenberg in the bay cities, lost $150,000 in the United States Gold Dredging Company is the charge made tonight by Ernest A. Girvin, former pastor of the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene in this city, in addition to the allegations made in the suit which he filed in the superior court in Oakland today to recover $28,500 from Westenberg. This is the amount of which he claims to have been fleeced, along with the other friends of Westenberg, in the dredging venture entered upon three years ago.

Who the other victims were is not revealed by Girvin or Westenberg, but the former admitted that some of them were local friends of the former clergyman and promoter, who were allured by the dazzling stories of sudden riches told by the silver-tongued pulpiter.

Westenberg, who was a Methodist pastor in Santa Barbara before he became a financier, calls Girvin a baby, who cries when he loses his marbles in a trade, and wants them back again. And he adds that Girvin wants more marbles returned to him than he ever lost.

HAD BEEN CLOSE FRIENDS.

Church and business circles on both sides of the bay were stirred today by the charges made by Girvin against his former religious co-worker and business partner. The pair had been close friends for many years.

Girvin was for sixteen years a stenographic reporter for the supreme court of this state, resigning seven years ago to become pastor of the Church of the Nazarene in Berkeley, which he practically founded. Although he never attended a theological school or was ever licensed as a regular minister, he was ordained as a "local preacher" by Dr. P. F. Breese about fourteen years ago.

He remained as pastor of the Berkeley church until two years ago, when he became a reporter in Judge Hunt's court in San Francisco, turning over the position to his son a year ago to report a lengthy divorce case in Judge Coffey's court, a task at which he is still engaged.

HAS NINE CHILDREN.

"I am a poor man with nine children to support," said Girvin at his home, 1803 Berkeley way, this evening. "I was compelled to return to my old work as a court reporter on account of the financial plight in which I was left by Westenberg. Three years ago I was induced by his alluring representations to trade twenty-seven acres of citrus fruit land in San Bernardino county for shares of the dredger company stock. Westenberg represented that there was a clear title to the mining claims; that they would prove rich; that the length of the claims was five miles and that there was a machine capable of taking out 4000 cubic yards of earth a day. I found that all the representations were false. The property of the company is now practically worthless, while the land which I traded for it is now worth more than $70,000.

"It may sound inconsistent, but I have no strong feelings against Westenberg. He is a victim of money-madness. I gave him every opportunity to restore to me just what he had taken away by misrepresentation. It was only this morning that I had the last word with him about settling, and he gave me a final refusal.

RELUCTANT TO SUE.

"I want it understood that I was reluctant to bring this action and did not do so until I had exhausted every effort to obtain just treatment. Westenberg was a sincere worker in the ministry, and I am sorry to see him act as he has in financial matters.

"Westenberg is the only one who has made anything out of this company. Myself and others of his friends have lost a total of $150,000. He bought stock in the company from his associates at a low figure and sold at a substantial profit. The company was started by other parties, to operate on the Sacramento river, just above Redding, three years ago, and Westenberg was enlisted as a money raiser."

Said Westenberg at his home, 2811 Benvenue street, tonight:

"Before Girvin went in this venture he knew every detail of it. He hounded me until I exchanged stock for his mortgaged property, which other stockholders would not take. He visited the dredging grounds and was enthusiastic. He was elected secretary, and was also a director. He still holds the latter position. About two years ago he wanted his land back, acting like a baby who is not satisfied after having traded his marbles. After a suit which he brought in San Bernardino county for a decision had been withdrawn by him, he made an effort to have the price of the mining stock doubled. He recovered his enthusiasm. Then, during a period of hard times, he got cold feet again. I heard of his having told one of the directors that if I did not give him his property back he would expose me.

HIS ATTITUDE.

"My attitude in the matter has been: 'Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute.'

"I loaned the company at one time $5,000 for improvement work. The dredger is in good condition and I think we may yet win out in the undertaking."

Westenberg would not say what the value of the property was, except that it was worth what its owners made it worth. Neither would he say that he had lost anything in the venture.

Westenberg is a leader in the Berkeley Young Men's Christian Association, and is known as a capital storyteller and mimic. His magnetism as a public speaker and conversationalist has made his personality attractive in church social and business life.

DRIFTED INTO BUSINESS.

After leaving the pastorate of the Methodist church in Santa Barbara, he gradually drifted into business. But before becoming known in financial circles, he was superintendent of the Boys' and Girls' Aid society of San Francisco. He is now managing director of the Chiapas Rubber Plantation company, and following his name and title of broker, in the city directory, appear the names of the United States Gold Dredging company and the Consolidated Gold Dredging company of Nevada, with which he is connected. His offices are in the First National Bank building, in this city. His present religious activity is the teaching of a Bible class in the College Avenue Methodist church.

J. C. Westenberg, a brother of the former pastor, is superintendent of the Whosoever Will mission in Oakland and San Francisco.

ONE RETIRED PASTOR ACCUSES ANOTHER OF DEFRAUDING HIM

Goes Duck Hunting; Not Among Missing

ALAMEDA, Jan. 7.— John D. Rayes, the young Mexican who mysteriously disappeared from his residence at 1013 Mound street, in this city, Wednesday, returned this morning and informed his mother that he had been visiting a friend. The reason he left early was to go duck hunting and he had to get an early start.

'COBWEB PALACE' PICTURES FOUND

Alameda Official Has Set of Photographs of Former Famous Resort.

ALAMEDA, Jan. 7.—City Treasurer Oswald Lubbock this morning received several photographs of rare historical interest, as they are the only ones left of the old North Beach resort in San Francisco, known as "The Cobweb Palace," all the others being destroyed in the fire of 1906.

The photographs are of especial interest to Treasurer Lubbock as his uncle, the late Abraham Warner, was proprietor of the Cobweb Palace, which he started in 1856. Lubbock said that many times he had gone out on the back porch, raised a trap in the floor and caught fish from the bay, for that was in the days before the land was filled in.

VALUED PHOTOGRAPHS.

The photographs in Lubbock's possession were made shortly after the place was opened by Warner and were presented to the treasurer by a pioneer photographer's son who carried on his father's business after his death.

In pioneer days the Cobweb Palace and North Beach were the principal pleasure resorts of San Francisco and it was there that Lubbock met so many men who were afterward destined to become political and commercial powers in the state.

The majority of the photographs show the exterior and interior of the Cobweb Palace, which obtained its name from the numerous festoons of cobwebs that hung from the ceiling and draped the walls. The place was originally an old Spanish dwelling, which had been unoccupied for several years.

DRAPED WITH COBWEBS.

Warner went in one day and noticed that the ceiling and walls were draped with cobwebs. He immediately conceived the notion of turning it into an unique resort, which he did. It was famous all over the state and but few old residents of the bay cities failed to visit North Beach and the Cobweb Palace on Sundays.

Another picture in the set that is of great interest is a street scene in North Beach in 1858, the high silk hats of the men and the queer looking dresses of the women contrasting strangely with the costumes of the present day.

Warner died some ten years ago and the place was torn down and several modern flats erected on its site. When Golden Gate Park was opened, the people stopped going to North Beach.

Waterfront Company To Abate Nuisance

ALAMEDA, Jan. 7. — The threat of Dr. Stidham, health officer of the city, to issue a bench warrant for the Oakland Waterfront Company because its agent, E. C. Sessions, failed to answer to a complaint charging the company with maintaining a nuisance, a stagnant pond, near Webster street, brought the company to terms this morning, for a member of the company communicated with Dr. Stidham, who informed him that the matter was now in the hands of the local Board of Health. The company promises to abate the nuisance.

"The waterfront company must fill in the pond or take the consequences," said Dr. Stidham, "for the spot is a menace to the public health and must be suppressed. The rights of the city will be maintained in this matter for we cannot afford to risk an epidemic of sickness through the failure of a corporation to obey the health laws."

IMPROVEMENT CLUB ON TRAIL OF AUTOISTS

Berkeley Organization Aids City Officers in Suppressing Speed Maniacs

DEMAND MADE FOR EFFECTIVE ORDINANCE

Effort Will Be Made to Have the Limit Placed at Six Miles.

BERKELEY, Jan. 7.—North Grove Improvement Club at its meeting last night expressed gratification over the manner in which its campaign against auto speeding is being taken up by the City Council, citizens and the press. While giving approval to the action of the City Council, fear was expressed that the ordinance might be too tame and lacking in proper provisions to secure rigid enforcement. It was pointed out that in the tendency of the judiciary to be too lenient with offenders, much of the incentive of police officers to make arrests was taken away.

The club is determined that an effective ordinance shall be adopted that will make it obligatory upon police officers and judges to do their duty without fear or favor, and to secure this end have availed themselves of the services of an attorney, William J. Crittenden of North Berkeley, who has been authorized to frame an ordinance that will meet the ideas of the club and to fight the matter to a finish, if necessary.

SIX MILES AN HOUR.

The club wants a speed limit of ten miles an hour to be reduced to six miles within the fire limits and when rounding corners and crossing car tracks, or when passing cars that are stopping to discharge passengers. It wants autos to sound an alarm and slacken speed whenever passing near vehicles or pedestrians, never to pass nearer to a street car than six feet, and to take all possible precautions against injury to others. It wants drivers of autos to be competent, over twenty-one years of age, and to be thoroughly informed that the sounding of an alarm does not give right of way, or relieve of responsibility.

EYESORE.

The action of the City Council in removing an old building to the city hall park and placing it at the end of one of the most prominent streets in Berkeley and fronting upon another for use as a fire-house, was most vigorously condemned by the club, and the secretary was authorized to write in protest.

The matter of too many city employes and too high salaries for assistants was discussed, and this, as well as the uneconomical method of securing supplies for the various departments without buying by wholesale quantities and advertised bids was laid over for action until more data can be obtained. It was shown also that the repairs and painting upon schoolhouses instead of being submitted for bids as provided for by the charter has been done by the employes of a city appointee.

The club expressed its appreciation of the action of the Longfellow Improvement Club in coming to its assistance in the matter of encouraging building by doing away with all fees to the city or the gas, light and water companies, and instructed the secretary to request the City Council to pass such ordinances as would remove the present fees, and also to ask that the minimum rate for water meters be one dollar per month.

It was shown that the burden of the present meter rate falls upon tenants and poor people who use less than the limit, that users in large quantities are not affected and that the present rate is virtually a bribe to the city, which, in consideration of it, secures its water at reduced rates. The water secured at these rates is used to sprinkle in front of vacant lots and property of people using wells who thereby secure benefits to which they are not entitled and for which users of meters are taxed to supply.

The club re-elected its present officers, received three new members, and decided to hold a public entertainment in the near future.

Celebrate Wedding of George Washington

BERKELEY, Jan. 7.—The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the wedding of George Washington and Martha Curtis was celebrated yesterday afternoon by Berkeley Hills chapter, D. A. R., by the holding of the annual historical day in the chapter. The affair was held at the home of the chapter historian, Mrs. Ralph S. Minor, on Parker street, and was attended by members of Berkeley Hills chapter and a few guests.

An interesting historical program was presented. A paper on the "Courtship and Marriage of the Washingtons" was read by the hostess, Mrs. Minor, and Mrs. Leigh Richmond Smith, regent of the chapter, gave the History of Mount Vernon up to date, with reminiscences of a personal visit. Mrs. C. L. Elwood Brown, regent of California chapter and the guest of Mrs. Smith, read a paper on Mary Washington, the mother of George Washington. Musical numbers were contributed by Miss Angell, a house guest of the hostess, and Mrs. Joseph O'Hara of San Francisco. BERKELEY COUPLE ELOPE AND WED AT SAN RAFAEL

BERKELEY, Jan. 7. — Lovers since their grammar school days, pretty Lydia M. Rodgers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Crowley Rodgers of South Berkeley, and Thomas M. Springer of Oakland, slipped away to San Rafael on the last day in the old year and were married by Rev. L. T. White. The parents of neither knew of the elopement at the time and the groom admitted tonight that neither family had yet learned of the wedding.

Springer returned to his home, 3217 Boise avenue, Oakland, and his bride returned to the home of her parents in South Berkeley.

The groom said tonight:

"We just thought we would be married quietly, so that should opposition to the match arise it would make no difference. Nobody in either family yet knows of the marriage, but my grandmother. I don't know what the parents of the young lady will say when the secret is out, but it doesn't matter. I expect to leave here in a week or so, probably going to San Francisco, and I am not going alone."

Springer is a son of M. W. Springer, an old time member of the printing craft. Crowley Rodgers, father of the bride, is a retired mining man.

STRINGENT RULES FOR AUTOS URGED

Mayor Noy of Alameda to Ask Council to Pass New Ordinance.

ALAMEDA, Jan. 7.—"I am going to advocate a more stringent automobile and motorcycle law and will ask the city council to pass an ordinance making motorcycles and automobiles keep on the right side of the street, as they do in Oakland," said Mayor Noy today in discussing the many deaths caused recently by reckless chauffeurs.

The Mayor and Colonel E. B. Bullock will bring the matter before the council at an early meeting for both firmly believe that the present auto and motorcycle ordinance is far too lenient with speed-burners and think the auto traffic should be regulated still further by law.

DEPRECATES SPEEDING.

"I have frequently seen motorcycles go around a corner in the business district here and take a sharp turn. If a man or a woman was crossing the street at that corner they would be in grave danger of being badly injured or killed, all through the carelessness of the driver.

"We cannot afford to have any more accidents, for the life and limbs of our citizens are precious, so I am going to request the council to pass an ordinance making automobiles and motorcycles slow down when turning a corner and also to make them take the turn on the further side of the street. I also wish incorporated in this ordinance a provision making all self-propelled vehicles use the right side of the street only.

URGES STRINGENT LAW.

"Another thing that should be regulated by law is the speed and manner with which automobiles and motorcycles pass street cars when passengers are getting on and off. There is another source of danger that should be taken care of by ordinance. I have frequently observed autos on the Webster street road coming along on the wrong side of the street and accidents are bound to occur when conditions like this exist. With an ordinance compelling autos to keep to the right this danger would be obviated."

TWO-SCORE PAIRS OF SHOES STOLEN

Burglars Loot Alameda Store and Carry Off Large Booty.

ALAMEDA, Jan. 7.—Burglars entered Rhodes' shoe store on Park street, some time early this morning, through a back window, which they forced, and made way with 42 pairs of fine shoes, valued at $165. The robbery was discovered by Patrolman Rogers. He reported it to police headquarters.

The burglars evidently had a wagon in waiting to carry away their plunder and worked with the greatest care for all of the shoes stolen were selected from among the finest in the store.

It is believed that the thieves had the wagon near by and must have made several trips to load it with their plunder. The patrolmen on the beat were evidently closely watched as none of them heard anything suspicious in the store during the night or nearly hours of the morning.

Detectives William Wahmuth and George Brown are working on the case, which is particularly baffling as there were no marks on the shoes by which they could be identified.

CITY IS READY TO FURNISH CURRENT

Alameda Finds Way to Raise $5000 for Power Lines to Bridges.

ALAMEDA, Jan. 7. — The power to operate the drawbridges across the tidal canal at Park and High streets and at Fruitvale avenue will be furnished by the city, according to its promise that if the government would repair the bridges and the county board of supervisors provide men to operate them, this city would furnish the power.

While the $5000 necessary for the installation of poles and wires to carry the current to the bridges is rather a large sum to unexpectedly raise, Mayor Noy, Colonel E. B. Bullock and the members of the finance committee have made all arrangements to raise the money and to carry out the promise of the city without it costing the taxpayers one cent.

This statement was made by Colonel Bullock this morning, who said that the current would be furnished and that the finance committee had made all arrangements to provide the funds for the installation of poles and wires to carry the current to the bridges.

ANTI-VACCINATION LEAGUE IN SESSION

Dr. Snow, Head of State Board of Health, Addresses Body.

BERKELEY, Jan. 7.—The Anti-Compulsory Vaccination League of the State of California held a joint meeting last night with the representative of the State Board of Health, when Dr. William F. Snow, secretary of the State Board, was present to explain his attitude in the matter of compulsory vaccination. Hugh Craig acted as chairman and George Gelder as secretary of the meeting.

After explaining the position of the Anti-Compulsory Vaccinationists, Craig called upon Dr. Snow, who said he believed that everyone had a right to his honest opinion. He said that he has had both pleasant and unpleasant experiences in the matter of vaccination, but that nothing could be said that would change his opinion as to the efficacy of vaccination.

"Physicians, as a rule," said Dr. Snow, "do not study the history of medicine. Vaccination may be divided into two parts, one a question of science and the other that of administration. The enforcing of the law has caused a great deal of hardship and suffering and consequently much friction. Minnesota has given up the compulsory part of vaccination. Small-pox is not very prevalent at present, but there are many other diseases attacking our people."

FROM THE AGES.

Dr. Charles G. Kuhlman, of San Francisco, also an invited guest, gave an interesting lecture on the practice called vaccination. He claimed that it is a practice brought down from the dark ages, when mysticism, fetichism, barbarism and ignorance prevailed. He further showed that the world's greatest authorities and scientists were opposed to vaccination and particularly compulsory. Dr. Kuhlman said that "compulsory vaccination is both unlawful, unjust and a cruel and unusual punishment. Vaccination is not supported in science and therefore cannot be upheld in law or justice, because the law deals with truths and facts and that which is not truth or a fact has no place in law or justice." Dr. Kuhlman showed thousands of authorities from all over the world to support his claim. Dr. Snow did not dispute Dr. Kuhlman's contentions.

MAKES ADMISSIONS.

When asked, Dr. Snow admitted that an organization of health officials employed by the various municipalities was the only body of men who are interested in having the compulsory feature of vaccination on our statute books, and that Dr. Matthews, one time secretary of the State Board of Health introduced the present compulsory vaccination law.

Dr. Snow proposed a law which made it a crime for non-compliance with [illegible] in regard to vaccination. He said that it would be a little easier than the present law, which however, does not make non-compliance a crime.

It provided—first, that all persons employed in and about the schools and every child going to school must be vaccinated, unless, second, they had a disability certificate from some physician, or third, if the person made a conscientious objection. However in view of the fact that one case of small-pox would be an epidemic, whether it existed in the body of a Japanese, Chinese, or any other person, in the city, and that thereupon all unvaccinated children would be deprived of all school rights, it was decided to fight the present Compulsory law and make no compromise.

WOOL GROWERS ASK PROTECTION FROM IMPORTS

Resolution Affirms Belief in the American System of Protection.

EXPLAINS WHAT IS NEEDED IN TARIFF

Portland Convention Takes Up Many Questions of Importance.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 7.—The principal resolution submitted for adoption to the National Wool Growers' convention by the resolutions committee is the one affecting the tariff. The committee favors presenting a united front by the manufacturers and growers in defense of the present schedule. The resolution says:

"We reaffirm our belief in the American system of protection and unequivocally endorse the application of its principles as embodied in the present arrangement of schedule K as applicable to the wool duties and recognize that every time departure has been made from the principles therein contained serious disaster has befallen the industry of wool growing. The wool growers need and deserve protective duties equal with the manufacturers of wool.

FEEL COMPETITION

"Both classes feel the competition of the cheap labor of foreign countries and both are dependent upon the tariff for their prosperity and indeed for their existence, and we call upon our senators and representatives in Congress to present a united front against foreign invasion of our markets and resist to the utmost all attacks of vicious doctrinaries upon the protection that shields this national industry.

"Pending the investigation of the tariff board appointed by President Taft, the legislation should cease until such time as the findings of the board are reported. We commend and heartily support the work being done by the American tariff commission association."

For his part in drafting schedule K the report recommends that Senator F. E. Warren of Wyoming be enrolled with those grand champions of the wool growing industry represented by Blaine, McKinley and Dingley.

The report recommends a resolution favoring the appointment of a committee to represent the association in matters pertaining to tariff legislation, the committee also to collect and compile data on the cost of producing wool and to submit it to the tariff board and in general to submit information to the tariff board and legislative committees.

FOREST SERVICE

The report says that it appears that the forest service is desirous of improving grazing conditions for the sheep raiser and a committee is advocated which shall have for its object the investigation and criticisms on the forest service and to confer with the secretary of agriculture and forester before the next grazing season opens with a view to adjusting any differences.

The report opposes surrender by Congress of the power to create forest reserves and the conferring of this power on the President.

The bill now before Congress establishing a minimum speed limit law of fifteen miles an hour in transporting stock is favored and the work of Dr. William Stillman, president of the American Humane society, in his efforts to secure this humane legislation is endorsed.

The report recommends that the executive committee be instructed to investigate the present freight rates on sheep, wool and mohair, and where they are found to be unnecessarily high, report the same to the interstate commerce commission. Maintenance of the bureau of animal industry at Washington and the establishment by the department of agriculture of a botanical laboratory at Denver, Colo., are both heartily endorsed.

The report concludes with tender of thanks to the industrial and fraternal organizations which have made the stay of the delegates in Portland a continuous pleasure.

Refuse to Dissolve Livestock Exchange

TOPEKA, Kas., Jan. 7.—The supreme court refused today to dissolve the Traders' Live Stock Exchange of Kansas City on the ground that it was a trust. The court holds that the exchange must discontinue the practice of boycotting members outside the exchange. The action of the court was a stay of the order of Judge Trumbull of the district court of Wyandotte county dissolving the exchange and [illegible] the charge on good behavior. The suit was brought by the attorney general.

Chinese to Combat American Bankers

HANKOW, Jan. 7.—Chinese bankers of the Yangtse valley are perfecting an organization for the purpose of [illegible] during the visit here of a delegation of American business men representing the chambers of commerce of the Pacific Coast. The opponents of the project contend that they see in it only another evidence of foreign encroachment.

WIFE LEAVES; STARVES HIMSELF

Deserted German Husband Tries Hard to End His Life.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—Hunger strikes are a well known form of protest against ill treatment in Russian prisons. It has been left for a Berlin business man to resort to one as a protest against conjugal infidelity.

Recently the concierge of a house in the suburbs of Reinickendorf became uneasy about two of his tenants, Herr Max Wulff, a young merchant and his wife, who had given no sign of life for many days. Making inquiries he found that Herr Wulff had not been to business [illegible].

As ringing and knocking failed to gain him admission to the flat he fetched the police who forced the door. The flat was apparently empty and the porter was about to go away, believing that the Wulffs had quietly left their abode when he stumbled on Herr Wulff, who was lying in a corner of the room.

In a fainting voice Herr Wulff told how his wife had deserted him more than a month ago, taking the furniture with her. In despair he resolved to starve himself to death.

JAPANESE TO LEARN USE OF GUILLOTINE

PARIS, Jan. 7.—Twelve lessons suffice to teach any one to guillotine. Such was the remark recently made by the French executioner, M. Deibler, who is the monopolist in this career. The Japanese, it seems, want to introduce the guillotine into their own country as one of the advantages of Western civilization. A Japanese mission was sent to Paris on purpose to learn all about the guillotine, and they applied to M. Deibler for instruction. He received them very politely and took them to his establishment in the Rue de la Folie Regnault and showed them how it would work. Would he consent to teach someone? they asked rather mysteriously. In twelve lessons anyone can learn how to set up the machine and use it. The Japanese were satisfied and "someone" will probably soon apply for the lessons.

PARIS, Jan. 7.—A humorous story [illegible] with all [illegible] in a Paris newspaper. A lunatic named Legrand was giving some trouble in a country place. Let him be shut up in an asylum, ordered the mayor.

The garde champetre was told off to take him with the help of a local baker, to the asylum a few miles distant. While going along the road the lunatic, who was not always under the influence, had a lucid interval. Naturally he evinced some resentment at being taken to an asylum.

The garde champetre consulted with the baker with the result that they offered him drinks to humor him, joining him in quaffing the liquid. Before entering the [illegible] Legrand [illegible] opened to the [illegible]. As the garde champetre was taller than the other two he was deemed and the lunatic and the baker returned to the village when the lunatic, who had been the first to get sober, told on the other two.

WOULD TAKE MILITIA POWER FROM GOVERNOR

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 7.—At the request of the law and legislative committee of the San Francisco Labor Council Senator Tom Finn will introduce a bill to prevent the governor of California from calling out the state militia at his own caprice and without the request or consent of the chief executive of the city or district affected.

Senator Finn's bill proposes to amend Section 1[illegible] of the Political Code by providing that only upon the request of the chief executive authority of any city or county may the governor send the state militia to deal with matters affecting the public peace.

Hastening the Commercial Development of Oakland's Western Water Front

OAKLAND'S BANK CLEARINGS AND DEPOSITS SHOW CITY'S GROWTH AND PROSPERITY

Surplus Wealth of Its Citizens Make a New Record and Its Business Shows Material Increase

Oakland is moving by leaps and bounds these days. It enters the new year with an unprecedented record in its bank deposits and its bank clearings. Every bank in Oakland shows a material increase in its deposits over what they were at the same period last year.

Bank Deposits Steadily Growing

The Oakland Bank of Savings has nearly reached the $20,000,000 mark in its deposits, which are over $1,500,000 in excess of their amount at the beginning of 1910, and $600,000 more than at the opening of 197 when they reached the highest previous high-water mark; and the affiliated Central National and Central Savings Banks have passed the $10,000,000 mark in their joint deposits. These facts prove that the people of Oakland have today a larger surplus of wealth than they ever had before and are, therefore, enjoying a greater measure of prosperity than they ever before experienced.

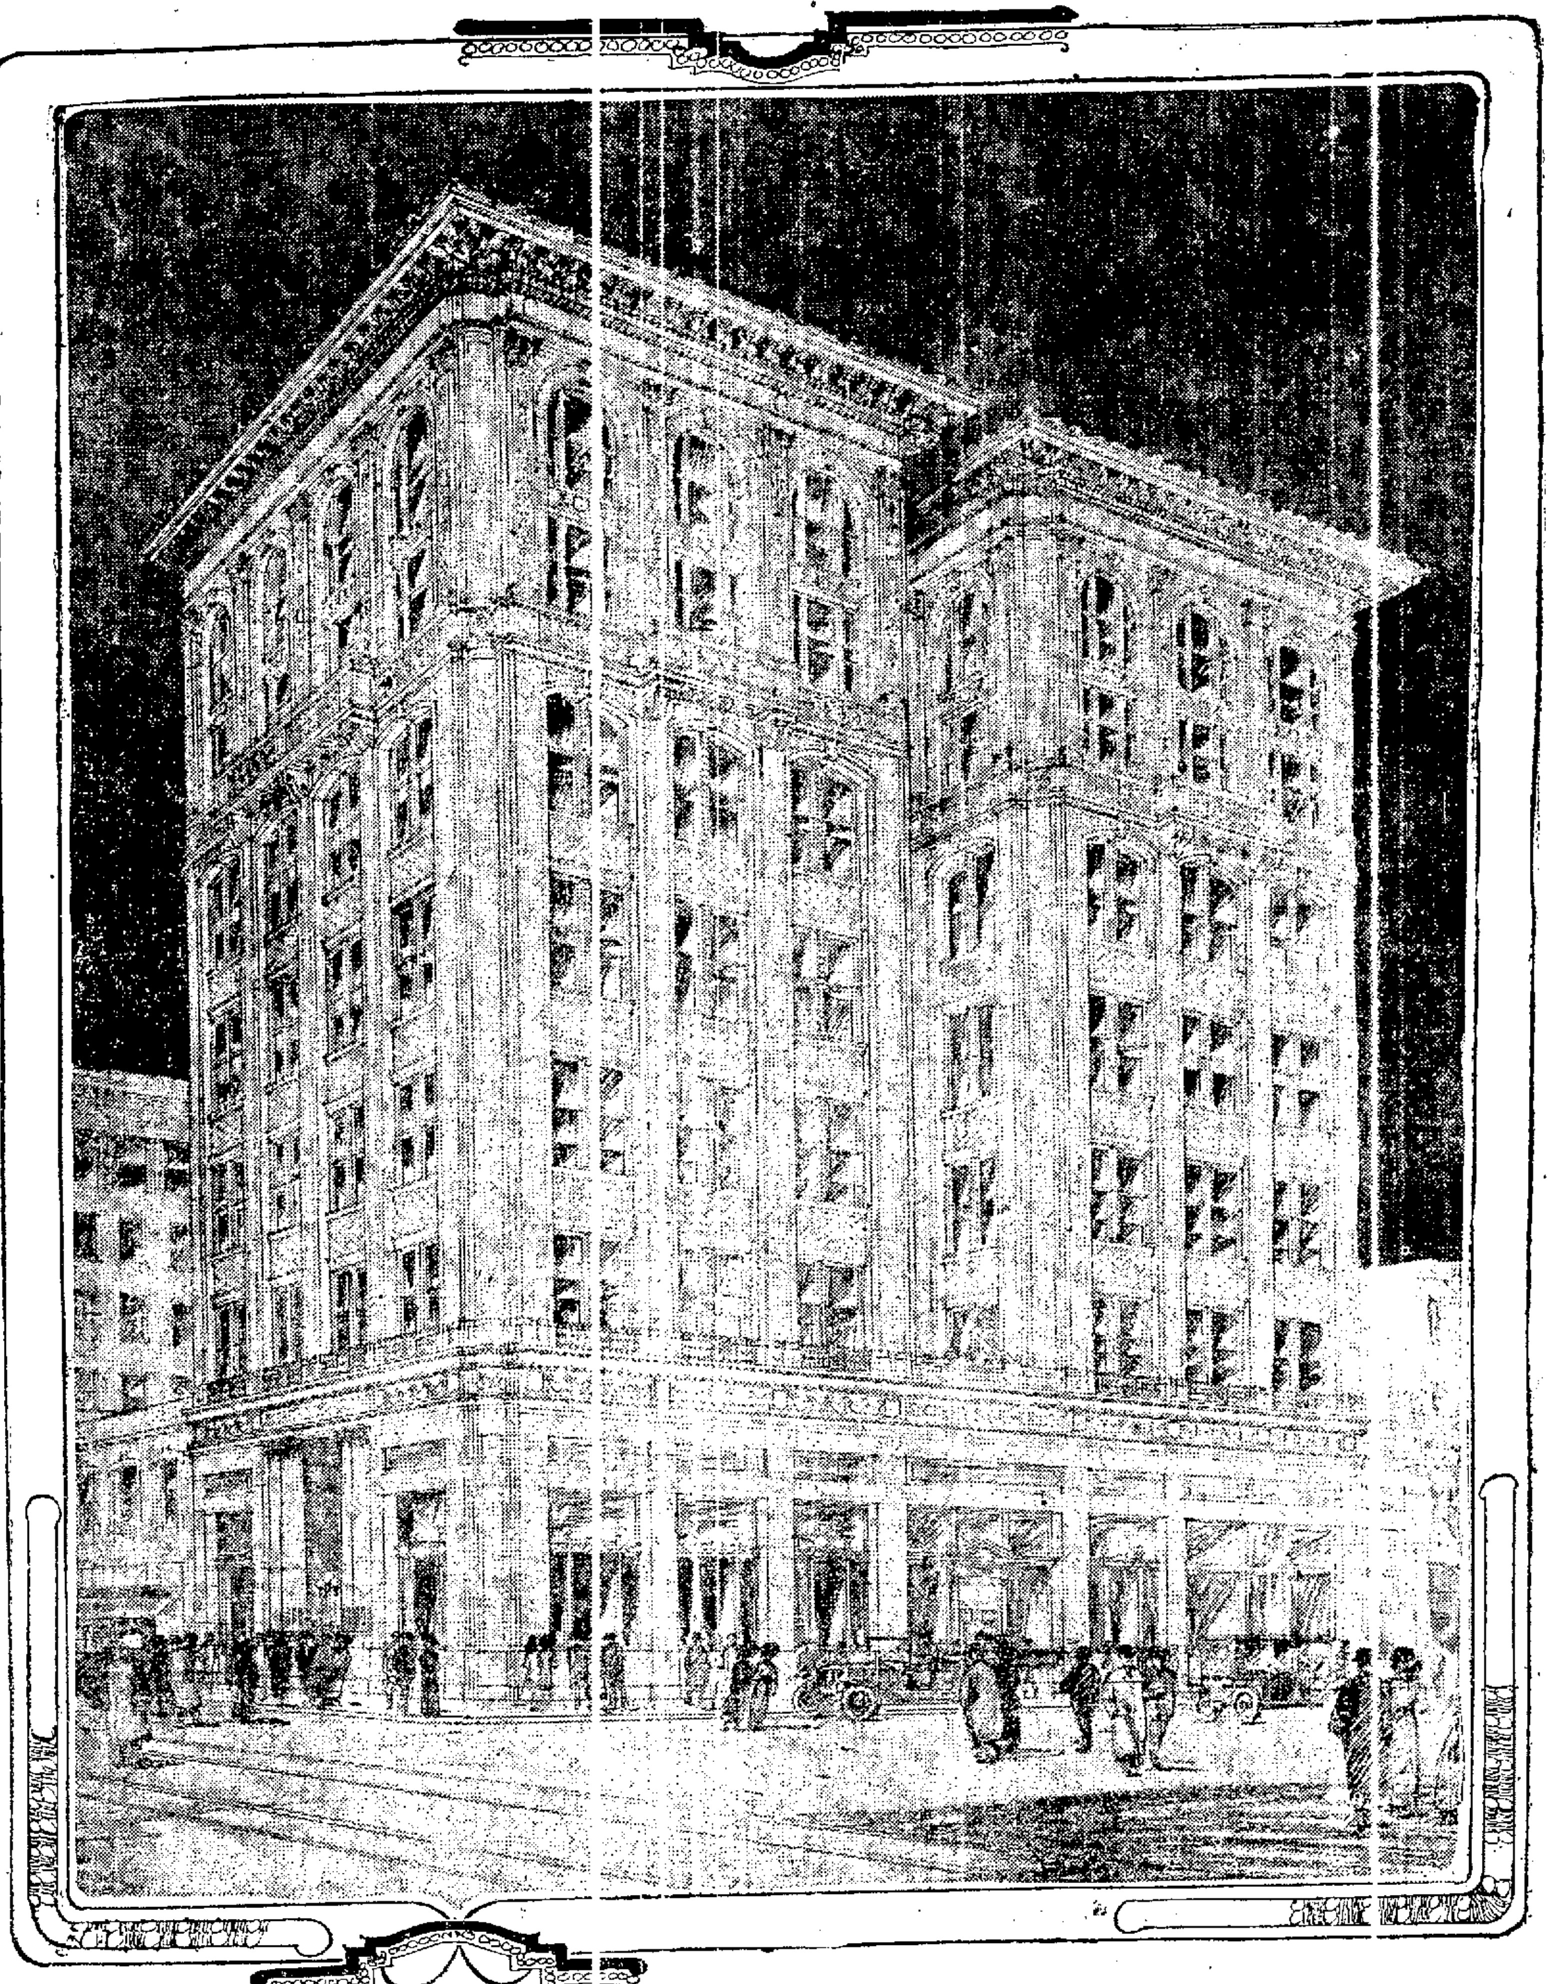
What the Bank Clearings Show

The bank clearings for the year 1910 and for the first week in 1911 tell the same story of business prosperity, the expansion of industrial interests and the growth of population. The former show an excess of nearly $61,000,000 over the bank clearings of 1909 and of $17,000,000 over the bank clearings of 1907, in which year a record-breaking figure was reached. The big increase in the bank clearings of last year occurred, moreover, under perfectly normal conditions and not under any forced process, as has been intimated by an outside element unfriendly to Oakland's progress. If a forced process had been applied, whereby Oakland would have obtained an honest credit for what is its due in the records of the clearing-houses of the country, the total bank clearings of $157,000,000 with which it has been credited in those records would have been multiplied many times over.

At the close of the first week in 1911 ending January 5, in which there was a holiday and consequently a total suspension of business, Oakland's bank clearings, as reported by Bradstreet's, amounted to $4,101,000, an increase of 61.5 per cent over the corresponding week in 1910. This is the first time in the history of the Oakland clearing-house for the weekly bank clearings to pass the $4,000,000 mark.

Surplus Wealth Increasing Despite Expenditure

These are the noteworthy conditions which exist in Oakland, notwithstanding the enormous drain made on the community during the year 1910 for public and private improvements. Surplus wealth has increased here, despite the fact that over $1,500,000 was spent on sewer and street improvements and nearly $7,000,000 in new buildings, or over $1,000,000 more than was spent in the year 1909. And the groundwork is being laid in the first month of 1911 for an expenditure of millions in private and public improvements which the people and the corporations are courageously investing with the full consciousness of a greater financial harvest to be reaped in return for their unbounded faith in Oakland's future progress.



SECURITY BANK AND TRUST CO. BUILDING TO BE ERECTED ON NORTHEAST CORNER OF BROADWAY AND 11TH.

SECURITY BANK'S NEW BUILDING

Handsome 7-Story Class A Structure; Erection to Start Soon

The plans of the architects, Reed & Meyer, of the new building to be erected on the northeast corner of Eleventh street and Broadway for the Security Bank and Trust Company building are now practically completed and the accompanying illustration is a perspective drawing of the structure as it will appear. It will be a seven-story bank and office class A building, with steel frame and fireproof construction throughout.

Banking Room and Safe Deposit Floors

The ground floor and basement will be devoted wholly to the banking room and the safe deposit vaults. The banking room and vault equipment will be strictly modern in character.

The banking room will occupy all of the ground floor space except that surrendered to the elevators and access thereto, and will be about twenty-four feet in height. Special attention is to be given to the interior decorations and the arrangement of this room, which will be equipped throughout with a lleto-graph system.

The bank vaults and safe deposit department will occupy the basement. The vaults will be the latest type manufactured, and in their construction will be absolutely burglar and fireproof

An automatic lift will be provided from the bank vault to the banking room floor, and an omnibus system of handling books and coin installed between the banking room and the vault.

Upper Floors for Office Purposes

The upper floors are to be devoted to offices. The building has been so planned that every office gets direct light and air from the street there being no inner court or areas in the structure. The building will be equipped with two high speed elevators communicating with every floor.

External Design Italian in Style

The external design of the building is Italian in the general character of its architecture. The base course will be constructed of California granite. The main shaft above the upper line of the banking room will be built of specially designed [illegible] with polychrome terra cotta. The upper two stories will be faced with mat glaze terra cotta.

The new building will be white in general color. It is planned to be complete and permanent when finished, no provision being made for the addition to it of other stories in future. Its total cost is estimated at $250,000, and its construction will soon be started. It will be one of the handsomest buildings on the Pacific coast when finished.

ALAMEDA LOOKS AHEAD HOPEFULLY

City Enjoyed Prosperous Year in 1910; Great Expectations Based On Tunnel Project.

ALAMEDA, Jan. 7.—The rapid increase of building permits last December, when sixteen permits were issued for houses and ten for alterations and additions at a total cost of $39,[illegible], over December, 1909, when but four building and three addition permits were issued, proves that this city is keeping up its rapid growth and that the real estate market is getting better instead of retrograding as in many coast cities.

PROSPEROUS YEAR.

The month of December was also remarkable for the number of houses sold and also for the number of lots disposed of, much to the surprise of the realty dealers who have always looked upon December as the dullest month in the year.

This business can be traced directly to the advertising this city has received in the special editions of the newspapers, the magazine articles about its schools, streets, sewers and municipal electric light plant, for homeseekers want to live in a city that has a low tax rate and that has but few municipal improvements to make.

The excellent weather enjoyed during December also had much to do with the increased sales over last year, as many Eastern people purchased unimproved property, intending to return this fall and build.

ESTUARY TUNNEL.

One of the greatest factors that will tend to make this city more populous will be the tunnel under the estuary and the Alameda county representatives in the state legislature are to present a bill this session asking state aid to the project. This tunnel would make transportation between Oakland and Alameda ever better than it is at present and would obviate the present delay at the drawbridges.

Now that the government intends to open the drawbridges over the tidal canal at High and Park streets and at Fruitvale avenue, the tracts of land along the canal and on San Leandro bay will be available for manufacturing plants, especially as that section of the city has railroad connection with the great transcontinental lines through a spur track.

MANUFACTURING PROSPECTS.

That Alameda has a great future as a manufacturing city no one doubts, for the opening of the Panama canal will make all manufacturing sites valuable and Alameda's factory sites are still to be purchased at a reasonable figure.

FOURTEENTH ST. APARTMENT FLATS

Three-story Structure Costing $14.500 Now Being Built Near Castro Street.

A three-story apartment flat building is being erected on Sixteenth street, near Castro street, for Clement F. Rust, from plans drawn by Architect Charles W. McCall. The exterior will be executed in the southern French Renaissance with cement plaster and terra cotta tiled cornice.

The interior is divided into twelve three and four-room apartments. The living rooms are to be paneled seven feet high. All apartments have been most carefully arranged for convenience, sunshine and view, and are to be well supplied with wardrobes, lockers, closets, etc. All kitchens will have rear service stairs and a storeroom in the basement.

The contract, including a janitor apartment in the basement, but exclusive of the architect's fees, is $14,500.

HOW OAKLAND KEEPS GROWING

Developments On Fourth Avenue Boulevard Which Have Recently Taken Place.

The remarkable developments of Oakland as a city is well illustrated by the reproduction in this issue of the section of Peralta Heights which has with the exception of one house been entirely built up since the fire. The intersection of Fourth avenue boulevard and Chicago avenue shown in the cut offers homes which were all built according to their own plans by Taylor Brothers & Company. This firm has made a record in the building of artistic homes for sale which is unequaled by any other of the city.

The illustration shows a corner of the small park donated by F. M. Smith whose magnificent home is but a few hundred feet away from the locality shown. The board boulevard is of asphalt macadam and is one of the finest in Oakland. The homes of District Attorney Donahue and C. D. Dunnan of the Pacific Coast Steamship company appear in the photograph.

Speaking of the many tourists and homeseekers in Oakland, Charles Taylor of Taylor Brothers says:

"I have never noticed so many visitors nor have we ever had such a demand for homes from strangers, who have decided to settle here permanently. Many are those to whom we rented some months ago or perhaps last winter, but who now want to live here and own their home."

CONSTRUCTION OF CITY WHARF ON THE WESTERN FRONTAGE TO BE RUSHED

New Electric Railway Incorporated to Join It; Much Trade to Be Brought to Oakland by Water

Two weeks ago THE TRIBUNE announced in the assurance given by Mayor Mott that within six months the first municipal wharf on the western waterfront at the end of Seventh street extended parallel with the Southern Pacific mole would be finished and ready for business. At the same time it was stated that in all probability a street railway would be built alongside the mole to accommodate the passenger and freight traffic which the new wharf would unquestionably attract to Oakland.

New Electric Railway to Key Route Basin

The latter proposition promises to be carried out quicker than was anticipated when it was tentatively exploited, for articles of incorporation of the

'DARK COUNTESS' NEAR INSANITY

Tarnowska Forced to Leave Beloved Venice; Loses Her Mind.

ROME, Jan. 7.—According to Italian law, prisoners cannot serve sentences of hard labor in prisons in the cities where they were tried and convicted. The rule naturally applies to the Countess Tarnowska, who must shortly leave Venice prison, but her removal has been postponed owing to the serious condition of her health. After the trial Countess Tarnowska had a nervous collapse, but relied on the hope that her appeal against the sentence would be favorably entertained. When the appeal was rejected she still hoped against hope for a pardon, which was refused.

The countess then appeared to be reconciled to her sad fate, especially as the nuns of the Venice prison nursed her lovingly and pitied her. When Tarnowska was notified that she must leave Venice she was shocked to such an extent that she fell seriously ill, and for many days refused food and spent sleepless nights. She had been reduced to a nervous wreck. Recently she underwent a surgical operation and as a result began to suffer from hallucinations. She became so hysterical that insanity was seriously feared. The doctors agree that Tarnowska is doomed to a premature end.

PIEDMONT REALTY GROWS IN FAVOR

East Piedmont Heights Extension to Be Benefited by the Key Route Railway Plans.

East Piedmont Heights Extension is receiving the most direct benefit of any section of Oakland up to the present time from the announcement of the incorporation of the gigantic United Properties Company of California. The construction of the Oakland, San Francisco & San Jose railroad to San Jose will pass through the East Piedmont Heights Extension tract and will provide quick transportation to San Francisco in addition to the many advantages the property has already enjoyed as the fastest growing residence district of Oakland.

All Piedmont properties will benefit immensely, as the quick and direct transportation to San Francisco will either touch or pass close to all of the Piedmont residence sections and will furnish what has been so long desired.

The East Piedmont Heights Extension tract has already established a fine record for the actual building of homes and has grown rapidly solely on the many advantages it possesses as a home section of Oakland. The intrinsic value of every foot of property has thereby been greatly enhanced.

CONSTRUCTION OF CITY WHARF ON WESTERN FRONTAGE TO BE RUSHED

Oakland Bay Shore Railway Company were filed on Wednesday in the office of the County Clerk. The maps of the new railroad have been prepared for some and assurances may now be given that it is a part of the Oakland and Antioch Electric Railway system (now in course of construction) and will constitute the waterfront terminal of the system on the eastern bay shore. The extension of the line to the western end of Seventh street extended on the north side of Oakland mole was planned in anticipation of the construction of the municipal wharves in the Key Route basin.

Object of Hastening Western Wharf Work

The purpose of the Board of Public Works in hastening the construction of the wharf immediately north of the pier head line of the Oakland mole is to provide accommodations for the landing and loading of passengers and freight direct to and from the steamships engaged in the coastwise passenger trade and steamboats trading with bay and river points, and thus avoid the 5 per cent transbay toll and the loss of time to which they are subjected. At the new wharf it will be just as easy for coastwise and bay and river boats to touch going to and coming from the San Francisco docks and deliver or take aboard Oakland freight and passengers as it is for them to handle the business on the other side of the bay, and that without practically any inconvenience or loss of time.

Direct Trade by Water Routes to Oakland

When the new wharf is constructed and put into operation it will stimulate direct trade and passenger traffic between Oakland and all coastwise, bay and river points. It has been impossible in the past to cultivate this trade by water, for the reason that there has been no wharf on the city's western waterfront communicating with the business center of Oakland at which the craft engaged in it could conveniently touch, passing in and out of Oakland harbor to and from the wharves on the southern waterfront, consuming too much time. The new municipal wharf will remove all present drawbacks, and will give Oakland merchants and manufacturers a chance to build up a big trade by water routes which is not now available to them. The newly incorporated Oakland and Bay Shore Railway fits into this general scheme of commercial and industrial development, which promises to add immensely to Oaklands prosperity.

BERKELEY'S NEW YEAR HOPES RISE

Prospects of Much Acitvity in Realty Trading and in College City Building.

BERKELEY, Jan. 7.—The new year in realty circles in Berkeley opens with many auguries of prosperity. The coming spring is to witness the completion and beginning of operation of the Southern Pacific electric lines through the college city, and news of the Smith-Tevis deal leads the realty men to believe that the Key Route will hasten work upon its Berkeley lines. These railroad improvements will increase activity in the sale and improvement of suburban tracts, principally in North Berkeley.

Fair weather has assisted in the inauguration of realty trade for the year, sunny skies being a direct aid in showing properties. A firm winter business in suburban and close-in houses and lots is reported by the local brokers, although no large transfers have materialized this week.

BUILDING IMPROVEMENTS.

It is predicted that building operations will show an increase this year over the past twelve months. For the year ending December 31 last the valuation of buildings erected in Berkeley was $1,476,500, as compared with $2,249,500, in 1910. The latter figure was about the average of all the years since 1906, the year of the great disaster, and up to the twelve-month just ended. The principal reason assigned for the slump is that the demand for residences and business houses was satisfied a year ago.

The expected decision regarding the site of the Panama-Pacific Exposition is expected to have much weight in strengthening confidence, and loosening the purse-strings of investors.

PERMITS ISSUED.

Among the building permits issued for the week is one for repairs on the residence owned by F. C. Bradley and occupied by President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University. The remodeling and repair work will cost $7500, and will probably not be made until President Wheeler vacates the house. He is to move into the president's mansion on the campus as soon as that dwelling is completed.

The following building permits have been issued this week

Hardware store, corner of Harrison street and Kaines avenue, Mrs. A. B. Gigax, $250.

Alterations for house, 1820 Scenic park, F. C. Bradley, $7500.

One story seven room dwelling at Shattuck avenue and Grand View terrace; J. T. Greenhood, $2500.

One story two room dwelling, Kittredge, near Milvia street, for the dyeing plant of Wann Brothers, $200.

Calvary Presbyterian Church building, southwest corner of Cedar street and Bonita avenue, $1800.

Two story 8-room dwelling, east side Spruce street, 600 feet north of Eunice, J. J. Cahill, $5800.

FATHER TAFT OFFICE HOLDER, SAYS SON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 — Charley, youngest son of President Taft, avails himself of all the privileges that are coming to him as a budding citizen, but consistently refused to take advantage of the fact that his father is president.

At a party given in Washington recently Charley Taft was placed at a table beside a girl of his own age, who failed to recognize him. As the acquaintance progressed to a point where names seemed desirable the young lady asked: "What is your name?"

"Charley," laconically replied her escort.

Still somewhat at a loss to place the boy who seemed so desirable an acquaintance, another question was propounded:

"Where do you live?"

"On Pennsylvania avenue."

"What does your father do?"

"Oh, he is a political office holder here," was the answer to that one.

"R. I. P." WROTE SENDER OF AMERICAN BEAUTIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 — Recently a box addressed to Gen. J. W. Keifer was delivered in the office of the house committee on appropriations. When Gen. Keifer opened the box he beamed. On top of American Beauty roses was a card saying the roses were from old friends in Ohio.

"There," said he proudly, as he lifted the roses, "I may have been defeated, but, by George, it gives a man some satisfaction to be remembered by his friends in this fashion."

"There seems to be some other message for you," said a member of the committee, examining the bottom of the box.

Gen. Keifer picked up the box and read this inscription:

"May he rest in peace."

Back to the box went the flowers, and the floor went the card and out the door went the general, while the members laughed at the general's failure to recognize the handwriting of a fellow committeeman.

FIVE WOMEN BURIED IN A FIERY GRAVE

LISBON, Jan. 7.—A destructive fire broke out in a dwelling-house at Mourisa, near Tondella, where an invalid girl lay in bed helpless. Four lady friends courageously endeavored to effect her rescue. Rearing ladders to the upper windows they entered the blazing house, and presently were seen to return to the window bearing the girl in their arms.

Just, however, as it appeared that their gallant venture was to meet the reward of success in spite of the flames which enveloped the small company, the building collapsed bodily, and the five women, uttering piercing screams, were engulfed in what was literally a fiery furnace.

PREPARES REPORT ON OIL SECTIONS

State Mineralogist Aubury Tells of Progress Made in Southern Districts.

State Mineralogist Aubury reports that great progress has been made in the line of representing the present status of the great petroleum producing industry of California in publications bearing the official imprint of the State Mining Bureau. Several maps have been completed, which have many details added in the accompanying text that are invaluable as a source of public information. Other maps are in preparation and will be ready for circulation very soon. Bulletins containing detailed information about the fields in various counties are in preparation and the text of these is nearly ready to send to the State Printer at Sacramento.

The work that has engaged the attention of field experts, who are acting as assistants to the State Mineralogist, has been progressing steadily for some months. Completeness of details and accuracy of information has been sought that the facts may be brought up to date as far as possible. As a result of this the assistance of a large number of persons who have valuable information to impart has been sought and secured. The larger and smaller oil companies, individual producers, county officials, men connected with the operation of properties as employes filling important positions and others have collaborated. The net result will be that what may be properly styled a handbook of California Petroleum Production and some related industries will soon be given to the public. That this will stimulate interest in California, especially when it is known that the State Mineralogist has undertaken also to prevent fraudulent representations on the part of unreliable operators who would injure the State and retard natural development.

In addition to the mapping of the various fields and the mapping of counties, showing the relative positions of the several fields in such counties, where more than one in a county has been developed, a large chemical work has been performed. Through this means the public will be informed regarding the different kinds of oils produced in the fields, respectively. Analyses are provided, which will be in themselves valuable advertisements for the resources of the State, for the oils, in addition to supplying unrivaled values and chances for indefinitely great opportunities in the way of by-products. This is shown by the asphalt production alone, the most of which is derived from the refining of petroleum. The production of asphalt in California in the last twenty-three years as shown by a bulletin recently published by the State Mining Bureau has amounted to $9,357,652.

ELECTRIC ROAD FOR BIG CANAL

Steel to Be Shipped for Road Along the Ocean-to-Ocean Cut.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Within a few days the first shipment of steel will be made from New York for building a unique electric railway along the canal for drawing great ships from ocean to ocean. The enormous volume of shipping across the Isthmus will be drawn on the ancient tow path system, so that it will be unnecessary for steamers to proceed under their own steam. In place of the mules on this curious tow path, powerful electric locomotives will draw the largest ships smoothly and swiftly across the continent. A steamer of say 20,000 tons, which the canal will readily accommodate, is obviously a very heavy burden, and the electric locomotives will be geared to the tracks by a middle rail in the form of a rack. The canal commission has advertised for 2,000,000 pounds of steel ties, 1,000,000 pounds rod steel conductor, slots and covers and 1,300,000 pounds of steel channels. This rack railway will be built by the commission and will be in working order in less than two years, in time for the opening of the canal.

DIRECT LINE TO AFRICA.

Since the days of the slave trade, there has been no direct line of shipping between the United States and the west coast of Africa. A rich country with more than one hundred seaports stretches southward to the Cape of Good Hope. It is the only extended sea coast in the world, where trade is still carried on by bartering with the natives. Quantities of valuable native products, such as ivory, tusks, rubber, cocoa oil and even wild animals are brought to the coast to be exchanged with the local traders for beads, glass or knives. This rich, if primitive country, will be brought into direct communication with America by this new service. On Saturday last, the "Carl Woermann" sailed from New York for the Canary Islands and 117 possible ports of call on the African coast. A novel feature of her cargo was a number of collapsible steel cages for housing a variety of wild animals to be picked up during the voyage.

'SOUL' OF FAMOUS MILLET LOST FOREVER

CHAUCHARD ACCUSED OF RUINING MASTERPIECE

Marquis de Ganay Appointed Member of National Stables Council.

(By MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE)

PARIS, Jan 7—May I explain once and for all why the world renowned "Angelus" of Millet is getting such hard knocks from critics who have visited the Chauchard collection now on exhibition at the Louvre.

The explanation will be appreciated by Americans because "the Angelus" was held in very honor in America. It is very simple. The picture has been restored. Therefore it has lost its soul.

Chauchard, who passed his life, not in the famous picture galleries of the world but in the big department store called the Louvre which he founded, was a great collector but a poor judge. One day it occurred to him that "The Angelus" and the "Shepherdess," both from the brush of Millet, were deteriorating. He called in a young painter, who believed himself a sort of Rembrandt in disguise.

The result was that the two great pictures of the nineteenth century have been practically ruined. The intense poetry, the beautiful background, the luster, the atmospheric calm, the feeling of the open, the impression of the hour of the Ave Maria, all have disappeared.

PAINTER HEARD BELLS

"I want you to hear the ringing of the bells," said Millet to us one day as we were looking at the picture together. It did not require much imagination to hear those bells tolling the hour of the Angelus. I am sure the great painter heard them distinctly.

Fortunately the restorer has not laid his sacrilegious hands upon Corot pictures, the de La Croix, the Rousseau, the Dias, the Isabey and the Henners and others of the collection. Chauchard paid $170,000 for "The Angelus" on its return to America, only to have it muddled [illegible] its birth. There is one little picture in the collection which I well remember sold for sixty dollars forty years ago. This was bought by Chauchard for sixty thousand.

At the suggestion of the Minister of Agriculture President Fallieres has appointed the Marquis de Ganay a member of the supreme council of the national stables. The Marquis is one of our most American Frenchmen. He had the good taste to marry a distinguished American lady, Miss Ridgeway of Philadelphia.

STRONG SOCIAL SET.

The de Ganays, the Ridgeways, the Munroes and the Hottingers form a strong social set in our Parisian life. The Marquis de Ganay is a member of the Jockey Club, owner of a great stable of race horses and chairman of the races committee of Long Champs.

To make clear to the reader the importance of his recent nomination I should explain that in France stud horses are nationally owned. Otherwise they belong to the state like the [illegible] matches and some railroad. The state owns [illegible] stud horses. It has many horse farms, the most interesting of which are the Pompadour stables, so called after the celebrated court of the government of Louis XV.

WHITELAW REID ON ENGLISH POLITICS

Great Britain May Make Change in Her Present Immigration Laws.

NEW YORK, Jan 7—Whitelaw Reid, American Embassador to England, accompanied by his wife and son Ogden Reid, arrived tonight on the Cunarder Carmania for a two months visit. After he has attended to some personal business here he will accompany Mrs. Reid to Millbrae, near San Francisco.

The Embassador declared that England has been much embarrassed by her former liberality to anarchists and that the recent excitement in Sidney street, London, will undoubtedly result in her making alterations in the immigration laws.

"There is no doubt," said Mr. Reid, "that in the past England has been averse to giving up offenders whose offense has been of a political nature. She is always inclined to look upon political offenses as something different from ordinary crimes and refused to give up the man who threw a bomb at Napoleon III.

"I think, however, that the British government would have been willing to part with the assassins of President Lincoln if they had been found in England, where it was thought at one time they were.

"Under the present English law anarchists are not prevented from landing and there are [illegible] a great many in London at this time. I have no doubt that the government will [illegible] legislation in the law will [illegible] be made.

"America is suffering more from political crimes than any other country. We have had three heads of our government removed by assassins, which speaks badly for the Republican form of government, but it shows that human nature is the same under any form of government."

Mr. Reid did not care to discuss his [illegible] of office [illegible] remain in England [illegible] President [illegible] his private business [illegible].

"THIRTY YEARS IN HELL," DECLARED IMMORAL

MACON, Mo., Jan 7—[illegible] case of the state vs. [illegible] is concerned with [illegible] having to her [illegible].

A witness for the state testified that the defendant had given to the witness the book "Thirty Years in Hell," a book by an alleged ex-priest, and said it was immoral. The defendant's lawyer insisted that the entire book be offered in evidence and read to the jury so they could decide the question of the book's [illegible] for themselves.

LOST REMITTANCE MONEY GAMBLING

So Englishman's Wife Finally Secures a Divorce for Lack of Support.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 7—Mrs. May Wickens, residing at 1030 California street, secured a divorce from Frederic W. Wickens today because he has failed for some years to provide for her. She told Judge Van Nostrand that her husband received regular remittances from his father in England, but that he gambled it away. She said their first quarrel resulted from her desire that Wickens go to work. He became incensed over the thought, she testified, and later left her.

"What did he do with the money he received from England?" asked the judge.

"He put it down the slot," was the response.

When pressed for an explanation Mrs. Wickens said her husband was accustomed to stand for hours before a nickel-in-the-slot machine and play away his money.

The following divorces were granted today:

By Judge Dunne—May F. from Harry [illegible] Gardner, desertion.

By Judge Van Nostrand—Mamie from Joseph T. Wiles, annulment; [illegible] from [illegible] Sherpa Hulsebizer, annulment.

The following suits for divorce were filed with the County Clerk today:

Julia against Patrick J. Daley, cruelty.

F. F. against Sarah L. Tuttle, cruelty.

CHURCHILL IS BLAMED FOR ANARCHIST BATTLE

All of Europe Is Laughing at London's Policemen's Efforts to Head Off Crime

(By WILLIAM T. STEAD)

LONDON, Jan 7—John Bull is profoundly dissatisfied and not a little ashamed of himself. He has reason. The mobilization of a small army of policemen and guardsmen with Maxim and artillery, rifles and revolvers for the purpose of capturing two burglars who were not captured after all, but who evaded justice and anticipated their inevitable end by suicide in the midst of a burning house, has created the liveliest feeling of resentment and indignation. It has exposed him to the ridicule of the world and [illegible] to the pitying and sarcastic [illegible] of his German cousins.

Perhaps the bitterest thing said about the whole astounding and tragic affair in Sidney street was a remark which Madame Novikoff made to me.

RUSSIANS PLEASED.

Said this redoubtable Russian lady: "It is quite flattering to us Russians to find that it is necessary to put a good Englishman into the field to subdue two Russians. Now I begin to understand the Boer war."

The sarcasm is as just as it is true, for in the Boer war England mobilized [illegible] men in order to overcome the resistance of [illegible] Boers, men and boys, and only succeeded in half doing it after three years of fighting. There is [illegible] justification in the remark of a German journalist that England would require to mobilize a whole division of her army to cope with a riot such as occurred in the Moabit quarter of Berlin last year. There the strikers numbered hundreds, were armed with revolvers and had the sympathy of the whole population of the quarter. Nevertheless the matter was dealt with by the police without calling on the troops.

PLEASED AT FIRST

At first [illegible] every Englishman was well pleased to think he had exhibited energy and vigor in making such display of force, but after a day or two of reflection he began to consider that it is not well to fire cannon against a mouse or even a rat, and the spectacle of a full grown man smashing all the crockery in an effort to catch a blue bottle fly [illegible] inspiring. It seemed as [illegible] we saw the ocean rose [illegible] a tempest to waft a feather or drown a fly. [illegible] for whom [illegible] probably [illegible] the wish to keep the police who were employed in attacking two burglars as safe as if they were wrapped in cotton wool in the bosom of their respective families.

IS CRIME PROBLEM.

Every one is rapidly coming to the conclusion that it is impossible to cope with [illegible] unless you are prepared to take the [illegible] being [illegible]. [illegible] risk [illegible] is constantly taken by the [illegible] and [illegible] detective and [illegible] risk [illegible] from a [illegible] with a couple of men [illegible] aroused from sleep while their revolvers [illegible] under their pillows, but [illegible] refused to allow any operation [illegible] be taken with the risk of a policeman [illegible]. The result was the [illegible] tragedy of [illegible].

WRONG PRINCIPLES

[illegible] law and order cannot [illegible] arduous [illegible] public service which involves the risk of wounds and death. The moment a policeman is known to [illegible] care for his own skin the criminal has everything his own way.

These reflections at first [illegible] and volume every [illegible]. Already [illegible] are [illegible] Churchill [illegible] office. [illegible] that Mr. [illegible] responsibility of [illegible] used [illegible] Mr. Churchill's superior officials [illegible] in the day when the fatal blunder was bringing forth disastrous results he showed no hesitation in asserting his authority.

It was unfortunate that Sidney street lies outside the city boundaries and therefore came within the jurisdiction of Scotland Yard. Had it been a few yards further in that direction the matter would have been controlled by the lord mayor and the city police certainly would not have tolerated calling the guards to cope with burglars. In that matter Churchill is solely responsible when he demanded the presence of the guards. The war office objected, whereupon Mr. Churchill declared that he as secretary of state took the whole responsibility on his own shoulders. Mr. Haldane was out of town and the authorities at the war office gave way.

Even if Mr. Churchill can exonerate himself of the primary blunder by throwing it upon the shoulders of some police subordinate, the responsibility for the [illegible] and ultimate blunder [illegible] of calling out the troops rests individually upon his shoulders. We may expect a dead set against Mr. Churchill between now and the opening of parliament in February.

WISDOM OF ARMING

I see that some of the American newspapers are saying that the incident proves the wisdom of arming. In reality it proves exactly the opposite. The police would have stood a much better chance of capturing [illegible] if [illegible] rushed the room with nothing but their [illegible] than if they had been armed with six shooters. It is more than likely that they would have shot each other in the melee than they would have hit the men they wanted. One thing that stands out conspicuously in the whole Sidney street tragedy is the difficulty of hitting anybody unless, as in the original Houndsditch tragedy, you have a body of unsuspecting men grouped in a narrow passage into which revolvers could be emptied at pointblank range, and even then the criminals shot one of their own party.

GREENWAY ESSAYS ANOTHER ROLE

Bohemian Club in Uproar Over Social Czar in Milady's Gear.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 7—Ned Greenway unknown at a public gathering! It does sound unbelievable that the dictator and czar of all the social [illegible] could go anywhere in San Francisco and not be known, but it so happened at the Bohemian Club last night.

Demonstrating his skill at impersonation, the ever youthful Edward M. shaved off his mustache and appeared as a woman.

Of course he wore a dress to help out the illusion. His portly form filled the garment and the versatile Greenway [illegible] with the same distinction [illegible] he carried a glass of his own [illegible].

[illegible] was [illegible] sportive and coy [illegible] most intimate [illegible] the masquerade [illegible] was at its most frivolous height.

As others who have met him, boasting acquaintance with him, Greenway deceived them utterly.

When he was in the Sandwich Islands the arbiter of what's what in the social [illegible] of San Francisco learned the hula-hula dance. When he was in Paris he [illegible] to wink like the [illegible] Parisiennes, and when he was in the salons of [illegible] other European [illegible] he learned the graces and the distinguished manners of the grand dames.

Combining all his knowledge, Edward produced a travesty tonight in his role of entertainer that was pronounced an inimitable masterpiece.

Greenway simply outdid himself, it was voted, and that was conceded to be the final word of acclaim.

OFFICIALS MAY LOSE SALARIES

Being Legislators, Sheriff Finn and Commissioner Hare Lose Jobs, Is Claim.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 7—Joseph E. Cutten, son of Supervisor Cutten and formerly a member of the Taylor Board of Health which Mayor McCarthy ousted a year ago, sent a formal notice to Auditor Thomas F. Boyle today to the effect that if the latter approved the salary warrants of Sheriff Thomas F. Finn and Election Commissioner John P. Hare he would do so at his own personal risk, since the charter, according to Cutten, contains a provision that puts both the officials named out of their municipal positions because they are now serving as members of the State Senate.

In support of his contention, which he explains that he advances merely as a citizen desiring to see the laws properly observed, Cutten cites Section 4, Article 16 of the charter, which reads as follows:

"Any person holding a salaried office under the city and county, whether by election or appointment, who shall during his term of office hold or retain any other salaried office under the government of the United States or of this state, or who shall hold any other salaried office connected with the government of the city and county, or who shall become a member of the Legislature, shall be deemed to have thereby vacated the office held by him under the city and county."

Auditor Boyle said today that he would refer the point raised to his attorney before deciding on what action to take in the premises. This is the first time that the point has been raised up [illegible] there has never [illegible] decision on [illegible].

The [illegible] by Sheriff Finn as explained by him on a former occasion is that his case must be considered as covered by the specific references made in the charter quotation to members of the Legislature, and under this he insists, as others similarly situated have also done, that he is not affected since he was a State Senator before becoming sheriff and did not after being elected [illegible] in the language of the quotation [illegible] become a member of the Legislature.

IRISH AGITATE A NEW SYSTEM

British Politics Enter Upon an Unusual State of Activity Through Unionists.

LONDON, Jan 7—Politics have entered upon a new stage of activity as the result of the extraordinary efforts of the Ulster Unionists to alarm the British voter regarding the Asquith home rule program.

Dr. McDermott, ablest of Presbyterian clergymen in England, who represented the Ulster Unionists council in various parts of England while the general election was in progress, is agitating a new and thoroughly representative convention of Irish Unionists and a systematic visitation of the British counties and boroughs.

Declaring that there is no living man

Declaring that there is no living man in Ireland as exists now, the fiery McDermott insists that the new generation in Great Britain was dangerously ignorant concerning the importance to Irish Unionists of the British connection."

OAKLAND ROBBER SEEKS PARDON AT CAPITAL

Zimmerman, Who Held Up John Daly, Would Gain His Freedom.

CRIME MOST DARING IN SECTION'S HISTORY

Sack Containing $10,000 to Pay Oil Company's Help, Was Stolen.

SACRAMENTO, Jan 7—Assemblyman M. R. Jones of the Twenty-second district in Contra Costa county, tells a story which will be of interest to the officers of the Central National Bank of Oakland, John Daly of the former livery firm of Kane & Daly and several other persons of that city.

It is nothing more or less than that Zimmerman, one of the men who about seven years ago held up and robbed Daly and a friend who were carrying $10,000 in a sack from the bank in question to a bank in Richmond, Contra Costa county, has an ardent desire to be paroled.

It was Jones, who is an attorney with an office in Martinez, who defended Zimmerman. Not long ago he received a letter from his former client, who had been sentenced to Folsom for forty years, which means practically a life sentence, informing him that he proposed to make an application to be paroled but that he did not know whether to appeal to Governor Gillett, who was then in the executive chair, or to wait until Governor Johnson should assume the reins of authority and be empowered to exercise clemency, or, on the other hand, to apply to the board of prison directors. Jones did not encourage him along any of these lines.

TO PAY EMPLOYES

The money he stole was intended for the payment of employes of an oil company in Richmond. Zimmerman and his pal, named Collins, knew that it was the custom of the bank in Oakland to send money once a month by buggy to Richmond. They waylaid Daly and his companion near Stege, compelled them to get out of the buggy under the threat of being shot.

The men in the buggy disembarked, were thrown to the ground, gagged, tied to telegraph poles, and the robbers took the money and disappeared.

ZIMMERMAN JAILED

After about ten days Zimmerman was arrested in San Francisco and, although there was a close watch kept out for his pal Collins, who had been a resident of Oakland, the latter got away. It was later reported that Collins had fled.

None of the $10,000 which had been spirited away was recovered. Zimmerman, who was a fine shot with a rifle, was the man who held the deadly weapon at Daly's head. He had previously won medals at Shellmound at target shooting. He was brought to trial in Contra Costa county in the Superior Court, of which Judge W. S. Wells, now of the Superior bench of Alameda county, presided. Daly was the principal witness against Zimmerman because he positively identified him as the man who had held the rifle at his head. There was still another witness, however, and that was a supposed consumptive who had been convicted for another crime and sent to San Quentin and who testified to a conspiracy between himself, Zimmerman and Collins to commit the robbery. After the commission of the crime Zimmerman and Collins failed to let their pal into any of the proceeds of the robbery and the sick man got his revenge by testifying against Zimmerman and that aided in the imprisoning of the robber in Folsom.

At the time of the trial it was feared that the sick witness would expire on the witness stand, but he did not. He went back to the penitentiary at San Quentin and it seems that the prison atmosphere, exercise and medical treatment have restored him to health.

Zimmerman had been previously convicted of a felony and it is not likely that he can make a very strong appeal for clemency.

STRENUOUS TASKS FOR DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Next Half Year Will Be Busy Period for Government Prosecutors.

TRUST BUSTING WILL BE ON VAST SCALE

Heads of the Great Combines Will Have Plenty to Worry About.

WASHINGTON, Jan 7—The next half year promises to be a strenuous one for officials of the Department of Justice from the Attorney General down. The same period also promises to be one of unrest and worry for some of the larger corporations and trusts and their officials.

Within the period the Attorney-General will endeavor to bring to a successful close the suits already instituted against ten or a dozen corporations and have the outlines of half as many more completed and ready for presentation to a civil or a criminal court.

THE TOBACCO TRUST.

First comes the case of the Tobacco Trust, the brief of which the department filed with the United States Supreme Court this week. Arguments were begun yesterday and will be continued Monday. The case will be followed by the hearings of the Standard Oil and the corporation tax cases.

While these cases are being heard in the highest tribunals some of the best legal minds in the department will be in Chicago combating the array of legal talent employed by the beef trust in an effort to bring that corporation before the criminal courts and checkmate moves for delaying prosecution.

PRISON SENTENCES WANTED.

In this case every effort is being made by the [illegible] to get prison sentences with convictions. At the same time the now famous bathtub trust will come up for hearing and trial. Here [illegible] of trust officials have been indicted by a Federal Grand Jury on Federal charges. The case is set for an early hearing. Unlike the beef barons, the officials of the bathtub trust have virtually confessed their guilt and asked for clemency. According to Attorney General Wickersham there will be no clemency.

TOWING MONOPOLY.

There is now a suit in equity against the Great Lakes towing monopoly. The suit will be threshed out. A suit against the wholesale grocery combination [illegible] business in the Southern States will [illegible] on charges of restraint of trade. Then there is the [illegible] of Elgin, Ill., against which the department has evidence tending to show that it is a combination which controls the price of butter and eggs. A suit against it will be started soon.

SIXTEEN HOUR LAW

The sixteen hour law relating to railway employes in interstate commerce will come up for adjudication. The railroads have asserted that it is unconstitutional and will do everything in their power to break it down.

In April [illegible] charges were made before the department to the effect that certain individuals had formed a combination [illegible] the production of [illegible] cotton. An investigation was made and the matter referred to the Grand Jury, with the result that seven prominent New York brokers were indicted. The [illegible] in the courts on indictments within [illegible] months.

In addition to the above suits are pending [illegible] numerous suits arising under the [illegible] commerce law, appeals from the decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission and Federal Circuit Courts.

RANCHER KILLED; FARMHAND HELD

F. A. Silveira Is Victim of Early Morning Shooting Near Madera.

MADERA, Jan 7—F. A. Silveira, a rancher living here, is dead with a bullet in his [illegible] and [illegible] Santos, one of his farm hands, is in jail, as his story does not satisfy the [illegible].

STATE ROADS TO SPEND MILLIONS

Half Billion in Improvements Coming, Declares E. C. Lomax.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—"The next sixty or ninety days will determine whether half a billion or more dollars will be expended in extending trans-continental railroad lines into California, or whether the plans for this construction are to be deferred indefinitely," said E. L. Lomax of San Francisco, passenger traffic manager of the Western Pacific, last night.

"B. F. Yoakum, head of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad, is prepared to extend the Frisco system at a cost of $100,000,000. The Phelps-Dodge syndicate has a similar proposition for building the Rock Island line to the Coast. The Gould interests want to build a line from some point near Salt Lake to Los Angeles, and another line southward from San Francisco through the San Joaquin valley. Hill is seeking to extend his great system from the Northwest through California to the Gulf of Mexico.

"But capital is timid and conservative, and the moneyed interests which must necessarily get back of these projects will not finance them if there is danger of a continuance of the policy of legislation adverse to the railroads that has characterized the National Congress and the State legislative bodies in the last few years. If capital be assured that the past prevailing epidemic of legislation adverse to railroad progress is over, these various projects will be realized. San Francisco and Los Angeles will be the principal beneficiaries."

AUTOS BARRED FROM YOSEMITE

Congressman Knowland Is in Receipt of Letter Suggesting Another Plan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The petition of Percy J. Walker, president of the California Automobile Association, that automobiles be permitted to enter Yosemite valley and the Mariposa big trees grove, is denied for the time being by Secretary Ballinger, but if Congress makes a sufficient appropriation for road improvement he will lift the embargo. Representative Knowland is in receipt of a letter from the Interior Secretary, wherein he states that the only feasible scheme is that recommended by Major Forsyth of alloting one road to automobiles, namely, the Big Oak Flat road.

Certain hours would be prescribed during the day when the cars might drive. They would enter the valley over El Capital bridge and be given a defined area for parking. However, the Big Oak Flat road must be strengthened and provided with some guard walls to be safe for automobiles. This would cost about $8000. If money enough is provided by Congress Ballinger will have this work done next summer.

POLITICS BARRED BY PEERESSES

American Women of Title Are Recuperating After Long Siege.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—American peeresses are now thoroughly indifferent toward British politics. Most of them [illegible] rather heavily for their [illegible] and the interest now seems to [illegible] a settled hostility toward the creation of any new titles. This was the cause of spasmodic efforts which a few of them made to help along the Unionists' cause so as to block the threat of the Liberals to create five hundred peers and give a radical balance in the house of lords. But the election destroyed that hope and the American peeresses have gone off to the Riviera with a shrug of their shoulders to spend their money. In one or two astonishing isolated cases their English husbands have gone with them.

The Duchess of Marlborough said today to the International News Service correspondent:

"Really you know I have not a political idea in my head that would interest the International News Service readers."

Lady Dufferin said:

"You know Lord Dufferin is in the civil service so I could not talk anyhow. But beyond that I have not a thing to say even if I were free to prattle about political questions."

BOGUS LORD TRACED AND SLEUTHS REJOICE

PRINCE TROUBETAKOY COMING TO AMERICA

(By VANCE THOMPSON.)

PARIS, Jan. 7.—At last the police have succeeded in fixing the identity of the bogus Vanderbilt who went into sundry delusive mining schemes with the Prince of Braganza, Anita Stewart's brother-in-law, and who fleeced Count Bernard de Pourtales under the pretext of forming a trust of all the Paris hotels.

This report of the detectives has greatly relieved William K. Vanderbilt and other members of the Vanderbilt family.

English detectives have informed the International News Service correspondent that the man known over most of Europe as Fred L. D. Vanderbilt is an adventurer named Thomson. He is the son of a cabinet maker and was born in Warrnambool, Victoria, Australia. His father sent him to the Edinburgh university where he graduated in medicine with highest honors. His personal standing was so good that he was appointed assistant surgeon in the British [illegible] service of the Gold Coast colony of West Africa.

IS A LINGUIST

Thomson speaks seven languages. He has a polished manner and except when he wears a yellow wig looks very like the W. K. Vanderbilt of fifteen years ago. Thomson married a Miss Oakley of New York and San Francisco, a daughter of the late Judge Oakley of California and a near relative of Franklin Pierce. The ceremony took place in Paris Jan. 13, 1908. After a honeymoon of three days his bride left him.

Thomson became a naturalized French citizen and as such was registered as Dr. Louis Leopold Arthur William Thomson. According to the detectives who traced his career he has taken other aliases than that of Vanderbilt. They state that he has used the names of Theodore S[illegible] of St. Paul and Carl Smith of Chicago. In 190[illegible] he registered at the Hotel Bristol, Berlin, as Fred Vanderbilt.

FLIES HIGH

Sometimes he flies very high and once he rented the Duke of Sutherland's yacht and entertained a large party of notable people. At that time he was known as Colonel Thomson of New York.

Not long ago he struck up an acquaintance with Howard Gould. It was fast ripening into friendship when Mr. Gould was warned.

The detectives say that Thomson has been connected with bucket shops in Berlin, Vienna and London—notably with an American bucket shop in the Rue des Capucines, Paris, which the police closed a few years ago. His former wife still lives in Paris.

Prince Paul Troubetskoy, a cousin of the Prince Troubetskoy who married Amelie Rives Chanler, sailed from Cherbourg on Wednesday on the Adriatic for New York. The prince is a distinguished sculptor and his receptions in his studio in the Rue Weber attracts all the artists of Paris.

VIEWS OF TOLSTOI

Troubetskoy [illegible] Tolstoian [illegible] is gone to America to [illegible] vegetarianism as well [illegible] the great Russian he is not successful [illegible] The princess has [illegible] [illegible] called [illegible] ing [illegible] fiddle and dresses [illegible] robe and wooden sandals.

NEW THEATER

Paris [illegible] new theater [illegible] young artists who are still recent prize winners at the conservatoire. The scenery is being designed by [illegible]. The translation used is that of Camille de Sainte-Croix, a poet whose Shakespeare translations are the only ones in French [illegible] fidelity [illegible] and poetry.

The new theater will not be a money-making venture pure and simple. Indeed, the founders have followed what they call the New York idea. A combination has been formed of which the Duchess de Rohan is the president. The subscribers already include scores of names prominent in literature, art and society.

Windstorm Sweeps Over City of Denver

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 7.—A strong wind prevailed most of the day on the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains. The storm came from the north, reaching Denver shortly before noon, the wind here reaching a velocity of fifty miles an hour just before 1 o'clock. Telegraph wires were affected and many chimneys blown down. A scaffolding on a skyscraper in course of construction in this city was blown into a crowded street but only one man was injured although the lumber was scattered promiscuously among pedestrians.
